INTRODUCTION

In 1818 Elisha Kirby of Middletown, Ct., Captain Ralph Smith of Haddam, Ct., and others, compiled a genealogical table of the first five generations of the descendants of John Kirby of Middletown. The manuscript copy belonging to Elisha Kirby fell into the hands of his grandson, Samuel H. Kirby of New Haven, Ct., who published the same in 1890 under the title of "Kirby Family"—a pamphlet folio of twelve pages. "The Kirbys of New England" was begun with the purpose merely of correcting some errors in the "Kirby Family" and of bringing it down to date, but it has grown to its present moderate proportions through information kindly furnished by many who have become interested in the progress of the work. Of these, special thanks are due to Frank F. Starr of Middletown, Mrs. Charles A. Dudley of Guilford, David B. Kirby of New York City, and William A. Kirby of New Bedford. To the latter is almost wholly due the account of the descendants of Richard Kirby of Sandwich. It was at first the intention to record and publish only the descendants of John Kirby of Middletown, and this branch of the New England Kirbys is more completely carried out than the other branches. But sufficient information having been obtained with regard to the descendants of Joseph Kirby of Hartford and of Richard Kirby of Sandwich to warrant its publication, this has been done, although the account of these branches is confessedly incomplete, and calls for further labor on the part of any who may be interested in finishing what has only been begun. The publication of these imperfect accounts of the other branches of the New England Kirbys has appeared the more desirable since finding there is good reason for the belief that the Litchfield Kirbys are nearly related to those of Middletown, and some reason for the conjecture that the descendants of Richard Kirby of Sandwich are also related to the Middletown Kirbys.

INTRODUCTION

That John Kirby of Middletown was the brother of Joseph Kirby of Hartford, the ancestor of the Litchfield Kirbys, is rendered highly probable by the discovery that the only surviving son of the former was known as Joseph Kirby, Junior. (See Joseph, son of John of Middletown.) Besides this indication, there are others which are significant. For, as John of Middletown named his son Joseph, Jr., so Joseph of Hartford named his only known son John; both also came from Warwickshire, England, and both were at Hartford near the time of its first settlement. Nor should the tradition preserved in both families, that the founders of the Middletown and Litchfield Kirbys were brothers, be left altogether out of account. There is also some reason for the belief that John Kirby of Middletown was the brother of Richard Kirby of Sandwich. The former came to New England in the Hopewell, Captain Babb, Master, which sailed from London, England, for New England, Sept. 11, 1635. His name is found registered among those of the other passengers as "Jo. Kerbie aged 12 years," and is the only Kirby named. It is reasonable to presume that he came in the care of some fellow-passenger or passengers. Among these, and heading the list, is "Husb. Wm. Wood aged 27 years." Then follow the names of "Elisabeth Wood, 24 years, Jo. Wood, 26 years, Robert Chambers, 13 years, Tho. Jno'son, 25 years, Marc Hubbard, 24 years" and "Jo. Kerbie, 12 years"—the seventh in the list of fifty-four passengers. Suspicion points toward William Wood and his wife Elizabeth as the persons in whose care was John Kirby. Who, then, was this William Wood? Lewis says that "he settled in Lynn as early as 1629 and resided there according to his own account about four years. During this time he wrote an interesting book entitled 'New England Prospects.' He sailed Aug. 15, 1633, for London, where in the following year he published his book. In 1635 he published a map of New England. He returned to Lynn the same year, embarking in the Hopewell Sept. 11, 1635. In 1637 he went with fifty companions and commenced a settlement at Sandwich, Mass." ("History of Lynn, Mass.," Lewis and Newhall, page 113.) Since Richard Kirby was at first a resident of Lynn and afterward accompanied William Wood to Sandwich, we may suspect that John Kirby, aged twelve, the passenger of the Hopewell, was in the care of William Wood, to be conveyed to his brother Richard. Unhappily, antiquarians are not agreed concerning William Wood, the author. Dr. Deane, who edited the republication of "New England Prospects," dissents from the statements of Lewis. Shattuck claims him for Concord, Mass., and Savage, although convinced that the author was really William Wood of Lynn and Sandwich, will venture no opinion with regard to the passenger of the Hopewell, but says that if he be William Wood, the author, "which I neither affirm or deny," then he could not be the William Wood of Concord, as claimed by Shattuck.

INTRODUCTION

Another circumstance suggesting relationship between John and Richard Kirby is the fact that the former was at Plymouth, Mass., in 1643, being then enrolled there as "able to bear arms." At this time he was about twenty-one years of age, and supposing that he had accompanied Richard Kirby to Sandwich in 1637 as a member of the latter's family, he might naturally be found in 1643 at Plymouth, the principal town of the Old Colony. Since family names are sometimes family guides, it may be added that both Richard of Sandwich and John of Middletown had daughters named Sarah, and that their youngest daughters were named Abigail. Again, Richard had only two sons, one of whom was named after himself and the other received the Puritan name of Recompense, but Richard, Jr., named his eldest son John, perhaps after John of Middletown, whom, if indeed his uncle, he must have remembered, since Richard, Jr., was born before his father's removal to Sandwich. It is easy to give the reins to the imagination where one wishes to believe; and we should like to believe that John Kirby, the passenger of the Hopewell, "aged 12 years," was brought by William Wood to his brother Richard Kirby of Lynn, where he became a member of Richard's family; that he removed with the same to Sandwich, where he resided until about 1643, when he removed to Plymouth, and shortly afterward sought his brother Joseph and the fertile lands of the Connecticut Valley at Hartford, Ct.

The name of Kirby is probably one of Danish origin. It was originally written Kirkby, from Kirke, meaning church, and bye, dwelling. The earliest use of the word is found in the name of one of the shires of Deira, a part of ancient Northumbria. A very early use of the word is found in the names of several towns in the north of England, viz., Kirkby Kendal, Kirkby Lonsdale, Kirkby Stephen, etc. Although originally written Kirkby, the name has long been pronounced as if written Kirby, hence the latter spelling has almost altogether superseded the former. The earliest appearance of the name as designating a particular family is found in the title given to the barons of Kirkby Kendal in Westmoreland. The first Baron Kirkby was Ivo Taillebois, who came with the Conqueror. He died without male issue, and the barony passed to his brother Gerard's family. In 1272 John Kirkby was made Keeper of the Great Seal, and soon afterward Bishop of Ely. In 1322 another John Kirkby (also written Kirby) was created Bishop of Carlisle. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries there were several families of Kirkbys and Kirbys living in various parts of England, as is shown by the Visitations of Essex, Leicestershire, Yorkshire, etc., which have recently been published by the Harleian Society from the original manuscripts kept in the British Museum. The Kirby names usually found in these Visitations are Richard, Roger, William, and John—all Norman names. These are the names usually met with among the early Kirbys of New England, and this circumstance suggests the idea that the New England Kirbys were of Norman origin. Some effort has been made to trace their ancestry in England. Joseph Kirby came from Warwickshire, and John Kirby in 1654 sold an estate in Rowington, Warwickshire, to Richard Lord, from which it is presumed that he also came from the same county. Letters were addressed to the incumbent of the parish of Rowington, but unfortunately the parish registers were begun as late as 1638, so nothing could be ascertained from them. The baptism of Michael Kirby, son of Humphrey, Sept. 22, 1622, found in one of the recovered sheets of the lost register of St. Mary's Church in Warwick, shows, however, that there were Kirbys living in the vicinity in the early part of the seventeenth century. That John Kirby came from Rowington, Warwickshire, is further shown by the following document:

Forasmuch as Joseph Kirby of Middletown in the Colony of Connecticut, Turner, hath bound himself, his heirs, administrators to me the sub-

To get whatever evidence you can that your father came from Rowington in Warwickshire. Also what you can that your grandmother's name was Margaret White. Also what your cousin Buck remembers of the people of Rowington.

This document was in the possession of Captain Seth Kirby of Charlton, N. Y., who spoke of its never being heard from. The death of Thomas Bannister the following year, 1709, was probably the reason why nothing further was known concerning this matter. This paper shows that John Kirby, in all probability, came from Rowington in Warwickshire, England, and that his children believed a considerable estate in Warwickshire rightfully belonged to his heirs. Rowington is situated about five miles from the town and castle of Warwick. It is possible that the ancestors of the New England Kirbys descended from Sir John Kirkby, whose daughter Matilda married William Beauchamp, the first Earl of Warwick of that family. (See "Visitation of Yorkshire," page 245.) There is a suggestion of good family descent in the provision made by John Kirby of Middletown in his will, that two portions of his estate should "not be sold out of the blood," but should "pertain to some of my children or children's children to the end of the world." This singular provision, especially its peculiar wording, is not easily intelligible without the presupposition that the testator was conscious of descent from a family of English gentry, and so was both proud of his "blood" and familiar with the entail of landed estate.

The Kirbys of New England form a small family group. For both John of Middletown and Joseph of Hartford had but one grandson, and Richard of Sandwich had only two grandsons (whose descendants have been fairly traced) to perpetuate the name of Kirby. Their forefathers settled in places remote from centres of influence. Nevertheless, they have made their influence felt, especially in their country's warfares. About one-half of the descendants of John Kirby of Middletown, and the same proportion of the known descendants of Joseph Kirby of Hartford, able to bear arms, were Revolutionary soldiers. The descendants of Richard Kirby of Sandwich were mostly Quakers. Nevertheless, four of his descendants, out of the limited number able to take up arms, served as soldiers during the Revolution. In the war of 1812, and in the Civil War, a large proportion of the Kirbys of New England descent were engaged, and served with some distinction. Nor have they been without influence in time of peace. One of the very first in New England to espouse the cause of the Quakers was Richard Kirby of Sandwich, and the first organized effort in behalf of temperance was made by Ephraim Kirby of Litchfield, Ct.

Independence, fortitude, hatred of false conventionalities, rectitude, and sternness of moral purpose have hitherto been the characteristics of the New England Kirbys. May their posterity continue to exhibit the same traits of character and add to the virtues of their ancestors.

THE HISTORY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY OF MIDDLETOWN CONNECTICUT

Among the passengers of the Hopewell, Thomas Babb, Master, registered on Sept. 11, 1635, as about to sail from the port of London, England, for New England, was "Jo. Kerbie, aged 12 years." On the list of the inhabitants of Plymouth, Mass., between sixteen and sixty years of age, who were enrolled Aug., 1643, as able to bear arms, is the name of "John Kerby." The Hartford records contain the following entry: "Eli[sabeth] Keerbe, daughter of John Keerbe, was [born] the eaighten of September one thousand six hundred forty and six." There is sufficient proof that the Hartford record refers to the birth of the second daughter of John Kirby, who subsequently removed to Middletown; and in the absence of any knowledge that there was another person bearing the same name then living in New England, it is confidently presumed that all the above-mentioned records refer to one and the same person, who was afterward known as John Kirby of Middletown.

1. John Kirby of Middletown, Ct., came from Warwickshire, England. For there is a deed of property by him to Richard Lord of Hartford, Ct., made Sept. 3, 1654, and recorded in Manuscript Copy of First Book Colonial Records of Connecticut, pp. 272, 273, said property consisting of a house and land, and situated within the bounds of the township of Rowington in Warwickshire, England, which indicates that he was a native of that county. He came to New England, as has been presumed, during the autumn of 1635 in the ship Hopewell, Captain Babb, Master, being then only twelve years of age. In Aug., 1643, he was living at Plymouth, Mass., and before April, 1645, he had become a resident of Hartford, Ct. For at this date it is recorded that "John Kirby and Seth Grant contracted to herd the Hartford cattle for a stated price payable at their houses in corn, peas, etc. on their demand." In 1647 he appears to be living in Wethersfield, Ct., for the town records state that in this year he recorded "ear marks" for his cattle. The Wethersfield records state that his daughter Hannah was born in Wethersfield March 2, 1649, so that he was certainly by that time an inhabitant of that place. Having joined "The Company for settling the planting grounds at Mattabesett," he became a resident of Middletown, Ct., some time between Dec., 1651, and Jan. 16, 1654, and remained there until his death. His lands in Middletown, which were recorded to him in the Town Book, Jan. 10, 1655, were located on the "North Side" of the rivulet, or "North Society," now the town of Cromwell, Ct. His homestead farm was situated in the extreme western part of the present town of Cromwell, in the bend of the river Mattabesett (Little River) where it turns and runs southeast. The bridge over the river, just above the bend, is still called the Kirby bridge. Below the bridge is a small but picturesque and wooded island. The house, whose foundations are still to be seen, stood on higher ground, sloping gradually to the river. Here John Kirby lived, accumulated a good estate, and reared a numerous family. He was made a freeman by the General Court of Connecticut at a session held in May, 1658. He died April, 1677, leaving a will made on April 6th and an estate valued at £551, the inventory of which was dated on the 27th of the same month.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

WILL OF JOHN KIRBY AND THE INVENTORY OF HIS ESTATE, PRESERVED IN THE RECORDS OF THE PROBATE COURT AT HARTFORD, CT.

I, John Kirby of Middletown in the County of Hartford, in His Majesty's Colony of Connecticut in N. England, being weak in body and not knowing how soon it may please God to leave me to my dust, but yet through mercy of perfect understanding and memory do therefore make this my last will and testament.

In the first place I do will my soul unto the hands of Jesus Christ my Lord and God, and will my body to be decently buried and for the outward estate which God hath given me, I do dispose thereof in manner following.

First of all to the intent that my loving wife may not be destitute of a comfortable subsistence while she shall live, I do give and bequeath unto her the possession and use of all my estate, whether houseing or lands, or other estate, as exists in my possession during her natural life; excepting only what shall afterwards be particularly mentioned. I do also give her liberty if she see herself necessitated so to do to sell any such part of my estate as aforesaid for her necessary living.

Item: I do give and bequeath to my son Joseph and to my daughter Mary each of them a portion double to the portion of any of the rest of my children; and to the rest of my children (all of which are daughters) I do give each of them a portion equal to one another. I will also that in case Joseph shall marry before his mothers decease that then he shall have the use of that house and lot which Jno. should have had if he had lived, and in case (and as long as) his mother can spare it together with whatever else his mother can and shall see cause to accommodate him withal yet not exceeding his said portion.

Item: My will is that my lands (excepting what my wife may be necessitated and see cause to sell as is above said) as well as my other estate shall be divided among all my children according to the proportion aforesaid, and inasmuch as some of my children are deceased and have left children behind them, my will is that the portion of these my children which are already deceased, or which shall decease and leave children surviving before this distribution of my estate be fully made; and which cannot be made while my wife shall live; I say the portion of any of my children so deceased, or deceasing, shall fall to the children of the deceased or to such of those children as shall be living when this distribution shall be made. Also, forasmuch as some of my children have received something in part of their portion already, I will that what they have received be accounted as part of their portion and said portion which I now give to them, and that the rest which have yet received nothing have a portion equal to them, both as to what they have already received and are yet to receive, that is Joseph equal to Mary and the rest one to another equal as is aforesaid.

Item: As for that parcel of my land which lyes near to Daniel Harris his farme on the West of Connecticut River and contains about three hundred acres, and another parcel of my land containing near or about two hundred acres and lying at or about Pipe-stem swamp on the West also of Connecticut River my will is that to whichsoever of my children or children's children these parcels of land or any part thereof shall fall, they shall not at any time be sold out of the blood, but in case any of my children or their children see cause to sell any part thereof it shall be only given one to another of them, that so these two parcels of land may pertain to some of my children or children's children to the end of the world.

Item: As for my said portion in such lands as are not yet but may be hereafter divided, I do bequeath the same to the use and disposal of my wife as aforesaid during her life in case they be divided while she lives, and whether they be or no my will is they be distributed among my children as my other lands are.

Lastly: My will is that notwithstanding any appraisall of my estate that may according to useful custom be made at the taking of the inventory yet that a distribution thereof among my children may be made according to justice and equity, (I say my will is that) when the full and final distribution shall be made then all my estate so distributed whether formerly received or then to be received by my children or children's children shall be given again at the then just value thereof.

Finally: I do make the worthy Capt. Jno. Allyn of Hartford (craving pardon for my boldness in requesting him to undertake the trouble) and Deacon Allyn of Middletown and my son in law Emanuel Bucke of Wethersfield, the executors of this my last will and testament and for confirmation hereof I do hereunto set my hand and seal this Sixth of Aprile in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and seventy seven.

JOHN KIRBY. (seal)

By us Nathaniel Bacon.
William Cheny.

This was a good estate for those days. John Dwight of Dedham left, in 1661, an estate inventoried at £506, yet he was esteemed the wealthiest man in Dedham, save the Minister. It was even a large estate for Middletown, if the "Hubbard Genealogy" be correct when it states (page 275) that Thomas Wetmore, Sr., who died in 1681, was "the richest man in town." Nevertheless, his estate was valued at only £468 2s. 3d.

The above inventory enables us to form some idea concerning John Kirby's house, as well as of his mode of living and his domestic arrangements. It is evident that the house was a one-story dwelling containing three rooms, viz., the "dwelling room," which also seems to have served for the kitchen, a small bed-chamber above the cellar, and a lean-to or "low room"; and that the "chamber," or garret, was not divided into apartments. From such ancient houses as have survived even to the beginning of the present century, it is easy to form a still closer idea of the house and its internal appearance. It faced the south, as all the early dwellings did, and the chimney, which projected outside of the frame, was on the west side. By so building, two objects were secured which our forefathers deemed essential—the rays of the sun at noon, or dinner-time, shone parallel with the side of the building, and the living-room was on the sunny or warm side of the house. It was, as we have said, of one story, and the chamber, or garret, projected on the east side over the lower portion. Its exact size cannot be determined, but it was probably 18×24 , which, together with the lean-to on the north side, perhaps 8 feet wide, would make the entire dimensions of the ground-plan 26×24 feet. It was built, not of logs, as it is often erroneously supposed the houses of the first settlers were built, but of hand-sawed or hewn planks an inch and a quarter in thickness, and the frame was constructed of heavy timber. The seams in the boarding were filled with clay, and the floor was fastened to sleepers laid on the ground even with the lower edge of the sills. The thatched roof (or perhaps the curb-roof of shingles), windows with small diamond-shaped glass set in lead, and a clete door, with a wooden latch and string, complete the external picture of the dwelling.

Entering at the southeast corner, one was obliged to step over the sill, the entry-floor being a foot lower than the threshold. In the entry was a ladder, or rude stair, leading to the chamber or garret. The great room, or dwelling-room, to the left, occupied the whole of the west end of the house proper, and was about 18×16 feet in dimensions. The chimney projected into the room, with no finishing boards around it. The fireplace was seven or eight feet wide and four feet deep, with an oven at the south end, and the mantel was five and one-half feet high. The hearth was laid with flat stones taken from the fields. The heavy sills projected into the room and formed low seats on three sides. The small glass windows were without curtains. The furniture consisted of a few rush-bottomed chairs, two tables, together with a "small table," and the kitchen utensils: the great pot, skillet, spit, and frying-pan. On one side of the room were two large trencher shelves on which was displayed the pewter of the family, and which provided room for other things, such as the "nine Bibles," which make an interesting item in the inventory, for the paternal as well as the religious feelings of John Kirby are revealed in this his endeavor to provide a Bible for each member of his numerous family. The "bed-chamber above the cellar," so spoken of because the floor was elevated a foot or more to give greater depth at this point to the cellar beneath it, occupied the northeast corner of the house. One had to mount by steps on the east side of the dwelling-room in order to enter it. It was so low in the walls that a tall person could not stand upright in it, and the bed must have occupied most of the space. At the time of the inventory, however, it seems to have been used merely as a store-room, for the bed is absent. It contained, among other things, the movable cupboard or buffet and the arms of the family, two guns and swords—only two guns now, for the eldest son, John, only a few months before had been killed by the Indians. The "low room," or lean-to, on the north side probably ran the whole length of that side of the house, and at the eastern end was the pantry, with its trap-door leading to the cellar. It was used evidently at the time of the inventory as a bedroom, as well as a convenient place in spring-time for spinning. It contained a bed, a trundle-bed, and three spinning-wheels, one for "woolen" and two for "linen," for there were several daughters. In the cellar were four barrels of cider, still left from the winter store, and twelve pounds of tobacco. There was a pipe, too, upstairs, all of which clearly evinces that John Kirby, although he had nine Bibles, had also some human infirmities. In "the chamber," or garret, there was a bed, with its "furniture," i.e., everything that belonged to the bed, including curtains and valances. The linen chest also, with its goodly store, seems to have been kept there, and upon the floor was spread the seed-corn—wheat, rye, barley, and maize—for the future planting. Some of the corn, however, had already, April 27th, been put into the ground.

We have endeavored to describe the house and home of John Kirby, the settler, as it appears from the terms of the inventory taken at the time of his decease. If, in addition, we picture to ourselves the house as standing on rising ground, overlooking the clear and willow-fringed Mattabesett, not more than twenty rods away, and which, turning here in its southern course and flowing eastward, sparkles beside, as well as before, the door of the dwelling, while beyond the river there rises the noble outline of Mount Lamentation and of many another distant elevation, we shall be able to form some conception of the homestead of the forefather of the Middletown Kirbys and of the beauty of its situation.

Concerning the wife of John Kirby nothing is positively known except that her name was Elizabeth; that she married (2) Abraham Randall of Windsor, Ct.; outlived her second husband, and died after 1697. It is believed, however, that her name was Elizabeth Hinds; that she was the niece of Sarah (Hinds) Cheplin, wife of Clement Cheplin of Bury St. Edmunds, Co. Suffolk, England, and afterward of Wethersfield, Ct.; that she was born in Bury St. Edmunds, and accompanied, or followed, her aunt to Wethersfield, Ct., and was married to John Kirby before 1645. The reasons for such belief are based mainly upon the following letter, found in Hartford in the manuscript copy of the first book of the Colonial Records of Connecticut, page 273 (original book, page 285):

Cozin Kirby. My love remembered to you both. I have sent your Wife a small token with a Letter to you by Wm. Goodrich. Your Wife's Father is yett alive and in good Health. I doe forgive you all that you oweth me and pray God that it may doe you good. I Desire you may grow in Grace and so wishing you much good from God I remain your Loving Kinsman
Sarah Cheplin.

Bury, 2 January 1661.

Superscribed to my Cozin John Kirby late of Wethersfield.

The terms of John Kirby's will show that his wife Elizabeth must have been a woman whose husband could safely trust in her, for he left her the possession and use of all his estate during her life. And that she was worthy of such confidence is evident from her relinquishment of the estate so bequeathed to her, "that she might not be destitute of a comfortable subsistence," to her children after her second marriage. She married a second time, Oct. 27, 1681, Abraham Randall of Windsor, Ct., the son of Philip Randall of Dorchester and Windsor. Mr. Randall died Oct. 2, 1690, in Windsor, and she returned to Middletown. In April, 1697, she had become a resident of Wethersfield, and probably died there.

The children of John and Elizabeth Kirby were:

2. i. Mary Kirby, b. 1644, probably in Hartford, Ct.; m. Emanuel Buck.
3. ii. Elizabeth Kirby, b. Sept. 8, 1646, in Hartford, Ct.; m. David Sage. ✓
4. iii. Hannah Kirby, b. March 2, 1649, in Wethersfield, Ct.; m. Thomas Andrews.
- iv. John Kirby, b. Dec. 18, 1651, in Wethersfield, Ct.; killed by Indians, 1676, on the road between Wethersfield and Middletown.
- v. Eunice Kirby, b. Dec. 18, 1651, in Wethersfield, Ct., twin with John; d. 1677; not m.

10. xi. Abigail Kirby, b. March 6, 1666, in Middletown, Ct.; m. David Robinson.

2. Mary² Kirby (John¹), born 1644, probably in Hartford, Ct. When less than fourteen years of age she married, April 17, 1658, as his second wife, Emanuel Buck of Wethersfield, Ct. On page 3, Vol. II., of the Land Records of Wethersfield, Ct., it is recorded that "Emanuel Buck and Mary his wife married 17th of Aprell 1658." In John Kirby's will, dated April 6, 1677, the husband of Mary Kirby is called "my son-in-law Emanuel Bucke of Wethersfield." But later he seems to have changed his name, and was known as Enoch Buck. In Middletown Land Records, Vol. III., page 325, is a division of land, dated Nov. 16, 1716, between Benjamin Churchill and wife Sarah, John Fowler and wife Hannah, Caleb Dudley and wife Elizabeth, Samuel Arnold and wife Abigail, and Thomas Buck, which states that they are the children of Enoch and Mary Buck of Wethersfield, and grandchildren of John Kirby, deceased, of Middletown. It is therefore certain that "Emanuel" and "Enoch" Buck of Wethersfield are one and the same person; and that he married Mary, daughter of John Kirby of Middletown. He was probably born in 1623, since he testified in court, 1684, that he was then aged sixty-one years. He was a freeman, also constable, 1669. He died between Nov., 1715, and Nov. 6, 1716. Mary Kirby Buck is supposed to have died Jan. 17, 1712, in Wethersfield, Ct. Emanuel Buck's first wife was Sarah —, by whom he had three children: (1) Ezekiel, b. Jan. 15, 1650; d. March 5, 1713; m., March 18, 1676. Rachel, dau. of John and Mary Andrews of Farmington, Ct.; (2) John, b. Nov., 1652; (3) Jonathan, b. April 8, 1655.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

4. Hannah² Kirby (John¹), born March 2, 1649, in Wethersfield, Ct.; married, before 1673, Thomas Andrews of Middletown, Ct., probably son of William Andrews, "the schoolmaster," of Hartford, Ct., by Abigail, his second wife. Thomas Andrews died before March 3, 1690, and she married (2) Alexander Rollo of Haddam, Ct. There is an ante-nuptial agreement, dated Nov. 3, 1693, which reads: "For as much as there is intended matrimony betwixt Alexander Rollo of Haddam and Hannah Andrews late wife of Thomas Andrews of Middletown," etc. The date of the marriage is not recorded, but it was before Dec. 3, 1693. Alexander Rollo died July 22, 1709, in Haddam, Ct., and she married (3), before Jan., 1716, William Stone of Guilford, Ct. She died Oct., 1717.

The Andrews Memorial erroneously states that the widow of Thomas Andrews of Middletown, in the inventory of his estate taken and returned to the Probate Court at Hartford, March 3, 1690-1691, is named Abigail, and that the children of the deceased were Mary, Thomas, John, Samuel, Hannah, Elizabeth, and Sarah. This is incorrect. The name of the widow is not stated, either in the inventory presented or in the administration granted. The names of the children in the inventory are "Thomas, John, Samuel, Hannah, Elizabeth, Sarah, Abigail Andrews." On Dec. 6, 1693, the children of Thomas Andrews requested distribution of his estate. Thirds were ordered to the widow, but her name is not mentioned. She was married and had removed. That the name of the wife of Thomas Andrews of Middletown, Ct., was Hannah Kirby, daughter of John and Elizabeth Kirby of Middletown is conclusively shown; first, by the ante-nuptial agreement between "Alexander Rollo of Haddam and Hannah Andrews, late wife of Thomas Andrews of Middletown," and dated Nov. 30, 1693; secondly, by the Inventory of John Kirby's estate, dated April 27, 1677, which mentions "Hannah Kirby, wife of Thomas Andrews"; thirdly, by the Middletown Land Records, Vol. II., page 91: "April 6, 1688, I Elisabeth Randolph, wife to Abraham Randall of Winzor do give unto my dafter Hannah Andros of Middletown," etc. "I do give my consent to the above written, as witness my hand. Joseph Kirby." (From the latter record it has been supposed that the family name of Elizabeth, wife of John Kirby of Middletown, may have been Randolph; but it is probable that "Randolph" is a clerical error, and should have been "Randall." John Kirby died in 1677, and his widow married (2), Oct. 27, 1681, Abraham Randall of Windsor.)

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

Children of Thomas Andrews and Hannah Kirby:

- i. Thomas Andrews.
- ii. John Andrews, b. 1673; d. Aug. 6, 1736, aged sixty-three years.
- iii. Samuel Andrews, b. —; d. Dec. 14, 1758, in East Haddam, Ct.; m., Nov. 18, 1708, Elinor Lee. The Andrews Memorial says that "Samuel Andrews is supposed to be the son of Thomas of Middletown." And since also the widow of Thomas Andrews of Middletown married, in 1693, Alexander Rollo of Haddam, and removed thither, probably taking with her the children who were not of age, it seems reasonable to assume that the Samuel Andrews of Haddam, and afterward of East Haddam, who m. Elinor Lee, was the son of Thomas Andrews of Middletown and Hannah Kirby. Children:
 1. Samuel, b. Sept. 28, 1709.
 2. Mary, b. Dec. 2, 1710.
 3. Richard, b. Jan. 17, 1712.

 16. Rachel, b. Aug. 13, 1742.
- iv. Hannah Andrews.
- v. Elizabeth Andrews.
- vi. Sarah Andrews.
- vii. Abigail Andrews, b. —; probably m., June 30, 1706, Joel Parmelee of Guilford, Ct., b. 1679, son of John Parmelee, Jr. He removed to Durham, Ct., about 1699, and died there July, 1748. "Family Histories and Pedigrees," by E. E. Salisbury, says that the wife of Joel Parmelee was "Abigail Andrews, b. 1667, probably dau. of Nathan Andrews of New Haven." ("Family of Parmelee," p. 225.) But this is incredible. Abigail, daughter of Nathan, was born March 20, 1667, and so, if the wife of Joel Parmelee, must have been married to him when thirty-nine years of age, and yet have borne to him ten children, the last when she was fifty-seven years old! His wife was probably the youngest daughter of Thomas Andrews and Hannah Kirby. For a third Abigail Andrews cannot be found, and it is known that the widow of Thomas Andrews m. (2) Alexander Rollo in 1693, and removed immediately to Haddam, which is the adjoining town to Durham, Ct. Children:

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

1. Mary Parmelee, b. Nov. 11, 1707; m. Samuel Peck.
2. John Parmelee, b. Sept. 22, 1709; m. Sarah Boardman.
3. Hezekiah Parmelee, b. Jan. 20, 1711; m. (1) Mehitabel Hall, (2) Mary Smith.
4. Joel Parmelee, b. March 8, 1713; m. Rhoda Camp.

8. Bethiah² Kirby (John¹), born Feb. 14, 1658, in Middletown, Ct.; married, before Oct. 25, 1680, John Andrews of Fairfield, Ct., baptized Sept. 27, 1646, at Hartford, Ct., son of Francis Andrews of Hartford and Fairfield, Ct., died 1663, and Anne Smith, daughter of Giles Smith of Hartford, New London, and Fairfield, who died 1669. The History of Fairfield, Ct., says that John Andrews, born Sept. 27, 1646, son of Frances, married Sarah, daughter of Simon Couch, and had John, born Oct. 24, 1679; Sarah, born Jan. 12, 1681; died 1683; and four other children. This is erroneous. He married Bethiah Kirby, as the "Land Records of Middletown" fully show (see Vol. I., p. 26; Vol. II., p. 66, and Vol. IV., p. 26), and had only two children. It was a grandson of John and Bethiah (Kirby) Andrews who married Sarah Couch and had several children. John Andrews died in 1683. Bethiah, his wife, is believed to have outlived her husband. She probably died before Nov. 21, 1700.

Children of John Andrews and Bethiah Kirby:

- i. John Andrews, b. in Fairfield, Ct., now Greens Farms, Oct. 24, 1679; d. Nov. 4, 1728; m. (Abigail?) Couch, and had:

 2. Abigail Andrews, b. June 17, 1709.
 3. Eleanor Andrews, b. Oct. 9, 1711.
 4. Daniel Andrews, b. Feb. 20, 1714; d. 1728.
 5. Abraham Andrews, b. July 21, 1717.
 6. Eben Andrews, b. May 12, 1720.
- ii. Sarah Andrews, b. Jan. 12, 1681; m., before Nov. 21, 1700, Richard Osborne of East Chester, N. Y., b. 1676, only son of David, and grandson of Richard Osborn of Hingham, Mass., and Fairfield, Ct. They had eight children. Sarah (Andrews) Osborne died in Ridgefield, Ct., soon after the birth of her youngest child, Daniel, who was born Oct. 29, 1719. Her gravestone is the oldest now standing in the ancient cemetery. Richard Osborne removed to Ridgefield, Ct., about 1713, and died there in 1779, aged 103 years!

[Coe Lineage:

I. Robert Coe, born 1596 in Co. Suffolk, England, came to New England in 1634 with wife Anna, born 1591, and three sons. He was at Watertown, Mass., 1634, and Wethersfield, Ct., 1636. He purchased of the Indians, Oct. 30, 1640, the present town of Stamford, Ct., where, in 1643, he was a judge. In 1664, together with the Rev. Robert Denton and others, he made the first English settlement on Long Island at Hempstead, and was magistrate during his residence there. He was one of the first settlers of Newtown, L. I., 1652, and of Jamaica, L. I., 1656, where he was a magistrate and was prominent in public affairs until 1672. The date of his death is unknown. Children: John, b. 1626; Robert, b. 1627; Benjamin, b. 1629.

II. Robert Coe, born, 1627, in England, accompanied his father to Watertown, Wethersfield, and Stamford; removed to Stratford, Ct., and died there in 1659. His wife's name was Hannah. Children: Hannah, b. 1651; m. John Alling, Jr., of

He was commissioned Captain 1709; was deputy to General Court of Connecticut from Stratford, 1701-15. He died April 19, 1741.

IV. Captain Joseph Coe, born Feb. 2, 1686, second son of the preceding; m. Abigail Robinson, daughter of David Robinson and Abigail Kirby. Among the descendants of Captain Joseph and Abigail (Robinson) Coe is Mr. Levi E. Coe of Meriden, Ct., the founder of the Free Library of Middlefield, Ct., to whom we are indebted for the foregoing account of the descendants of Abigail Kirby.]

15. David³ Robinson (Abigail Kirby², John¹), born, 1694, in Guilford, Ct. He removed with his father to Durham, Ct., where he married, Jan. 26, 1720, Rebecca Miller, born 1699, daughter of Benjamin Miller and Mary Johnson. He died, Feb. 9, 1780, in Durham, Ct.

[Benjamin Miller, b. July 10, 1672, was the son of Thomas Miller of Middletown, Ct., by his second wife, Sarah, dau. of Samuel Nettleton of Milford, Ct. He married Mary Johnson, b. Feb. 14, 1674, dau. of Nathaniel Johnson and Mary Smith, and granddaughter of Captain Isaac Johnson of Roxbury, Mass., who was killed at the head of his company in the Narragansett Swamp fight, Dec. 19, 1675.]

- xiii. Asher Robinson, b. May 4, 1740.

7. Joseph² Kirby (John¹), the only surviving son of John and Elizabeth Kirby, was born July 17, 1656, in Middletown, Ct. It is the family tradition that he was a wheelwright by trade, and this may account for his frequent change of residence. He resided in Middletown until after May, 1684. The following January he had become a resident of Southampton, L. I. In Town Records of Southampton, L. I., page 113, is an Abstract of Deed from "Joseph Kirby of Middletown to Maj. John Howell of Southampton of 350 acres of land in Middletown, Ct., bounded North by Sergt. John Warner, South by Samuel Huberd, West by Elizabeth Randal, East by undivided land, which was bought of Elizabeth Randal, May 13, 1685." By Nov., 1687, he had returned to Middletown. Savage says, though we know not on what authority, that "he went to Carolina, but at the end of some years came home poor and had a law suit with the other heirs about the estate of his father." It is certain that he was a resident of Milford, Ct., from July, 1706, until after June, 1708, and that in 1706 and 1707 he had a law-suit with his brothers-in-law Alexander Rollo and David Robinson over the distribution of his father's estate. The records of the Court of Assistants, Book II., pages 72-75, state that "May 1, 1707, Joseph Kirby appeared to prosecute his appeal." This appeal was taken by him from the distribution of his father's estate by the Probate Court to the Court of Assistants. In this suit Joseph Kirby appeared as his own attorney and conducted his case before the Court. His appeal was practically sustained, the original distribution made by the Probate Court being somewhat changed. An interesting fact connected with the records of this suit is that he is twice recorded therein as "Joseph Kirby, Junior." That he was engaged in the practice of the law at this time is shown both by the circumstance that he appeared in the suit as his own attorney and by the record of his admission to the bar in 1709, under the law of 1708. In May, 1708, a law was enacted by which attorneys must be formally admitted to practice in the courts of law. The earliest admitted attorneys of Hartford County and of the State were Richard Edwards of Hartford and Roger Wolcott of Windsor. Captain John Wadsworth and Captain Thomas Wells were also admitted in 1708. The following year five others were admitted. Among these was "Joseph Kirby, Jr. of Middletown—the latter being the first one from his township." ("Memorial History of Hartford County, Ct.," Vol. I., p. 120.) In the County Court Records is the following: "Hartford County Court held at Hartford March 1, 1708-9, Capt. Joseph Wadsworth, Capt. Aaron Cook and Thomas Olcott (son of Samuel Olcott, dec'd) of Hartford, Samuel Moore of Windsor and Joseph Kirby of Middletown were admitted and approved by the Court to be attorneys at the bar of this court, and each of them respectively now took the attorney's Oath provided by law."

Joseph Kirby married (1), Dec. 10, 1681, in Wethersfield, Ct., Sarah Markham. The name of his first wife is so given in the manuscript copy of the Kirby genealogy made in 1818, and published in 1890 under the title of "Kirby Family." In the records of Wethersfield, published in the N. E. Gen. Register, Vol. XVIII., page 226, the name of his wife is given as "Sarah Mackoon." But in the original Town Records the name is plainly written "Markcoon," and it seems more probable that such spelling indicates the family of Markcom (as Markham was then sometimes written), than that of McCoon. It is certain that there were Markhams living at that time in the Connecticut valley, while it is not known that there were any living there by the name of McCoon. William Markham owned land in Middletown, which he deeded to Robert Warner in 1664. He married (1) Priscilla Graves, daughter of George Graves of Hartford, by whom he had a daughter Priscilla, and perhaps another daughter, for when he removed to Hadley in 1659 he left a daughter by his first wife with her grandparents. (See Will of Nathaniel Ward of Hadley, Mass.) There were Graves living in Wethersfield who were relatives of his first wife, and this may account for the marriage of Sarah Markham to Joseph Kirby taking place in Wethersfield. Daniel Markham (whose father, Daniel, born 1618, was cousin to William) was also in Middletown about this time. He was a deacon and a man of consequence; and a grandson of Joseph and Sarah Kirby was named Daniel, perhaps after Deacon Daniel Markham. Much effort has been expended in the endeavor to obtain some clue to the ancestry of the first wife of Joseph Kirby, but without result. The date of her birth and death and the place of her burial are unknown; and so her parentage, and even her name, must be left in obscurity. He married (2), Oct. 17, 1704, in New Haven, Ct., Mary Plum, daughter of John Plum of Milford, Ct., and Elizabeth Norton. The date of her death is not known, but she outlived her husband.

[John Plum of Milford, Ct., bapt. Aug. 12, 1646; d. March, 1728, at Milford, Ct., was the son of Robert Plum (b. 1618, son of John of Wethersfield and Branford), one of the original settlers of Milford, Ct., who married, Jan. 9, 1642, Mary, dau. of Sylvester Baldwin, who died, 1638, on the voyage of the Martin from England to Boston. He married, Nov. 24, 1668, Elizabeth Norton.]

Joseph Kirby died Dec. 2, 1711, in Middletown, Ct., aged sixty-five. In his will, dated Nov. 28, 1711, he gives to "wife Mary my house and house lot butting upon Joseph Whitmore South, highway East and highway North and undivided land West," besides other property; to "son John the third part of my undivided land this side of the River"; also twelve acres in "Pipe Stem Swamp lot butting upon the river East, upon the same lot West, upon the highway North and upon Joseph Butler's land, which he bought of Samuel Hall, South"; also three parcels of land described as joining "land which I sold to his brother James Brown"; to "all my sons that are or shall be born to me" a double portion to the rest of the children in the remaining part of his estate not disposed of. His son John is made Executor. Witnesses: John Warner, John Ranny, David Hurlbut.

17. Sarah³ Kirby (Joseph², John¹), born Aug. 10, 1685; married, April 9, 1712, Samuel Baldwin of Milford, Ct., born Dec. 25, 1683, son of David Baldwin, born 1651; died Sept., 1689 (son of Joseph and Hannah Baldwin of Milford and Hadley, Mass., who died Nov. 21, 1684, in Hadley), and Mary Stream, born Oct. 12, 1653; died May 28, 1712 (married Nov. 11, 1674), daughter of John and Martha Beard Stream of Milford, Ct. Some time after her marriage he removed with his wife and four sons to New Milford, Ct., where he died Dec. 18, 1740. Sarah (Kirby) Baldwin died Feb. 23, 1777. Both were buried at New Milford, Ct. The inscriptions on their tombstones in the old cemetery read as follows: "Here lies the body of Sergt. Samuel Baldwin. He died Dec. 18, 1740 in the 56th year of his age." "In memory of Sarah relict of Mr. Samuel Baldwin. She died Feb. 23, 1777 in the 92nd year of her age." In the Baldwin Genealogy, page 489, the wife of Samuel Baldwin of New Milford, Ct., is erroneously stated to be Sarah Crosby; but her age at the time of death as shown by the above inscription, and the will of Susanna Kirby, manifest that she was Sarah Kirby, daughter of Joseph Kirby of Middletown. Children:

- i. Samuel Baldwin, b. May 10, 1713, in Milford, Ct.; m., Oct. 31, 1739, Grace Buck, b. Jan. 22, 1719; d. Oct. 1785, dau. of Enoch Buck of New Milford, Ct., and Mary Beebe. [Enoch Buck, b. April 5, 1683, was the son of Ezekiel Buck (son of Emanuel) and Rachel Andrews, bapt. April

In 1748 he sold his farm in New Milford for £1,500 to Roger Sherman, afterward known as the Hon. Roger Sherman, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and removed to the north part of the present town of Sherman, where he died in 1766. Children:
1. Samuel Baldwin, b. March 21, 1743; d. probably in 1779; unmarried.
 2. Mary Baldwin, b. Jan. 1, 1745; m., 1768, Jonathan Giddings of Sherman, Ct.

18. John Kirby. See page 41.

19. Mary³ Kirby (Joseph², John¹), born June 10, 1693; married, Dec. 19, 1717, at Milford, Ct., Benoni Stebbins, born 1689, son of Benoni Stebbins of Northampton and Deerfield, Mass., who was killed by the French and Indians at Deerfield, Mass., 1704. After his father's death he removed to New Haven, and then to New Milford, Ct., where he became an influential man and a large landholder. He had five slave children baptized. In his will he gave land for the benefit of a free school in New Milford village. He died in New Milford, Nov. 14, 1758, in the seventieth year of his age. Mary (Kirby) Stebbins, his widow, died "Feb. 17, 1771 in the 78th year of her age." They had no children, but adopted a son and daughter, the first being a nephew of Mrs. Stebbins. The adopted daughter was Rebecca Herrick, daughter of Thomas Herrick, an Englishman who lost his wife on the voyage to America in 1725, leaving two daughters, the youngest not a year old. Mr. Stebbins, hearing that the latter had been left at Stratford to be adopted, rode down to that place, distant some forty miles, and brought her to New Milford, where he had her baptized and adopted her. These adopted children were:

- i. Sanford Stebbins, b. Nov. 27, 1733, son of Nathaniel and Bethia (Kirby) Sanford; d. April 1, 1757, "beloved of all men."
- ii. Rebecca Herrick Stebbins, bapt. Feb. 14, 1726, dau. of Thomas Herrick; m., Feb. 11, 1742, Gamaliel Baldwin, b. Sept. 11, 1716, son of Samuel Baldwin and Sarah Kirby. (See previous page.) The Giddings Genealogy contains a romantic account of her marriage, taken from the manuscript of her son-in-law Jonathan Giddings. According to this account she was beloved by her adopted brother, "who as he grew up with Rebecca became attached to her, but she loved him only as a brother and declined to marry him. This displeased Mr. Stebbins, and also the mother of the young man, and report says this was the cause of his not leaving her any of his property." Since her adopted brother was only eight years old at the time of her marriage, it is impossible to credit the first part of the above statement. If Rebecca received no part of her adopted father's estate, it is pleasant to know, from the manuscript of Jonathan Giddings, that she fared better at the hands of her own father. Thomas Herrick died about 1778, leaving a handsome property to be divided between her and her older sister; and she afterward had a fortune left her in England, only a portion of which, however, was obtained.

20. Bethiah³ Kirby (Joseph², John¹), born about 1698; married, 1721, as second wife, Nathaniel Sanford of Woodbury, Ct., born Oct. 10, 1682, son of Ephraim Sanford of Milford, Ct., and Mary Powell. [Ephraim Sanford of Milford, Ct., son of Thomas and Sarah Sanford of Guilford, Ct., was born May 17, 1646; died 1692. He married, Nov. 18, 1669, Mary Powell, baptized July 20, 1645, daughter of Thomas Powell of New Haven, Ct.] Nathaniel Sanford was first at Milford, Ct. About 1722 he settled in Southbury, then a part of Ancient Woodbury, Ct., where he died "Aug. 8, 1771, aged 89 years"—the date recorded upon his tombstone in White Oak cemetery in Southbury, Ct. The date of death of his wife Bethiah (Kirby) Sanford is unknown.

[Nathaniel Sanford's first wife was Deborah —, whom he married in 1710. She died in 1720. It is conjectured that she was Deborah Kirby, sister of his second wife, and so her children are here given: (1) Nathaniel; (2) Ebenezer; (3) Deborah, who married, June 25, 1739, in Southbury, Ct., Ebenezer Brownson, and had Olive, Sarah, Rachel, and Mary; (4) Sarah, who married, Aug., 1739, Caleb Olds of Southbury, Ct., and had Betty, who married, May 13, 1760, John Stiles; Daniel, and Isaac.]

Children of Nathaniel Sanford and Bethiah Kirby:

- i. Zachariah Sanford, b. Dec. 8, 1722, in Woodbury, Ct.; m., about 1760, Rachel Gould. He removed to New Milford in 1758, and became a rich and prominent citizen of that town. Together with his aunt, Mrs. Mary (Kirby) Stebbins, he purchased for £200 the land given by Benoni Stebbins in his will to the First Ecclesiastical Society. He was living in 1797. Children:
 1. Benoni Stebbins Sanford, b. March 5, 1762.
 2. Mary Sanford, b. Jan. 26, 1765.
 3. David Sanford, b. March 14, 1767.
- ii. Joseph Sanford, bapt. Oct. 29, 1726; d. March 14, 1778; m., Dec. 29, 1756, in Southbury, Ct., Ann Hickok, b. March 22, 1732; d. Sept. 17, 1826, aged ninety-four years, dau. of Stephen and Bethiah Hickok.
- iii. Mary Sanford, bapt. March 9, 1729; m. Andrew Coe, Sept. 18, 1748, in Southbury, Ct.
- iv. Hannah Sanford, b. May 5, 1731; d. Dec. 23, 1760; m.,

18. John³ Kirby (Joseph², John¹), only surviving son of Joseph Kirby and Sarah Markham, was born Feb. 16, 1691, in Middletown, Ct. He inherited a third part of his father's estate and added to the same, purchasing of his sisters their shares in the estate of his father and lands also which formerly belonged to his grandfather, John Kirby. He resided on or near his grandfather's homestead in that part of Middletown called until 1851 "Upper Houses," and now the town of Cromwell, where he became a large landholder and an influential man. His name is found in the list of taxable persons in the North Society, 1715; and he was a member of the Second Church, organized Jan. 5, 1715. From the tenor of his will it would appear that he was a careful and conscientious man, and given to detail and accuracy in business. He died in Middletown, Ct., April 25, 1760, aged sixty-nine. His will, dated April 9, 1759, is given below; but, on account of its great length, the careful details and repetitions are omitted:

Last Will and Testament of John Kirby of Middletown, filed in the Hartford Probate Court.

In the Name of God, Amen, I John Kirby of Middletown In the County of Hartford and Collony of Connecticut In New England being Sensiable of the Mortality of My body and uncertainty of the time of my Death, being Now well In health and of Sound Mind and Memory, thanks be Given to God therefor and being Desirous to Settle my Estate wch it hath pleased God to bless me with Do make and ordain this my Last Will and testament.

Imps. I give and bequeath unto Hannah my Dear and Well beloved Wife the use and Improvements of one half of My house and Barn where I now Dwell wch Half part she shall choose during her natural Life, and One third part of all other my personal Estate after my Daughter Eliza have recd of My personal Estate as much as One of her sisters had at their Marriage as by an Acct I kept with Some of them may appear.

Item. I give and bequeath to my Eldest Son Joseph Kirby all that land where he now lives including twenty Acres I have already given him by Deed of Gift, also ten acres of land at the East part of my about forty acre lot at the Mountain called Clarks Mountain, also one equal fourth part of a Hundred Acre Lot I bought of Mr. Danl Stocking at place calld the Ledges.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my 2d son John Kirby all that tract of Land where he Now lives includg what I have given him by deed of Gift—in the whole about two hundred acres he pay'g to each of his sisters, my daughters, viz; Hannah Sage, Sarah the wife of Saml Savage, Mary Johnson widow, Bethia the wife of Danl J. Stocking, Susannah the wife of Benjm Buckley and Eliza Kirby twenty pounds each.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my third son Danl Kirby all the remaindr of my tract of land at the Mountain called Clark's Mountain, also one equal half part of ten acres and a half of land I purchased of Mr. Joseph Wright and his wife at a place call'd the Stony Swamp. I also give to my sd son Danl Kirby one fourth part of that hundred acres at the Ledges I bought of Mr. Danl Stocking deceased.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son Thos. Kirby fifty acres of land with the appurtenances near where he lives as also nineteen acres of Land on the North Side of the highway near where he lives as also the fourth part of that lot of one hundred acres at the ledges, as also one half of sd ten and half acres bot of Mr. Jos. Wright at place call'd Stony Swamp.

Item. I give and bequeath to my youngest son Jonathan Kirby these followg ps of land, viz: twenty acres, nine acres thereof being what I bot wth my son Danl of Moses Willcox and eleven acres of sd twenty I bot of Jon^a Willcox. I also give my sd son one fourth part of that hundred acres at the ledges. I also give unto my sd son my house and barn where I live saving to his Mother one half during her natural life with a convenient garden plot. I also give to him my homested and all the meadows and upland where I now live. In that lot that was my grandfather John Kirby deceased supposed to be about twenty five acres whereas my grandfather Kirby to whom sd twenty five acres was laid in his last will and testament order that land should not be alienated and disposed of to no person but of the name and blood of the Kirbys, My will now is that my sd son Jon^a nor his heirs shall not dispose of sd land but to the name of the Kirbys and especially to those of the nearest of kindred. I also give and bequeath to my sd son Jonathan two thirds parts of all my moveable or personal Estate and in case my daughter Eliza be a single woman at my death and I shall not have given her household goods &c equal to any one of my other daughters, then my will is that he make up to her so much as to make her equal as aforesaid before the division is made between him and his mother.

Item. I give and bequeath to my sd daughters, viz, Hannah Sage, Sarah the wife of Saml Savage, Mary Johnson a widow, Bethia the wife of Danl Stockin, Sus^a the wife of Benj. Buckley and Eliza Kirby to each of them twenty pounds to be paid by my son John Kirby one half thereof in one year after my decease and the other half in two years.

And my will is that all other lands if any there be belonging to me be equally divided to and among all my sd Sons. And this I have accords to my best judgment and with good advice for the peace and wellfare of my children disposed of my Estate to and among them for their comfort, and I pray the God of peace to bless them wth a better blessg than the things of this world.

And I do hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my son John Kirby sole Executor of this my last will and testament, hereby ratifying this and in that part of Middletown now Middlefield, Ct. His father died three months prior to his birth. Before the end of his ninth year his mother married Captain Samuel Burgis of Guilford, Ct., and he removed with her to that place. He received a good common-school education, supplemented by an academic course, and afterward taught in Durham Academy, Wells Grammar School at Hartford, and elsewhere. In 1846 he removed to Middlefield, Ct., and settled upon the homestead of his father, and devoted himself to farming and surveying. He made a survey and map of Middlefield, with the necessary post routes, which was used successfully at Washington in securing the establishment of a post-office at Middlefield. Later, when it was set off as a town, in 1866, he was chosen assessor. He was a selectman, justice of the peace, and for more than thirty years deacon of the Congregational Church. In 1869 he was sent as representative to the General Assembly. He was the county member of the State Board of Agriculture for three years, from 1867 to 1869, and held the office of Pomologist from 1872 until his death. In 1876 he was delegated by the State Board of Agriculture to make a collection of Connecticut products for the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia. This exhibit from Connecticut was regarded as among the very best in its excellence, extent, and variety, being especially remarkable for the great number of fruits of Connecticut origin. He was also a life member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and Vice-President for Connecticut of the American Pomological and Horticultural Societies. He was also a frequent contributor to the leading agricultural publications. "This long period of service was marked by a faithfulness and persistence that rested upon a feeling of love and duty. Duty with him was a controlling principle of action. He loved pomology, not only for its own sake in its material relations to our health and happiness, but he saw there, in the beauty, in the healthfulness, of its products the loving kindness of our Heavenly Father. He saw in this pursuit a great safeguard against temptation, as offering pure happiness as far as earthly conditions would allow." (T. S. Gold, Secretary Connecticut Board of Agriculture.)

Mr. Augur took an active part in all matters of public interest or improvement, and endeavored to promote sentiment on the right side of public issues. He was a strong anti-slavery man, and at several different times sheltered and aided fugitive slaves in their escape for freedom. He always abstained from the use of intoxicants, and was a staunch advocate of temperance reform.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

He left the Republican party in 1884, and thereafter gave his influence and his vote to the Prohibition party. In 1886 he was the candidate of that party for Lieutenant-Governor, and in 1890 for Governor of his State. He died very suddenly of heart disease July 14, 1891, aged sixty-five years. His manners were courteous, cordial, and unassuming; his hospitality free-hearted, and his nature sympathetic. He was especially fond of little children, whom he always noticed wherever he met them. He was a faithful friend and a wise counsellor; one always knew where to find him, and he uttered no uncertain sound in questions of a social and moral character.

Phineas M. Augur married, May 7, 1846, Lucy Eliza Parmelee, born July 15, 1825, daughter of Jonathan Parmelee and Maria Dudley, both of Guilford, Ct. She died of cancer Jan. 4, 1895, aged sixty-nine years. Her daughter writes: "I never saw such an example of patience in suffering, of unquestioning faith in God and acquiescence in His will, as she manifested throughout her sickness. Her loving spirit and holy influence will linger long in the homes of her children."

44. v. Emily Kirby, bapt. Nov. 19, 1803; m. Francis L. Hawks.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

44. Emily⁶ Kirby (Abner⁵, Joseph⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), baptized Nov. 19, 1803, in New Haven, Ct., was married, Nov. 26, 1823, at New Haven, Ct., by the Rev. Dr. Harry Croswell, to Francis Lister Hawks. After four years of married life at the South, she died, in New Haven, Ct., July 12, 1827, aged twenty-three years. Francis L. Hawks, born June 10, 1798, in Newbern, N. C., was the second son of Francis Hawks and Julia Stephens, daughter of Richard Stephens of Ireland. His grandfather, John Hawks, came to North Carolina with Governor Tryon; they were warm personal friends in the old country, and they determined to share their fortunes in the new. He was educated as a lawyer, and it was while studying law at Litchfield, Ct., that he met his first wife, Emily Kirby, then visiting a friend at that place. In 1821, and before his first marriage, he was a member from Newbern of the North Carolina Assembly, where he attracted attention by his matchless eloquence. "Perhaps no orator ever possessed so wonderful a voice. It was pure, flexible, and perfect in tone, from the highest to the lowest possible human note. With his magical voice and action there was, too, a noble complement in the vivid thought of the speaker. He did not linger long enough at the bar to win its highest honors; but in holy orders, which he was shortly to assume, he became national in his fame." ("History of North Carolina," by John W. Moore, Vol. I., p. 487.) His heart was not really in the legal profession, and his young wife's declining health may have been the determining cause of his change of vocation. He resolved to become a candidate for orders in the Episcopal Church, and studied theology with Rev. William Mercer Greene, afterward Bishop Greene. He was ordered Deacon some time in 1827 by Bishop Ravenscroft, and afterward Priest by the same.

During his wife's last illness at New Haven he had become acquainted with her minister, the Rev. Harry Croswell, and the latter now urged him to become his associate. He accepted this invitation, and on April 25, 1829, he became assistant Rector of Trinity Church, New Haven, Ct. This position he resigned, not long after, to become Professor of Theology in Washington College (now Trinity College, Hartford). From this position he was soon called to become Rector of St. James' Church in Philadelphia, and the following year was called to New York City. He was Rector of the Church of St. Stephen, and then of St. Thomas, in New York City, from 1831 until 1843; of Christ Church, New Orleans, La., 1844-49; of Calvary Church, New York City, 1849-

62, and of Christ Church, Baltimore, 1862-65. In 1865 he returned to New York City, where he died Sept. 27, 1866. Dr. Hawks was thrice nominated, or elected, Bishop. At the General Convention of 1835 the House of Bishops nominated him Missionary Bishop of Louisiana and of the Territory of Arkansas and Florida. The nomination was concurred in by the House of Deputies, but Dr. Hawks declined the nomination. He was elected Bishop of Mississippi by the committee of that diocese, but in the General Convention of 1844 opposition was made; the opposition was withdrawn, but Dr. Hawks declined to be a candidate. In 1852 he was elected Bishop of Rhode Island, but declined the position. His second wife was Mrs. Olivia (Trowbridge) Hunt of Danbury, Ct., by whom he had six children.

46. George⁶ Kirby (Hezekiah⁵, Joseph⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born Feb. 24, 1791, in Middletown "Upper Houses." He resided first in Great Barrington, Mass., where his first child was born. In 1814 he removed to Nichols, Tioga County, N. Y., then a new settlement. He was a shoemaker and tanner, and labored industriously in his calling until a few years before his death. In his latter years he was very deaf, not having heard it thunder for many years. He married, in 1812, Frances Potter, born April 16, 1795, daughter of Job Potter of Alford, Mass., and Mary Bradley.

The following account of his singular marriage with Miss Potter has been furnished by Mrs. Jennie H. Ryan of Denver, Col., a granddaughter of George Kirby's only sister, Lucretia. "During a terrible New England snowstorm two or three coaches met at a farmhouse in the Berkshire Hills and were forced to stay until the storm abated. While the hospitable host and hostess did their utmost to entertain the elder guests, the younger ones were beguiled by the host's troop of rosy-cheeked daughters to play games and have a merry time generally. When all the games had been played, someone proposed a mock marriage. After a little discussion, they agreed to draw lots to see who should be the participants. The lots fell to George Kirby and Fanny Potter, both of whom had entered into the spirit of the evening with a keen zest; and they, notwithstanding they had never met before that night, announced themselves as ready and only waiting for a clergyman. One and another offered their services, but no one was able to remember the ceremony. Finally a 'seedy individual' was procured from some place, who knew the ceremony only too well, and they were soon pronounced man and wife amid the shouts and laughter of their gay companions. As soon as the storm broke the travellers proceeded on their way. But the surprise and indignation of all parties can better be imagined than described on receiving notice that the marriage was legal and binding. The 'seedy individual' was a magistrate! George Kirby, who was engaged to marry a very dear friend of his only sister, found himself in a very awkward position, and Miss Potter equally so. Consultation after consultation was held. Mr. Potter used all his influence to have the marriage set aside but to no avail. Divorces were not granted without a cause in those days, and the grim New England laws knew no such word as 'fun.' So they wisely made the best of a bad matter, and were man and wife in earnest as they had been in fun." George Kirby died Jan. 1, 1864, in Nichols, N. Y. Frances, his widow, died there April 5, 1872.

[Kies Lineage:

I. Joseph Kies came from Scotland about 1755, with his two brothers, and settled at Norwich, Ct. It is said that the original name was McKies. During the French and Indian War he enlisted and served under General Montgomery, and was at the siege and taking of Quebec in 1759. His two brothers also enlisted, and died during the war. A beautifully wrought powder-horn that was carried by each of the three brothers is now in the possession of Mr. George A. Kies of Clinton, Mich.

II. Joseph Kies, born, 1752, in Scotland, settled, with his father, at Norwich, Ct. He removed first to Woodstock, Ct., and afterward, in 1805, to Moravia, Cayuga County, N. Y., where he died Aug. 20, 1834.

III. Alpheus Kies, born April 18, 1788, in Woodstock, Ct.; married, Feb. 17, 1808, in Moravia, N. Y., Elizabeth Lazell. He removed to Clinton, Mich., Oct. 8, 1829, and was the founder of that town, which he named in honor of Governor De Witt Clinton. He died in Clinton, Mich., Oct. 6, 1864.

23. John⁴ Kirby (John³, Joseph², John¹), born Sept. 26, 1720, in Middletown "Upper Houses;" married (1), Dec. 31, 1747, Lucia Norton, born March 31, 1728, who died Dec. 6, 1758, aged thirty. He married (2), June 28, 1761, Ruth (Cornwell) Coleman, born Feb. 1, 1725, widow of Amos Coleman and daughter of Jacob Cornwell and Edith Whitmore. He was a farmer, and lived in that part of Middletown which is now a portion of the town of Berlin, Ct. He was one of the thirty-eight original members of the Second Church of Berlin, Ct. About 1786 he removed to Saratoga County, N. Y., and died in Ballston, March 27, 1789. Ruth Cornwell Kirby died Sept. 24, 1824, in her one hundredth year.

[Cornwell Lineage:

I. William Cornwell of Middletown, Ct., was at Roxbury 1634, and at Hartford 1639; removed early to Middletown, where he was deputy to the General Court in 1654, 1664, and 1665. He died at Middletown, Ct., Feb. 21, 1678, leaving widow Mary. His first wife was Joan, and probably the mother of his eight children.

II. Jacob Cornwell of Middletown, Ct., fourth son of William, born Sept., 1646; died April 18, 1708; married, Jan. 16, 1678, Mary White, born April 7, 1659, daughter of Captain Nathaniel White of Middletown (son of Elder John White of Hartford). They had ten children.

III. Jacob Cornwell of Middletown, Ct., eldest surviving son of the preceding, born Oct. 1, 1682; married, March 20, 1710, Edith Whitmore, born March 3, 1692, daughter of Lieutenant Francis Whitmore of Middletown, Ct., and Hannah Harris. (Lieutenant Francis Whitmore, born Oct. 12, 1650; died Sept. 9, 1700, was the eldest son of Francis Whitmore of Cambridge, and Isabel, daughter of Richard Park of Cambridge. He married, Feb. 8, 1675, Hannah, daughter of William Harris of Middletown, Ct.) He perished at sea, being cast away, Oct. 20, 1736. His wife Edith, with her two sons, Isaac and Nathaniel, were killed by lightning April 13, 1739.

IV. Ruth Cornwell, daughter of the preceding, born Feb. 1, 1725; married (1), March 2, 1749, Amos Coleman, by whom she had five children. Amos Coleman died Nov. 27, 1755, and her

 1. Lucy Kirby Beckley, b. 1800; m., Oct. 16, 1822, Lotan Beckley of Berlin, Ct.

55. Seth⁵ Kirby (John⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born May 13, 1751, in Middletown "Upper Houses;" married, Feb. 17, 1779, Olive Treat,* daughter of Isaac Treat of Glastonbury, Ct. In 1785 he removed to Saratoga County, N. Y., and began the settlement of the present town of Charlton, then a dense forest. He was known as "Deacon Kirby," and was a man of influence in church and military affairs. Before his marriage he had enlisted as a Revolutionary soldier, and had seen service in New Jersey, where, as a member of Colonel Sheldon's Regiment of Light Horse, he had guarded Washington's retreat in 1776. ("Connecticut Men in the War of the Revolution," by the Adjutant-General, p. 481.) His granddaughter (Mrs. Hewitt) says that he was made Lieutenant in 1783. He died in Charlton, N. Y., Jan. 2, 1825. Olive Treat Kirby died Jan. 4, 1817.

The "Troy Daily Times" published an account of the Kirby Centennial, held at Charlton, Oct. 1, 1885, from which the following interesting particulars have been taken:

"Five hundred people gathered at the Kirby homestead, Charlton, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1885, to celebrate the centennial anniversary of its settlement by Deacon Seth Kirby. Deacon Kirby came from Connecticut with his young wife and founded the homestead a mile north of Charlton village, this locality being at that time a dense forest. Like other pioneers, he erected a rude log cabin for a home and began the work of clearing away

* The Treat Genealogy, p. 40, gives only one daughter of Isaac Treat named Olive, and states that she died young. But that Isaac Treat had a second daughter named Olive is evident from the fact that, April 28, 1770, Olive Treat signs deed of Elisha Treat, son of Isaac; and that this daughter married Seth Kirby is shown by a comparison of the deed of Oct. 14, 1765, to Lucy Treat, daughter of Isaac, with that of Seth Kirby, and Olive his wife, dated March 17, 1785, to Samuel Treat, son of Isaac. (Glastonbury Deed Book, VI., p. 217, and Book IX., p. 186.)

the forest. His labors in this arduous task extended over 200 acres, which he afterward divided between his two sons. Captain Seth Kirby and Major Thomas Kirby, the latter inheriting the present Kirby homestead. The first frame house, which was erected in Charlton by Deacon Kirby, is still standing, and is used as a barn. He also erected the mansion, which has been rebuilt by the present owner, Colonel F. D. Curtis, who married the younger of the two daughters of Major Thomas Kirby. There are some notable features about the place, evidences of the thrift and enterprise of Deacon Kirby and his sons, such as grand old trees, which tower far above the house; a charming elevation on which the house stands, which was all made for the purpose; a well-preserved fourscore orchard, still bearing the best fruits of olden times, drains receiving and discharging the surplus waters; and every foot of fence on the old farm made of stone cicared from the land. The healing comfrey and the necessary hop-vine planted by Aunt Jude, a slave woman on the farm, who was made free by Deacon Kirby, every year remind the present owner of a history in New York now recalled but by a few, when slavery existed. It is not necessary perhaps to say that the Kirby homestead is now known world-wide as the home of an agricultural writer (Colonel F. D. Curtis). Mr. John F. Kirby and Mrs. Hewitt received the numerous guests and welcomed them to the home of their fathers. Rev. J. D. Fulton, of Brooklyn, N. Y., made the opening address, Mr. John F. Kirby spoke in a most appropriate and feeling manner of his ancestors and his boyhood days, and Colonel F. D. Curtis closed the speaking. A large number of the guests dined at the homestead, and in the evening the young people finished the festivities of the day with music and dancing."

58. John⁶ Kirby (Seth⁵, John⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born June 30, 1783, in that part of Middletown which is now the town of Berlin, Ct. He removed with his parents in 1785 to Charlton, N. Y., where his early life was spent on the farm of his father. He entered Union College in 1803, and graduated in 1807, distinguished as a scholar and respected as a man. After leaving college, he taught a year in the Academy at Aurora, N. Y., and was afterward a tutor in Union College from 1811 to 1815. Meanwhile he had studied theology, with the intention of entering the ministry; and in the autumn of 1815 he went to Newbury, Mass., to preach as a candidate. He was ordained, June 12, 1816, pastor of the church in the Third Parish of Newbury (now the Second Church of West Newbury), to succeed Dr. Leonard Woods, who had been called to Andover Theological Seminary.

“Mr. Kirby was predisposed to a disease of the lungs, and his health demanding a change, he left Newbury on Oct. 18, 1818, for his father's house in New York. By the urgent advice of his physician, he at length decided to journey to a more Southern climate, and sailed from New York on Dec. 1, 1818, for Charleston, S. C. The vessel was driven ashore upon Ocracoke bar, off the coast of North Carolina, on the night of Dec. 5, 1818. After the vessel was aground, the waves broke over her continually. In this hour of distress and danger the conduct of Mr. Kirby was perfectly calm. He employed himself in exhorting the men to trust in Christ, and while engaged in prayer was washed overboard. Mr. Kirby was rather distinguished for good sense and a sound judgment than for quickness of thought and brilliancy of imagination. As a public speaker, when he first commenced preaching, owing, it is supposed, to bodily debility and mental depression, there was a want of animation in his manner. He soon mended in this respect, however; and if he never became, strictly speaking, very eloquent, there was in his appearance such an evidence of sincerity, and such solemn engagedness, as recommended him to the consciences of the people, and deservedly ranked him among the most acceptable and interesting preachers. Mr. Kirby is remembered to this day with great affection and respect by the older people of the parish. He was never married. He published one sermon, preached at the Dedication of the Meeting House in the Second Parish in West Newbury, January 3,

The "Columbian Centinel" of Jan. 30, 1819, contained the following lines:

Tributary to the memory of the Rev. John Kirby, ordained June, 1816, preached in the Third Parish in Newbury, and was shipwrecked on Ocra-coke Bar, near Charleston, S. C., to which place he was going for his health.

Ah! te meæ ripartem animæ rapit.
Maturior vis, quid moror altera,
Nec corus æque nec superstes Integer.

Kirby, 'twas thine religion's cause to plead,
And, by thy skilful efforts, to succeed,
In thee, as in thy Master, men might view
At once the precept and the pattern too.
Dark speculation's mysteries thou didst drop:
Careful to know, yet conscious where to stop,
Consistent, holy, tender, meek, sincere,
Vice had thy mild rebuke, and grief thy tear,
But, oh, thy useful labors now are o'er:
That tongue that warned us once shall warn no more.
What tears of love and reverence have been shed,
Since the cold billows closed around thy head!
Go, parting spirit, mingle with the blest;
Dear modest brother, go and be at rest;—
If Jesus loveliness in John could see,
Resembling him, to heaven he welcomes thee.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

70. Zebulon⁵ Kirby (Thomas⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹) of Stockbridge, Mass., was born Feb. 25, 1766, in Middletown "Upper Houses." At first he followed the sea; was a captain, and ran a schooner in the West India trade. While in the West Indies he contracted the yellow fever. He recovered, but thereafter abandoned a sea-faring life. In May, 1803, he removed with his family from Middletown to the Berkshire Mountains, and bought a place situated about a mile and a half west of the village of Stockbridge, Mass. This place he afterward sold, and purchased a farm on the west margin of the mountain lake, of clear, deep water, one mile wide and two miles long, at the upper end of the Stockbridge valley, in full view of the village of Lenox. It was an attractive farm to live upon, and the family still retain it.

He married, May 3, 1795, in Middletown, Ct., Louisa Gibson, born March 21, 1772, daughter of John Gibson of Middletown and Stockbridge and Joanna Crowfoot. He died Aug. 16, 1821, in Stockbridge, Mass. Louisa Gibson Kirby died Aug. 24, 1853, aged eighty-one. Both were buried in Middletown, Ct.

86. Timothy⁶ Kirby (Zebulon⁵, Thomas⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹) of Cincinnati, O., was born Nov. 16, 1797, in Middletown "Upper Houses." He removed, with his father, in 1803, to Stockbridge, Mass., where he entered a woollen factory and learned the trade of manufacturing broadcloth, and afterward studied at Lenox Academy. When about seventeen years of age he removed to Ohio, going down the Allegheny and Ohio rivers on a raft bound for Cincinnati. He first taught school at Eaton, O., and then became a student in the Cincinnati College. After leaving college he entered the office of General William Lytle, then surveyor of the Military Land District of Ohio, and remained with him seven years. About 1825 Mr. Kirby studied law with Joseph S. Burnham, and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court at the May term, 1827. His practice as a lawyer, however, was limited, for he soon after returned to the land business.

In 1828 he received from the Philadelphia Board of Directors of the Bank of the United States the appointment of land agent at their Cincinnati agency, subordinate to George W. Jones, agent; and in 1836 he was appointed agent, and continued to act as such through all the changes and subsequent trusts until the business was closed up and the proceeds remitted. During this long period a very large amount of land and other business was done.

Timothy Kirby.

In all the conveyancing Mr. Kirby devised simple, logical, and exact modes of describing lands, making his descriptions new and original and free from complication. This improvement saved infinite trouble and loss of time, and has had a good effect upon the land records of Cincinnati. His care in perfecting titles inspired confidence in those connected with him in business, and this circumstance, together with the banking business which he also carried on, enabled him to speedily amass a fortune. He died June 10, 1876, in Cincinnati, O., leaving an estate worth between two and three millions.

Timothy Kirby married, Feb. 11, 1826, in Clermont, O., Amelia (Metcalf) Hare, born 1804, daughter of John Metcalf of Virginia, and widow of John Hare. She died Jan. 2, 1867.

From Mr. Kirby's autobiography in "Cincinnati, Past and Present," published 1872, have been taken the following passages illustrative of his tastes and character:

In a literary way I make no pretensions, although always a student. My preferences have generally been for scientific books, and works giving facts and useful knowledge. I have always taken great interest in geology, and twenty years ago I matured my theory of north and south currents sufficiently to prepare an article on the subject for Silliman's Journal of Science; but the editor rejected my article as taking untenable ground. All known facts, and subsequent discoveries, tend decisively in my opinion to confirm my views, then written out, as correct and true. Indeed nothing short of a system of north and south currents in the oceans, during all past time, could have laid down such immense depths of stratified rocks. The great public, however, care very little about matters of this sort. I found that out in my project of boring an Artesian well, beginning in the Cincinnati Valley and going down five hundred and fifty feet, which added to the six hundred feet above, to the level of the surrounding country, makes a total depth through the stratified rocks of the Cincinnati valley of over eleven hundred feet. To my appreciation I discovered things of the utmost interest to the public, but the public did not think so, and my Artesian well has never been commended by any one of the thirty newspapers of the city, nor have I been thanked for making the expenditure, or requested to write out a detail of the strata passed through.

My zeal has probably outrun my discretion on the subject of the manufacturing interests of the country, which I have always believed Congress should protect by a stringent tariff, or by non-intercourse in the way of imports. And I have devoted a great deal of time to talking and writing on our side of the question, as I have always considered the free trade side as the side of the foreign enemy. Whether my efforts have done any good I am not sure, but I think they have; and, if so, I am well repaid. Helping to put down the false dogma that the people gain by having their work done in a foreign country, has been an agreeable task to me.

My connection with the land business of Cincinnati has drawn my attention, during a long series of years, to the street improvements of the city. From an early day it was the general practice to elect as Street Commissioners, men the least adapted to the office of improving streets; and the result was, miserable street pavements, detestable ditch gutters, and wretched curb-stones, so put as to topple over. From time to time as I could do so I made efforts to introduce better plans, verbally and by newspaper articles. I pressed the Philadelphia plan of sloped curb-stones and right angled gutters, and pavements laid flat from curb to curb. It is most astonishing to me to look back at the perverse obstinacy of the Street Boards in resisting so simple a plan for so many years. They seemed to take delight in tearing up some squares I had paved on the right plan twenty years before, and putting in their detestable ditch gutters. But now the new pavements are admirable, and I give the late Boards full credit for the improvement.

I am now an old man, and consider there is no egotism in writing in although at earlier periods I was sufficiently retired. From the time I went to work in the factory I of my own earning without gift or aid from any always left me with a surplus, however small my life has passed for nearly sixty years without gain and success.

As to my family, I was married to Amelia Metcalf Hare, widow of John Hare, February 11, 1826. My wife was six years younger than I. She was the daughter of John Metcalf of Clermont County, Ohio. We lived happily together a great many years, and she was an excellent woman. We had eight children, of whom only four survive. My wife died January 2, 1867.

Children of Timothy Kirby and Amelia Metcalf Hare, born in Cincinnati, O.:

- i. Louisa Kirby, b. Nov. 26, 1826; m., Aug. 16, 1847, Donn Piatt, b. June 29, 1819, in Cincinnati, O., son of Judge Benjamin M. Piatt of Cincinnati and Elizabeth Barnett. He enlisted as private at the first call for volunteers in April, 1861, and was elected Captain of the Thirteenth Ohio Volunteers. June 28, 1861, he was appointed Chief of Staff to Gen. Robert C. Schenck, in which position he served for three years, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, resigning in June, 1864, on account of the declining health of his wife. He was in the first battle of Bull Run and in the engagement at Cross Keys. After the war he represented Logan County in the Ohio Legislature, 1865; was correspondent at Washington, D. C., for the "Cincinnati Commercial," 1867-71, and editor of the "Washington Capital," 1871-90.

- Louisa Kirby Piatt died Oct. 2, 1864. "She was a woman of much beauty, of an ardent temperament, of refined culture and rare literary talent." Col. Donn Piatt m.  92. viii. Julia Kirby, b. May 10, 1846; m. Henry B. Banning.

91. Byron⁷ Kirby (Timothy⁶, Zebulon⁵, Thomas⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born Feb. 8, 1829, in Cincinnati, O. At the beginning of the Civil War he enlisted as a private; was soon promoted Second Lieutenant, and served on the staff of General Rosecrans until severely wounded at the battle of Stone River; was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Maryland Cavalry, and acted as Colonel of the regiment until the close of the war. He was a lawyer, and lived in Cincinnati, O., where he died of pneumonia, Nov. 29, 1881. At the time of his death he was a member of the Board of Councilmen. He married Bridget Clarke, by whom he had four children:

- i. Timothy Clarke Kirby, b. Aug., 1867; is an attorney-at-law in Cincinnati, O.
- ii. Julia Kirby, b. Aug., 1869.
- iii. Louisa Kirby, b. Oct., 1875.
- iv. Ella Kirby, b. Nov., 1881.

92. Julia⁷ Kirby (Timothy⁶, Zebulon⁵, Thomas⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born May 10, 1846, at "Kirby Castle," Cummins-ville, O., near Cincinnati; married, Sept. 9, 1868, in Clifton, O., General Henry Blackstone Banning, born Nov. 10, 1836, in Banning's Mills, Knox County, O., son of James and Eliza Banning, and grandson of the Rev. Anthony Banning, who emigrated to Ohio from Virginia. He was graduated from Knox College, Ohio, and practised law in Mt. Vernon, O., until the commencement of the Civil War. He enlisted in the Union Army, and was elected Captain of Company B, Fourth Ohio Volunteers. He served throughout the war, and was at different times commissioned Major of the Fifty-second Ohio Volunteers, Major of the Eighty-seventh Ohio Volunteers, Lieutenant-Colonel of the 125th Ohio Volunteers, and Colonel of the 121st Ohio Volunteers. He commanded the latter regiment at the battle of Chickamauga and throughout the Atlanta campaign. During the battle of Chickamauga, in a bayonet charge, his regiment captured the battle-flag of the Twenty-second Alabama—the only colors taken by the Union troops on that bloody and disastrous field. He was promoted Brevet Brigadier-General, and afterward brevetted Major-General.

At the close of the war he was mustered out of service to take his seat in the Ohio Legislature, to which he had previously been elected from Knox County. In 1872 he was elected to represent the Second District of Ohio in the Forty-third Congress, and subsequently was re-elected to the Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Congresses. In 1868 he married Miss Kirby, and removed his law office to Cincinnati, where he died Dec. 10, 1881, aged forty-five years. Children:

1806; Jeremiah Goodrich, b. Oct. 16, 1808; Enoch, b. Feb. 19, 1811; d. March 15, 1832.]

Captain Ralph Smith and Mary Kirby had one child:

98. i. Thomas Kirby Smith, b. March 18, 1817; m. Mary F. Hickman.

98. Thomas Kirby⁶ Smith (Mary Kirby⁵, Thomas⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born March 18, 1817, in Middle Haddam, Ct. He removed in 1835 to the State of Louisiana, and for five years was engaged as assistant civil engineer in making surveys for the first railroad in that State. In 1840 he removed to Alexandria, La., to take charge of a railroad belonging to his brother, Ralph Smith, which ran from Alexandria through the sugar district of Rapides County, a distance of fifteen miles. At that time he owned, in partnership with his brother Ralph, the steamboat "Rapides," which made weekly trips from New Orleans to Natchitoches. This boat was afterward in the possession of the Confederate Army. He took no active part in the Civil War. During the latter part of the war he was collector of "tax in kind" for the Southern Army. By the war he lost his slaves, valued at $40,000, and also much movable property, including 100 bales of cotton, on which he afterward recovered $8,000. His residence at Alexandria, La., was also destroyed by fire when the town was burned by the Union Army. In 1869 he bought a cotton plantation on Red River, about twenty miles above Alexandria, La., on which he lived, engaged in cotton planting.

Thomas Kirby Smith was married, Oct. 5, 1852, in Alexandria, La., to Mary Felonise Hickman, born Jan. 7, 1834, daughter of William Preston Hickman (born in Rockingham, N. C., son of William Hickman of Virginia and Mary Webster) and Mariana Baillio, both of Louisiana. She died Nov. 11, 1879. He died Jan. 20, 1896, at Boyce, Rapides County, La. Children:

100. William Redfield⁶ Stocking (Seth Stocking⁵, Bethiah Kirby⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born June 24, 1810, in Middletown "Upper Houses;" married, Dec., 1836, Jerusha Emily Gilbert, born Nov. 5, 1809, in Easton, Ct., daughter of Ezra Gilbert and Rebecca Minor of Colebrook, Ct. He studied at Monson Academy, Monson, Mass., and was nearly fitted to enter Yale College when an urgent call went out from the missionary house in Boston for teachers for the Sandwich Islands, whereupon he gave up further study and offered himself to the American Board as a teacher for these islands. Soon after there was a call for a principal for the boys' seminary in Persia, and Mr. Stocking was chosen to fill this position. In Jan., 1837, he was set apart as a missionary teacher to the Nestorians, and went with his wife to Oroomiah, Persia. He was for a while the principal of the boys' seminary, but soon took charge of the village schools, and kept that work as long as he lived in Persia. He was also the treasurer of the mission for fourteen years. Having preached for some time in the village churches in the native language, and in an acceptable manner, he was ordained, April 18, 1841, in the Nestorian Church of St. Mary in the city of Oroomiah, by an ecclesiastical council consisting of the other missionaries. He seldom preached in the English language, saying, when asked, that he was ordained to preach in Syriac. He returned to America in the autumn of 1853, intending to return in two years, but died April 30, 1854, in New York City, and was buried in Colebrook, Ct.

Mrs. Jerusha Gilbert Stocking graduated from the Hartford Female Seminary, and taught in Middletown "Upper Houses," where she met her future husband. Immediately after her marriage she went to Persia, where she remained seventeen years, one year of that time being spent on the outward and homeward journey—six months each way. She had wanted to become a missionary from her childhood, and was always very much devoted to the missionary cause. She died June 28, 1892, in Alameda, Cal. Her granddaughter writes: "She lived with us the last seven years of her life. She was the sweetest, most unselfish woman I ever saw. Everyone who knew her loved her. She seemed to create a heavenly atmosphere everywhere she went." Children, born in Oroomiah, Persia:

[Bulkeley Lineage:

I. Rev. Peter Bulkeley, Concord, Mass., born Jan. 31, 1583, son of Edward Bulkeley, D.D., of Odell, Co. Bedford, England, was first minister of Concord, Mass., installed April 6, 1637, and died in office March 9, 1659; married (1) Jane Allen; married (2) Grace Chitwood, daughter of Sir Richard Chitwood.

II. Rev. Gershom Bulkeley, Wethersfield, Ct., son of Rev. Peter Bulkeley and Grace Chitwood, born Dec. 6, 1636; died Dec. 2, 1713; married, Oct. 26, 1659, Sarah Chauncy, born Jan. 13, 1631; died June 3, 1699, daughter of President Charles Chauncy of Harvard College.

III. Edward Bulkeley, Wethersfield, Ct., second son of preceding, born 1673; died Aug. 27, 1748; married Dorothy Prescott, born May 31, 1681, daughter of Captain Jonathan Prescott of Concord, Mass., and Elizabeth Hoar.

IV. Charles Bulkeley, Wethersfield, Ct., son of preceding, born March 25, 1703; married, May 28, 1724, Mary Sage, born April 9, 1699, daughter of John Sage of Middletown, Ct. (son of John Sage and Elizabeth Kirby), and Hannah Starr. See page 20.

V. Benjamin Bulkeley, Wethersfield, born 1725, third son of preceding; married, Nov. 9, 1757, Susanna Kirby.—Bulkeley Genealogy, p. 101.]

31. Jonathan⁴ Kirby (John³, Joseph², John¹), born about 1736 in Middletown "Upper Houses." He is mentioned in his father's will as "my youngest son Jonathan"; but there is no record of his birth, and the date of his baptism is unknown. In the "Record Book," begun by the Rev. Edward Eells, and which contains: "An account of those baptized by the Rev. Joseph Smith and others which are not found upon record, as I received them from their parents by their families," is found under "John Kirby's children" the following entry: "Jonathan Kirby, Bapt'd by Mr. Mix." (Mr. Mix is undoubtedly the Rev. Stephen Mix, pastor of the church at Wethersfield, Ct., 1693-1738. Rev. Joseph Smith died Sept. 8, 1736, and the neighboring pastors officiated until the coming of his successor, the Rev. Edward Eells, who was ordained Sept. 6, 1738.) He inherited the Kirby homestead in that part of Middletown which is now the western part of the town of Cromwell, together with the meadows and upland adjoining, "in the lot that was his great-grandfather's," and lived there until his death.

He was an ardent patriot, and saw active service as a minuteman during the War of the Revolution. His granddaughter, Mrs. Sarah J. (Stowe) Ashton, gave to the compiler the following account of his Revolutionary services, which she received from her mother, Lucy Kirby Stowe: "During the Revolutionary War, Jonathan Kirby was one of the minute-men, and kept a horse in the stable, with saddle and bridle near, to be ready at once. His wife had his saddle bags packed, and any time she saw him coming quickly toward the house she brought them out and put up a lunch for him. He was at Guilford when the British came in there, also at New London when Benedict Arnold burned the town, and at other places which I have forgotten."

Jonathan Kirby married, March 1, 1769, Lucy Burgis, born Oct. 13, 1742, daughter of Thomas Burgis of Guilford, Ct., and Hannah Dodd. She was "a woman of personal attractions, winning manners and great energy of character." She died Feb. 28, 1817, aged seventy-four years. He died May 5, 1782, "in the 46th year of his age" (gravestone). His death was caused by a fall from the barn scaffold, resulting in brain fever. Children:

- i. Lucy Kirby, b. July 20, 1770; d. Oct. 12, 1772.
- ii. Olive Kirby, b. Feb. 20, 1772; d. Dec. 20, 1787.
- 103. iii. Elisha Kirby, b. Oct. 13, 1774; m. Betsy Spencer.
- 104. iv. Lucy Kirby, b. Oct. 1, 1776; m. Obed Stowe.

103. Elisha⁵ Kirby (Jonathan⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born Oct. 13, 1774, in Middletown "Upper Houses;" married, Nov. 2, 1800, Betsy Spencer, baptized Oct. 3, 1779, daughter of Samuel Spencer and Martha Eells, both of Middletown, Ct. A sister of Betsy Spencer, Lucy, married Giles Kirby, and another sister,

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN KIRBY

Sally, married Joseph Morgan of West Springfield, Mass., the grandfather of Mr. James J. Goodwin of New York City. The latter writes of Mrs. Elisha Kirby: "I recollect her as a sweet, even-tempered and most amiable old lady." Elisha Kirby followed at first the occupation of farming, living in Middletown and Guilford, Ct. Afterward he kept the "Washington House" in Middletown, Ct., which then occupied the spot where the "McDonough Hotel" now stands. In July, 1846, he had taken up his residence in New Haven, Ct., where he died Feb. 18, 1868, at the advanced age of ninety-three years. Betsy Spencer Kirby died, in New Haven, Dec. 20, 1859, aged eighty years. Children:

[Eells Lineage:

I. John Eells came from Barnstable, England, to New England, and settled at Dorchester; made freeman May 14, 1634; had son Samuel, born in Dorchester 1639, and soon afterward returned to Barnstable, England. There is a record that "Thomas Allen of Barnstable, Mass. in New England sells to John Eells of Dorchester, N. E., July 8, 1641, a house and garden in Bowport Street in Barnstable, Co. Devon, Eng."

II. Major Samuel Eells, born June 23, 1639, in Dorchester, Mass., was taken back to England by his father. It is said that while in England he was a major in Cromwell's army. (See "Biography of Rev. Cushing Eells," p. 15.) He returned to New England about 1661, and settled at Milford, Ct., where he practised law and was prominent in public affairs; was deputy to General Court, 1667-68, and from 1681 until his removal to Hingham. During King Philip's war he was Captain of Militia, and in 1675 commanded a garrison at Russell's Mills in Dartmouth, Mass. Thomas Church, in his "History of King Philip's War," page 51, says: "Captain Eells of Russell garrison immortalized his name by his opposition to the diabolical acts of the government in selling the prisoners as slaves." See also Brownell's "Indian Races of America," page 242. Major Eells removed to Hingham, Mass., about 1689, where he was a magistrate and representative, 1705 and 1706. He died at Hingham, April 21, 1709. He married (1), Aug. 1, 1663, Ann Lenthal, daughter of the Rev. Robert Lenthal of Weymouth, Mass. She died at Milford, Ct., in Feb., 1687; and he married (2), Aug. 22, 1689, Sarah, widow of Edward North of Boston, who died in 1711 at Scituate, Mass. Children:

106. William⁶ Kirby (Elisha⁵, Jonathan⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born July 2, 1805, in Middletown "Upper Houses;" entered Yale College 1823, and graduated 1827, with one of the highest honors of his class. In 1828 he entered upon his theological studies in the Divinity School at Yale. The same year, in December, a band of theological students was formed for the purpose of going to Illinois to preach the Gospel and found an institution of learning in that State. "The individuals who first gave in their names were Mason Grosvenor, Theron Baldwin, J. M. Sturtevant, Elisha Jenny, William Kirby, John F. Brooks and Asa Turner. These, with five others, formed the 'Illinois Association,' or Illinois Band, as it afterward came to be called. The Rev. J. M. Ellis was at that time trying to plant an institution of learning in Jacksonville, Ill., and correspondence with him led them to unite their efforts with his. The result was Illinois College." ("Asa Turner and His Times," p. 60.)

Having completed his theological studies, he was ordained March 22, 1831, in Guilford, Ct., and immediately proceeded to Jacksonville, Ill., where he entered temporarily upon the work of teaching in Illinois College. In this situation he continued two years, during which time his constitution experienced, from the constant confinement and exhausting labors of the school-room, and from obstinate and protracted attacks of intermittent fever, a shock from which it never entirely recovered. The state of his health, as well as his constantly cherished intention of preaching the Gospel, led him to seek the work of the ministry.

In the spring of 1833 he commenced his labors as a preacher and pastor with a Presbyterian Church at Union Grove, Putnam County, Ill. The elements of discord between the Old School and the New School parties, which at that time were rife everywhere in the Presbyterian churches, were active in the church at Union Grove, and at the end of a year he sought another field of labor at Blackstone's Grove, Will County, Ill. "Here Mr. Kirby and his family had an experience of the hardships of frontier missionary life, such as has fallen to the lot of few even of the pioneers in the Home Missionary enterprise. His people were a community of farmers, the most prosperous of whom had hardly been a year and a half upon their farms. To supply a family regularly with such a necessity as wheat flour was out of the question. A bushel of corn meal made a family feel rich. Mr. Kirby had the privilege of buying corn, at a distance of eight miles from his residence, for $1.50 a bushel, provided he would be at the trouble of shelling it for himself. In the circumstances it was considered a privilege to be thus supplied. He might then carry his corn eight miles in another direction to mill. Unable to get it ground on the day on which he carried it, he might return to his home, eight miles distant, and go again a journey of eight miles and back for his meal, and when he reached home rejoice with his family in the possession of so rich a treasure. His nearest post office was Chicago, at a distance of twenty-eight miles." (From the published "Sermon Commemorative of the Life and Labors of the Rev. William Kirby," by J. M. Sturtevant, D.D.)

The Rev. Flavel Bascom of Illinois related to the compiler the following account of some of the difficulties attending the lot of Mrs. Kirby while a home missionary's wife at Blackstone Grove: "In 1834 I removed to Illinois with my young wife, and visited Mr. Kirby to consult with him as to the place where I had better begin my missionary work. I found him living in a little cabin at Blackstone's Grove. We were cordially welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, and the latter began to prepare dinner for us. I remember that she made some biscuits and set them to bake in a Dutch oven before a rude fireplace built in the open air. The pigs, which were running wild, ran against the oven and scattered the half-baked biscuits over the prairie. Mrs. Kirby with admirable good nature rolled out another batch of biscuits, and late in the afternoon we sat down to an acceptable dinner."

After enduring these hardships and labors for about a year and a half, Mr. Kirby, who was a trustee of Illinois College and deeply interested in its welfare, sought a field of labor nearer Jacksonville, Ill., and became pastor of the church at Mendon, Ill., in May, 1836. The month previous to his settlement at Mendon, in company with the Rev. Asa Turner of Quincy, Ill., he visited the "Black Hawk purchase," as the eastern part of the present State of Iowa was then called. They crossed the Mississippi at Warsaw, Ill., and proceeded up the river as far as Davenport. "On the journey of discovery Mr. Kirby preached at Farmington, or Burlington, the first Congregational sermon in Iowa." They recrossed the Mississippi at Davenport, and proceeded down the east side of the river. In a letter the Rev. Mr. Turner relates their subsequent journey as follows: "I crossed the river and made my way down the East side, forded the wider part of Rock River, and as the water was deep got quite wet. The sun was just going down as I got to the South bank. There was a house nine miles below which I hoped to find, and with it supper and bed, but missed my way—took the dragoon trace, with the moon as my guide, keeping the right hand of this and struck the timber in the morning opposite the mouth of the Iowa River forty miles from my fording place. The log cabin we found in the timber was about twelve feet square. There were sixteen in it already, but a log cabin in those days was never full. The woman had three in her bed, and two in a bed supported by sticks driven into augur holes in the wall. She got up and took one child off the floor to her bed and the other to the patent bedstead, to make room for brother Kirby and myself to lie on the floor. Brother Kirby went down on the Illinois side." ("Asa Turner and His Times," pp. 170, 171.)

Mr. Kirby was a delegate to the first Anti-Slavery Convention held in Illinois, which assembled at Upper Alton, Oct. 26, 1837, only a few days before the murder of the Rev. E. P. Lovejoy, and took a prominent part in its proceedings. He was chairman of the committee on resolutions, and a member of the committee that drew up the Constitution of the State Anti-Slavery Society, which was formed at this convention.

Intimately associated with Mr. Turner in the beginning of Congregationalism in Iowa, Mr. Kirby continued to take a lively interest in the new Congregational churches in that Territory. When, in 1840, a convention was held in Denmark, Ia., to organize an "Association of Congregational Churches in and for the Territory of Iowa," he was one of the three ministers who came as delegates from Illinois to assist in the organization of the new Association. In 1845 he resigned his charge at Mendon, Ill., and entered upon the general agency of the American Home Missionary Society, at first for the whole State, and subsequently for the central and southern portions of Illinois. In this agency he spent the remainder of his life, and in the midst of its active and laborious duties he died. He died of pneumonia, Dec. 20, 1851, at Winchester, Ill.

Rev. William Kirby married, Nov. 28, 1832, at Jacksonville, Ill., Hannah McClure Wolcott, born June 7, 1811, at East Windsor, Ct., daughter of Elihu Wolcott and Rachel McClure. Hannah Wolcott Kirby died Aug. 31, 1858, in Jacksonville, Ill. Children:

111. Edward Payson⁷ Kirby (William⁶, Elisha⁵, Jonathan⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born Oct. 28, 1833, at Blackstone's Grove, Will County, Ill., in, or near, the town of Hadley, Ill.; graduated from Illinois College, 1854; principal of the Jacksonville High School, 1854-62; admitted to the bar, 1862; Judge of Morgan County, Ill., 1873-82; member of the Thirty-eighth Illinois Legislature, 1890-92, and is now practising law in Jacksonville, Ill. He married, Oct. 28, 1862, Julia Smith Duncan, born May 28, 1837, in Jacksonville, Ill., daughter of the Hon. Joseph Duncan, fifth Governor of the State of Illinois (born Feb. 22, 1794, in Paris, Ky., son of Major Joseph Duncan and Ann McLaughlin, daughter of Robert McLaughlin and Masea King), and Elizabeth Caldwell Smith, daughter of James R. Smith of New York City and Hannah Caldwell, daughter of Rev. James Caldwell, the revolutionary chaplain and patriot of Elizabeth, N. J. Having no children, Mrs. Kirby devoted herself, so far as they came within her sphere, to the varied interests of her native city. Sprung from an ancestry distinguished for their patriotism, it was natural that she should also become deeply interested in the patriotic societies which have lately been founded to further the love of our country. She was a member of the Colonial Dames resident in Illinois, and one of the Vice-Presidents of that order; a member also of the United States Daughters of 1812, in which she took a special interest on account of the memory of her father, who participated, as Ensign, in the heroic defence of Fort Stephenson, 1813. She was also an enthusiastic member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and it was through her efforts that "The Rev. James Caldwell" Chapter of this society was organized in Jacksonville, Ill., of which chapter, at the time of her death, she was Regent.

Mrs. Julia Duncan Kirby died July 5, 1896, in Jacksonville, Ill., in the house in which she was born, greatly lamented by a wide circle of friends. With unaffected sympathy for every class of people, with generous words and willing hands to befriend all who needed help, she so identified herself with the interests, the institutions, the very life of the city in which she had always lived, that her death seemed like a personal loss to the whole community. This sad event called forth unusual expressions of grief, and messages of sympathy from distant places, which have been collected and published.

Judge Edward P. Kirby married (2). Oct. 20, 1898, in Jacksonville, Ill., Lucinda Gallaher, born May 17, 1855, in Morgan County, Ill., daughter of the Rev. William Green Gallaher of Jacksonville, Ill., and Sarah Kautz.

112. William Arthur⁷ Kirby (William⁶, Elisha⁵, Jonathan⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹) of Jacksonville, Ill.; born Aug. 6, 1837, in Mendon, Ill. He was a student in Illinois College, but did not complete his course of studies. Upon the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted as a private, April 16, 1861, in Company B, Tenth Illinois Volunteers, and was the first one to volunteer in Morgan County; was promoted, Oct. 1, 1861, to First Sergeant of Company G, First Missouri Cavalry; Dec. 17, 1863, was commissioned Second Lieutenant, Company A, Sixth Missouri Volunteers, and Feb. 18, 1864, was commissioned Captain of the same Company. He took part in the battle of Pea Ridge, Mo., and was in several other engagements. As senior Captain, he commanded his regiment for six months before the mustering out, and as such led his regiment into the Indian Territory, in June, 1865, to participate in the surrender of General E. Kirby Smith. At this time he took possession of the arsenal at Shreveport, La., with 125 pieces of cannon and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition. He was honorably discharged Sept. 12, 1865, having served continuously for a period of four years and five months. After the war he settled at South Pass, Ill., and engaged for some time in fruit raising, but afterward returned to Jacksonville, where for several years he was Town Clerk. He is now living in Jacksonville, Ill.

108. Eliab Burgis⁶ Kirby (Elisha⁵, Jonathan⁴, John³, Joseph², John¹), born Aug. 16, 1816, in Middletown, Ct.; married Sept. 1, 1858, Caroline Lydia Noyes, born May 4, 1828; daughter of Daniel R. Noyes of Lyme, Ct., and Phœbe Griffin Lord. He was one of the early pioneers in Illinois, settling first in Scott County, at Winchester, where he became the leading merchant and principal promoter of that place. From Winchester he removed to St. Louis, Mo., and was one of the partners of Collins, Kellogg & Kirby, wholesale dry goods merchants. After the dissolution of the firm during the Civil War, he engaged in the pork-packing and commission business. He was a well-known member of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis, and one of the founders of the Merchants' Exchange Mutual Benefit Association. He was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church of St. Louis, and was active in its work during its early history. He died Dec. 27, 1896, in St. Louis, Mo., in his eighty-first year, from an abscess in the ear, aggravated by exposure while on a hunting expedition.

The following resolutions of respect were adopted by the Board of Directors of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis in memory of Mr. E. B. Kirby:

"Language cannot do justice to the memory of E. B. Kirby, the grand old man who represented a class of men fast becoming extinct. Brave, self-reliant, temperate in all his habits, well educated, a close thinker; a persistent, aggressive man in the performance of all the duties of life; the courage of a lion when opposed; warm-hearted and generous to a fault; thoroughly honest in all his dealings; a steadfast Christian; patriotic almost to a craze; an honest politician; a pure-minded man; a good husband, father, and citizen; a progressive and energetic merchant; a loyal member of the Exchange—he was an honor to his race, and his death leaves a void hard to replace, and all who knew him mourn.

"Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved wife and sons. We direct a copy of this report, signed by the President and Secretary of the Merchants' Exchange, to be sent to the bereaved family.

i. Frank Bustow Ashton, b. March 7, 1858, in Middletown, Ct.; m., May 24, 1880, Martha A. Pease. One child:

1. Sarah Steuben Ashton, b. Oct. 24, 1888.

ii. Martha Stowe Ashton, b. March 22, 1860; not married.

AN ACCOUNT OF SOME OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOSEPH KIRBY OF HARTFORD CONNECTICUT

1. Joseph¹ Kirby of Hartford, Ct. All that is positively known concerning him is derived from the gravestone erected to the memory of his great-grandson, Abraham Kirby of Middlebury, Ct. (See page 169.) From the inscription upon this gravestone we learn that he came from Warwickshire, England, to New England, early in the seventeenth century, and was at Hartford, Ct., about the time of its first settlement. His name, however, does not appear upon the records of Hartford, Ct., and it is probable that he soon removed elsewhere.

According to the tradition preserved by his descendants, a brother emigrated with him to New England. They fled from persecution, and their estates in England were forfeited. Tradition usually has little genealogical value, but in this instance it seems confirmed by the discovery that Joseph, the son of John Kirby of Middletown, was known as Joseph Kirby, Jr. (See Joseph, son of John Kirby of Middletown.) Since no other Joseph Kirby can be found among the Kirbys in America prior to the birth of Joseph Kirby, Jr., of Middletown, Ct., it is reasonably presumed that the latter was named Joseph, and called "Junior," after Joseph Kirby of Hartford. Moreover, John Kirby of Middletown also came from Warwickshire in England, and was likewise at Hartford, Ct., near the time of its settlement. It is therefore reasonable to conclude that they were brothers. The name of only one child of Joseph Kirby of Hartford, Ct., has been preserved:

2. i. John Kirby.

2. John² Kirby (Joseph¹). Nothing is positively known of him, except that he was the son of Joseph of Hartford and the father of Roger Kirby of Woodbury, Ct. According to the Sage genealogy (pages 11 and 71), there is a Hartford record which is as follows: "April, 1653, born Mary daughter of John Kirby and Elizabeth Randell." Since John Kirby of Middletown, and previously of Hartford, had a daughter Mary born about 1644, and since his widow, Elizabeth, married Abraham Randall of Windsor, Ct., it has hitherto been supposed that the above record was a late and blundering addition. But if this record be accurate, then the Mary born April, 1653, must be regarded as the daughter (and probably the eldest child, as the form of the entry indicates) of John Kirby, the son of Joseph of Hartford, by wife Elizabeth Randell. The "Wethersfield Town Records" state that Samuel Deming married, March 29, 1694, Sarah, daughter of John Kirby. "The Genealogy of the Treat Family," page 32, states that she was the daughter of John Kirby of Middletown, Ct., and "Kirby Family," 1890, states that she married Samuel Deming after the death of her first husband, Samuel Hubbard; but both are in error. Samuel Hubbard died in 1732, aged 84 years. Sarah Kirby, wife of Samuel Deming, may be regarded, therefore, as the daughter of John Kirby, the son of Joseph of Hartford. Children:

- i. Sarah Kirby, b. —; m., March 29, 1694, Samuel Deming of Wethersfield, Ct., b. 1646, son of John Deming of Wethersfield, Ct., and Honour Treat, dau. of Richard Treat of Wethersfield. Children:

1. John Deming, b. Dec. 27, 1694; perhaps m. Elizabeth Parker.
2. David Deming, b. Dec. 29, 1696; d. Feb. 17, 1771; m., Jan. 20, 1725, Martha Russell, b. —; d. Sept. 1, 1763, dau. of Sergt. John Russell. Children: (1) Martha, b. April 15, 1726; (2) Mehitabel, b. 3. ii. Roger Kirby, b. 1698; m. Martha —.

3. Roger³ Kirby (John², Joseph¹) of Woodbury, Ct., born 1698. In 1730 he was living in Judea Society, then a part of Woodbury, Ct., and now the town of Washington, Ct. His farm was situated about a hundred rods distant from the church on Washington green, and is known to this day as the "Kirby farm." The cellar where the house of Roger Kirby stood still exists, and it was in this house that his grandson, the Hon. Ephraim Kirby, was born. In 1763 he deeded his property in Woodbury to his two sons, Abraham and Joseph, and seems to have resided thereafter at Litchfield, Ct. He died June 12, 1793, aged 95 years, at Milton, Ct., while on a visit to that place, and was buried in the Milton cemetery. His wife's name was Martha, but of her parents nothing is known. By her he had four children, born in Woodbury, Ct.:

4. i. Abraham Kirby, b. July 14, 1730; m. Eunice Starkweather.

5. ii. Joseph Kirby, b. July 7, 1732; m. Rachel Hand.

iii. Abia Kirby, b. July 7, 1732, twin with Joseph.

iv. James Kirby, b. Sept. 17, 1740, of whom nothing further is known; he may have died before 1763, when his father deeded his property in Woodbury to his sons Abraham and Joseph.

4. Abraham⁴ Kirby (Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born July 14, 1730, in Woodbury, Ct. He was a farmer and lived in Judea Society, Ancient Woodbury, Ct., until 1763, and afterward removed to Litchfield, Ct. In February, 1786, he removed again, and settled at Middlebury, Vt., where his son John had located the previous year. In the spring of the following year he brought apple-trees in a boat from Pittsford, and planted the second orchard in town. While bringing the trees down the Otter River, he ran into the rapids and was in imminent danger of drowning, but while going under a bridge, he caught hold of a timber and held on until rescued. June, 1792, he was joined by his son Joseph and family, who lived with him in the house he had erected. He was made a deacon of the Congregational Church, and the "History of Middlebury, Vt.," speaks of him as being one of the most respectable citizens of that town. He died April 3, 1796, in Middlebury, and was buried in the old cemetery north of the village. A marble tombstone about four feet high and two feet wide, round at the top, was erected to his memory soon after his death. It bears the following inscription:

*Abraham, son of Roger Kirby, died April 3, 1796 aged 65 years.
His Grandfather Joseph Kirby came from Warwick in England and settled in Connecticut at the first settlement of the City of Hartford in the sixteenth century. From him descended John Kirby, Grandfather, and Roger Kirby, the Father, who died in Conn. in 1793 aged 95 years.*

Abraham Kirby married, May 31, 1756, in Woodbury, Ct., Eunice Starkweather, born Sept. 19, 1735, daughter of John Starkweather and Mary Herrick, both of Stonington, Ct.

Children of Abraham Kirby and Eunice Starkweather:

[Starkweather Lineage:

I. Robert Starkweather of Roxbury, Mass., was a native of Wales. He was at Boston in 1640, and afterward lived in Roxbury. In 1654 he sold his estate in Roxbury and removed to Ipswich, Mass., where he died in 1674. He married Jennet Roberts, daughter of John Roberts of Roxbury, by whom he had: Elizabeth, b. 1643; Lydia, b. June 23, 1644; John, b. 1646; Deborah, b. Aug. 27, 1648.

II. John Starkweather, only son of Robert, born 1646, in Roxbury, Mass. He removed with his father to Ipswich, where he was pound-keeper in 1688, and his successor was appointed in 1693. He removed to Preston, Ct., before Aug., 1694, and there soon became prominent; was selectman in 1698, and for the next three years; was also deputy to the General Court of Connecticut in 1702. He died Aug. 21, 1703, in Preston, Ct., and in September of the same year the administration of his estate was granted to his widow Ann and his son Robert. It is recorded at this time that he left seven children: "Thomas aged 26, Timothy, John, Robert, Richard, Mary, and Lydia aged 12." Children: Thomas, b. about 1677; Timothy; John, b. Sept. 16, 1680; Robert, b. Nov. 12, 1684, d. 1706; Richard, b. Dec. 26, 1686, m., March 12, 1721, Mary Plumer; Mary, b. 1689; Lydia, b. 1691.

III. John Starkweather, third son of the preceding, born Sept. 16, 1680, in Ipswich, Mass. He removed to Preston, Ct., where he married, Dec. 28, 1708, Mary Herrick, b. 1691, daughter of Ephraim and Judith Herrick of Preston, Ct. He removed again, before 1720, to Stonington, Ct., and died in 1750 at Roxbury, Mass. While passing through Roxbury on his way to Boston on horseback with a drove of cattle, his horse stumbled and threw him to the ground, causing injuries which resulted in his death in a few minutes. His widow Mary was living in 1769. The "Connecticut Courant," under the date of Nov. 27, 1769, states that she was then in her 79th year, and that she had been "the mother of thirteen children; grandmother of eighty-seven; great-grandmother of seventy-six, and great-great-grandmother of one child of the fourth generation—in all, one hundred and seventy-seven. There are now living of the above number one hundred and fifty-two." Eleven of these grandchildren, bearing the family name, were Revolutionary soldiers, and five of them died in the service.

(Ephraim Herrick, baptized April 15, 1688, in Beverly, Mass., was the son of Ephraim Herrick, Sr., of Beverly, and Mary Cross of Ipswich, who were married July 3, 1661. Ephraim Herrick, Sr., b. Feb. 11, 1638; d. Sept. 12, 1693, was the son of Henry Herrick and Edith, dau. of Hugh Laskin, all of Salem, Mass. According to the Herrick genealogy, Henry was the son of Sir William Herrick, ambassador of Queen Elizabeth to Turkey, and a member of Parliament during her reign.)

Children of John and Mary Starkweather:

1. Mary, b. March 25, 1710, in Preston, Ct.; m., Nov. 30, 1726, Jeremiah Kinney, of Preston, Ct.
2. Lydia, b. Jan. 29, 1712, in Preston, Ct.
3. Anna, b. Aug. 21, 1715, in Preston, Ct.; m., —, Benjamin.
4. John, baptized Feb. 23, 1718; d. soon.
5. Samuel, b. March 23, 1720, in Stonington, Ct.; m., July 29, 1747, Sarah Purple of East Haddam, Ct. He removed, when about sixty years old, to New Ashford, Mass., where he was elected to the Legislature, and died in Jan., 1787, at Boston, during the session of that body. They had ten children. Two of their sons, John and Ephraim, were in the Revolutionary army. Their fourth son, William, b. Nov. 25, 1754, settled in Williamstown, Mass., and was a member of Congress.
6. John, b. June 11, 1722, in Stonington, Ct.; d. Dec. 19, 1760; m., (1) March 27, 1746, Jerusha Smith, by whom he had a daughter Hannah; m., (2) Dec. 12, 1753, Elizabeth Belcher of Preston, Ct., by whom he had three sons and one daughter. His three sons, Belcher, Woodbury, and Amos were in the Revolutionary army, and Woodbury died in the service.
7. Joel, b. June 20, 1724, in Stonington, Ct.; m., Aug. 9, 1750, Jane Trumble, of Preston, Ct. They had five children. A son Charles was at the battle of Saratoga, 1777.
8. Elizabeth, b. May 23, 1726, in Stonington, Ct.; m. — Rood.

9. Robert, b. Aug. 26, 1728, in Stonington, Ct.; d. March 15, 1819, in Chesterfield, Mass.; m. Sarah Everlith of Ipswich, Mass. They had thirteen children. Four of their sons, James, Joseph, Simeon, and John, died while in the Revolutionary Army. Their third son, Ezra, b. Dec. 15, 1754; d. July 21, 1834, was a surgeon in the Revolutionary Army. After the war he settled in Worthington, Mass., where he became eminent as a physician, and was widely known as a public man. He was a member of the State Senate thirteen times; was also a member of the Governor's Council, and a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1820.
10. Woodbury, b. March 27, 1731, in Stonington, Ct.; not married.
11. Ephraim, b. Sept. 1, 1733, in Stonington, Ct.; married, and settled in Pawtucket, then in Massachusetts. He graduated from Yale College in 1753, and studied law, but gave up the profession and entered into business and became wealthy; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1779, and was in the State Senate 1780-83. His grandson, Samuel, was a lawyer, and settled in Cleveland, O., and was for several years Mayor of that city.
12. Eunice, b. Sept. 19, 1735, in Stonington, Ct.; m., May 31, 1756, Abraham Kirby.
13. A child, b. —; d. in infancy.]

6. Ephraim⁵ Kirby (Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born Feb. 23, 1757, in Judea Society, Ancient Woodbury, Ct. About 1763 he removed with his father to Litchfield, Ct., where, at the age of eighteen, he joined the volunteers who organized after the battle of Lexington, and arrived at Boston in time to take part in the battle of Bunker Hill. In Dec., 1776, he enlisted again in the Revolutionary army, and served as a cavalry soldier for about two years. The published "Records of Connecticut Men in the War of the Revolution," page 273, contain the following statement of his personal appearance at this period: "Ephraim Kirby, private, enlisted Dec. 24, 1776, of Litchfield, farmer. Stature 5 ft. 6, complexion dark, eyes dark, hair brown. Discharged Aug. 7, 1778." During this enlistment he was with Washington's Army in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and took part in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, and Monmouth, and received thirteen wounds. He was on the staff of General (Lord) Sterling at the battle of Germantown, and there received seven sabre cuts on the head from a British soldier, and was left on the field for dead. These honorable scars he carried with him through life. It is said that he lost a portion of his brain by one of these sabre cuts, and for some time also lost his mind. Instantaneously his consciousness and mind returned, when he exclaimed: "Where is Eagle?"—the name of the horse he was riding when he was cut down. He subsequently served as Lieutenant in a Rhode Island company, and remained in the field until independence was achieved. After the conclusion of the Revolutionary War he was for some time a student at Yale College, but did not graduate. In 1787 he received the degree of A.M. from that institution. He studied law in the office of Judge Reynold Marvin, a patriotic citizen of Litchfield, who had been King's Attorney, but had resigned this office on the outbreak of the Revolutionary struggle, and married his only daughter. While in the practice of law in Litchfield, Ct., in 1789, he published "Reports of the Decisions of the Superior Court and Court of Errors of the State of Connecticut, Litchfield, 1789." This was a novel undertaking, being the first volume of reports ever published in this country. It was executed with faithfulness, judgment, and ability, and is still regarded as authority in all our courts. The same year, 1789, he wrote the pledge and organized the first society for the promotion of temperance ever formed in America. This pledge bears the name of many who were prominent in the State.

In 1791 Ephraim Kirby was for the first time elected to represent the town of Litchfield in the State Legislature, a post of honor and responsibility to which he was re-elected at thirteen semi-annual elections. "As a legislator he was always distinguished for the dignity of his deportment, for his comprehensive and enlightened views, for the liberality of his sentiments, and for his ability and decision." During this time he was prominent in business and military affairs. In 1795 he was one of the seven directors of the company formed by Oliver Phelps of Windsor, Ct., and others to purchase the remaining lands belonging to the State of Connecticut in Ohio, known as the "Western Reserve." He was also Colonel of the Seventeenth Regiment Connecticut Militia, and was commonly known as "Colonel" Kirby.

On the election of Jefferson as President in 1801 he was appointed Supervisor of the National Revenues for the State of Connecticut. About this period he was for several years the Republican candidate for Governor of Connecticut, but failed of election, the Federal party being too strong for the followers of Jefferson. He was interested also in the Cincinnati Society, of which he was an original member (Rhode Island), and was prominent in Masonic circles. His library and sword are now held by the Masonic Lodge of Litchfield, of which he was a member. President Jefferson had contemplated offering him the office of Postmaster General, but finally called Gideon Granger of Connecticut to that office. In 1803 he received from President Jefferson the appointment as Commissioner for Settlement of Law Claims in the territory east of Pearl River (Mississippi). In 1804 he was appointed by Jefferson United States Judge of the Supreme Court for the territory of Orleans (Louisiana). Having accepted the latter position, he set out for New Orleans, but was not destined to reach that place. Having proceeded as far as Fort Stoddard in the Mississippi territory, he was taken sick, and died there Oct. 20, 1804, at the early age of forty-seven, and when a wide career of public usefulness seemed opening to him. His remains were interred with the honors of war and other demonstrations of respect.

"Colonel Kirby was a man of the highest moral as well as physical courage, devoted in his feelings and aspirations, warm and generous in his attachments, and of indomitable energy. He was withal gentle and winning in his manners, kindly in his disposition, and naturally of an ardent and cheerful temperament, although the last few years of his life were saddened by heavy pecuniary misfortunes. He had acquired a handsome property by his profession, but in an evil hour he employed an agent to purchase for him a large tract of new land in Virginia. This agent betrayed his trust, and by his dishonesty involved his employer in almost hopeless insolvency. To be harassed by obligations which he could not meet was, to an honorable man like Colonel Kirby, a source of the keenest solicitude. He enjoyed the friendship of many of the sages of the Revolution, the correspondence with whom would form interesting material for the history of his time; but, unfortunately, almost all was lost at sea, between New York and St. Augustine, some twenty-five years ago. A few letters to and from Pres. Jefferson only have been preserved." (Litchfield Biographies," pp. 103-110.)

12. Frances^e Kirby (Ephraim^s, Abraham^t, Roger^s, John^s, Joseph^t), born April 6, 1785, in Litchfield, Ct.; married, Aug. 25, 1806, Joseph Lee Smith, born May 28, 1779, son of Elnathan Smith and Chloe Lee, both of New Britain, Ct. He graduated from Yale College 1796, studied law at Judge Reeve's Law School in Litchfield, Ct., and afterward practised law in his native State until the commencement of the war of 1812, when he was commissioned Major of the Twenty-fifth U. S. Infantry. For distinguished bravery at Forty Mile Creek he was promoted to be Lieutenant-Colonel, with the brevet of Colonel, June 6, 1813. On the reorganization of the army in 1816 he was commissioned Lieutenant-Colonel, and was promoted to Colonel, Third Infantry, Feb. 10, 1818. In 1821 he resigned his commission, and in 1823 he was appointed by President Monroe U. S. Judge of the Superior Court for Florida. From 1838 to 1842 he was delegate to Congress from the Territory of Florida. He died May 24, 1846, and was buried in Litchfield, Ct. Frances Kirby Smith died Aug. 3, 1875, in Litchfield, Ct., aged ninety years.

Colonel Joseph Lee Smith was a man of imposing appearance, attractive features, and pleasant manners. He stood six feet two inches in height, and was noted for his activity and great physical strength. His only superior in strength in the army was General McNeil of Boston, who was seven feet high. His complexion was fair, his features regular; he had large hazel eyes and curling chestnut hair. The "Hartford Times," in an article published at the time of his death, said of him: "Col. Joseph Lee Smith was a man of the highest order of intellect, of most extensive information, of superior judgment, of great personal bravery. Although of an ardent temperament, he was kind-spirited and generous to a fault. A Major in the Army of the United States in 1812, in the absence of his Colonel, he commanded his regiment, the Twenty-third, in the invasion of Canada in 1813. On the evening of the battle in which Generals Winder and Chandler were taken prisoners, he was ordered to encamp his regiment in the rear of the army in a deep ravine between the hills near Forty Mile Creek. Considering the position bad, he insisted upon a change, and, having received permission to do so, moved his regiment late at night to the top of the hill near the creek. This judicious movement saved his regiment, for he had scarcely reached his new position when he was assailed by a superior force of British and Indians. He, with his raw troops—this being their first battle—held his position against repeated attacks of the enemy, and by a rapid and successful charge at daylight, seconded by the Fifth Regiment, drove back the enemy and saved the army. For this action Major Smith was promoted Lieutenant-Colonel and brevetted Colonel. Throughout the rest of the campaign, and to the close of the war, he was regarded as one of the best and most efficient officers in the army. In 1819 he was induced to resign his commission, and was appointed by President Monroe United States Judge of the Superior Court of Florida. So accurate was his judgment and so thorough his knowledge of law that in over one thousand cases decided by him prior to 1836 not a single decision had to be reversed.” Children:

21. Joseph Lee Kirby⁸ Smith (E. K. Smith⁷, Frances Kirby⁶, Ephraim⁵, Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born July 25, 1836, in Syracuse, N. Y. He graduated from West Point in 1857, with distinguished honors, and was assigned as brevet Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Topographical Engineers. He was retained awhile at the Military Academy as an instructor, and then served under Major J. H. Simpson in the survey of Utah, and subsequently under Captain George G. Meade (afterward General Meade) in the survey of Lake Superior. In June, 1861, he joined the staff of General N. P. Banks, and remained with the latter until he received a commission of Lieutenant-Colonel in the Fourth New Jersey Volunteers. Soon after he was appointed Colonel of the Forty-third Ohio Volunteers, with the brevet of Brigadier-General, which position he retained until his death. He was with General Pope at the taking of Island No. 10, and with General Rosecrans at Corinth, he then acting as Brigadier-General. He died Oct. 12, 1862, in Corinth, Miss., in consequence of wounds received in the battle fought on October 4th, while bravely leading his men forward to protect a Federal battery against one of the most desperate charges made by the Confederates that day.

General Kirby Smith's death called forth unusual expressions of grief and praise from his military associates. From a paper (published), entitled "Our Kirby Smith," by General John W. Fuller, a fellow officer, and read before the Ohio Commandery of the Loyal Legion in 1887, we take the following tributes to his memory. General D. S. Stanley, in his official report of the battle of Corinth, touchingly refers to the death of General Kirby Smith as follows: "I have not words to describe the qualities of this model soldier, or to express the loss we have sustained in his death. The best testimony I can give to his memory is the spectacle I witnessed myself, in the very moment of battle, of stern, brave men weeping like children as the word passed, 'Kirby Smith is killed!'" General A. S. Williams speaks of him thus: "He was my beau-ideal of a young man. There was a daily beauty in his life that won the hearts of all who knew him. . . . He was so capable, so brave, so self-reliant, without vanity; so patient and so persevering in the line of duty, that I looked confidently for splendid services and rapid and well-earned advancement." And General Fuller himself says: "He was a born soldier, and gave promise of a brilliant career. He was more than a soldier—he was a Christian. He never made a parade of his religious ideas. No man ever saw in him the least particle of cant. Yet in and through the soldier there shone forth in the life of our Kirby Smith the evidence of that life which is eternal."

20. Edmund Kirby⁷ Smith (Frances Kirby⁶, Ephraim⁵, Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born May 16, 1824, in St. Augustine, Fla.; graduated from West Point Military Academy June, 1845, and was commissioned a Lieutenant in the Fifth U. S. Infantry. During the Mexican war he was with the army of General Scott in the memorable campaign of 1847, which resulted in the capture of the City of Mexico. For gallantry at Cerro Gordo he was brevetted First Lieutenant, and for bravery at Contreras, Captain. After the close of the war he served for three years as Professor of Mathematics in the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. In 1854-55 he was engaged in the Mexican boundary survey, and afterward as Captain of the Second U. S. Cavalry served against the Indians on the frontier. He was severely wounded June 13, 1859, in an engagement with the Comanches near old Fort Atchison, Texas. For these services against the Indians he received the thanks of the Texas Legislature.

On the secession of Florida from the Union he resigned his commission in the U. S. Army, and was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel in a Company of Cavalry of the Confederate Army. During the Civil War he rose to become a full General of the C. S. A., and obtained distinction as a successful leader. At the battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861, he was severely wounded in the beginning of the engagement. In 1862 he was placed in command of the Department of East Tennessee, Kentucky, North Georgia, and Western North Carolina. He led the advance of General Braxton Bragg's army in the Kentucky campaign, and defeated the National forces under General Nelson at Richmond, Ky., Aug. 30, 1862. In Feb., 1863, he was assigned to the command of the Trans-Mississippi Department, and was ordered to organize a government for this region, which included Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, and the Indian Territory. He made his communication with Richmond by running the blockade at Galveston, Tex., and Wilmington, N. C. He sent large quantities of cotton to Confederate agents abroad, and introduced machinery from Europe, with which he established factories and furnaces, opened mines, made powder and castings, and rendered the district self-supporting until the war closed, at which time his forces were the last to surrender. In 1864 he successfully opposed and defeated General Banks in his Red River campaign.

After the war General Kirby devoted himself to teaching in several of the leading schools of the South. He was successively President of the Western Military Academy of Kentucky, Chancellor of the University of Nashville, Tenn., and Professor of Mathematics in the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. He died March 28, 1893, at Sewanee, Tenn., in the seventieth year of his age.

The following memoranda of General E. Kirby Smith's military career is taken from his own notes:

13. Reynold Marvin⁶ Kirby (Ephraim⁵, Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born March 10, 1790, in Litchfield, Ct. In 1809 he began the practice of law in Litchfield, but abandoned the same on the outbreak of the war of 1812 with Great Britain, and accepted a commission as Lieutenant in the Massachusetts Militia. He was commissioned, July 9, 1813, Third Lieutenant in the Third Regiment U. S. Artillery, and, Oct. 1, 1813, Second Lieutenant in the same Regiment. He joined the United States forces in Canada in time to participate in the battle fought near Cornwall on Nov. 11, 1813. He was in the battles of Chippewa and Lundy's Lane; was also at the siege of Fort Erie in 1814, where as aid to General Ripley he received him in his arms when he fell wounded, and was twice brevetted for gallant conduct during the siege. After the war he was retained as Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Artillery. April 29, 1816, he was appointed Assistant Adjutant-General, with brevet rank of Major, and was first assigned to duty on the staff of General Brown at Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., and thence was transferred to the staff of General Ripley, and afterward to the staff of General Macomb at Detroit, Mich. The office of Assistant Adjutant-General having been abolished at the reduction of the army in 1821, he was assigned to the First Artillery as a First Lieutenant; Aug. 5, 1824, he was commissioned Captain of the same Regiment, and Sept. 17, 1824, was promoted to Brevet Major for "ten years' faithful service." In 1832 he was with General Scott in Charleston, S. C., in defence of the Government during the nullification excitement, and from 1836 until May, 1838, he was actively engaged in the Florida war with the Seminole Indians, during which he contracted a disease that shortened his life. The hardships which both himself and his command endured in the Seminole war may be inferred from the following extract from the unpublished diary of Major Kirby kept by him during the winter of 1837-38:

" March 23, 1838.—Slept on board the steamer. Marched early. Our route for three miles lay across the Pine Barrens. We then emerged upon the border of the Everglades, which commences with mud and soon changes to water and grass. We floundered through this for one mile and a half and struck the trail of the Indians. The water and mud was belly-deep to the horses. The region before us, as far as the eye could reach, was an expanse of grass and water, interspersed with clumps of small trees resembling islands. The skirt on the mainland was a most dismal and dense cypress swamp, the trees covered with waving moss. In half an hour twenty boats came up. One company of horse dismounted, and one remained in charge of those left. The men were divided among the boats, putting their muskets and cartridge boxes in them, and marching each side and dragging the boats. We followed the trail for seven hours, the men never less than two feet deep in mud and water, often to the middle, and sometimes taken in to the shoulders; yet they went on with spirit and without complaint. At five o'clock we approached a large island covered with pines, and discovered smoke. We were now sure of our prey, and increased our exertions. Our approach was concealed by the high grass which rose above our heads. We closed upon the island at the north end. At the same time Captain Powell moved on to the attack on the west side of the island, thus bringing the enemy between us. My march was through high saw-grass and deep mud. I was once or twice down in the mud, and pulled out by two strong men whom I kept with me.

" When we got into the open ground, I endeavored to extend so far as to turn the enemy's right, and then directed the whole forward with the bayonet. I never saw a finer or steadier movement on parade at eighty yards, and expected a sheet of fire from the bushes in front. At this moment a cannon from the boats opened, and the whole island resounded with the war-whoop, and rifles on Powell's side. This inspired our men with fresh vigor, and we dashed into the cover where we supposed the Indians were in line; but, on seeing our force and the move of approach, they fled up the island, passing my left before we could fire. In five minutes we were in possession of their position. We met in the camp Powell's command, which had landed on the opposite side. Darkness had come on, and after our great fatigue it was impossible to pursue. The next morning I marched with the main body in pursuit upon the enemy's trail. At nine o'clock I received orders to retrograde. The men were too much broken to hazard more, and our provisions would be out in twenty-four hours. We took a nearer and more direct route, and arrived on the main at 4 P.M. The boats were dragged three miles through the same mud as before they entered the river, from whence it was six miles to the camp, which we made at nine o'clock. Thus was accomplished one of the most desperate expeditions attempted during the war. It was a forlorn hope, for had we not defeated the Indians not a man could have escaped to tell the tale."

From May to Aug., 1838, Major Kirby was engaged in the removal of the Cherokee Indians beyond the Mississippi. After this service he was transferred with his command to the northeastern frontier, where he was intrusted with important and delicate duties relating to the "Maine boundary line" dispute with Great Britain, and for the manner in which he discharged this duty was complimented by General Scott in general orders. He was transferred to the command of Fort Sullivan, near Eastport, Me., where, on Oct. 7, 1842, he died of pleurisy, the result of his service in the Florida war.

Major Reynold Marvin Kirby married (1), at Detroit, Mich., Harriet Wadsworth Larned, born Sept. 13, 1796, in Pittsfield, Mass.; died June 3, 1830, at Fortress Monroe, Va. Of the five children by this union four died in infancy. Their son, George Edmund, attained manhood, but died without issue April 3, 1862, in New York City. He married (2), Dec. 22, 1831, in Richmond, Va., Mary Barclay, born March 21, 1811, in Richmond, Va., daughter of David Barclay of Richmond and Ann Hooff Gretter of Alexandria, Va. She died July 16, 1891, at Richmond, Va. Children by his second wife:

- iii. Reynold Marvin Kirby, b. Oct 5, 1836, in St. Augustine, Fla. He was a member of the Second Company, Richmond Howitzers, C. S. A., and participated in the battle of Big Bethel, Va., June 10, 1861. He died July 27, 1861, in Richmond, Va., from disease contracted in the service.
- iv. Edmund Kirby, b. Sept. 13, 1839, at Hancock Barrack, Houlton, Me. He was appointed a cadet of the Virginia Military Institute in 1857, and graduated in 1861. While a cadet his corps was ordered to Harper's Ferry, where he witnessed the execution of John Brown. After his graduation he enlisted in Lindsay Walker's Howitzer Battery, and served as sergeant during the seven days' fight. In 1863, upon the application of Col. John B. Palmer, commanding the Fifty-eighth N. C. Infantry, he was transferred from Walker's battery and appointed Adjutant of the Fifty-eighth Regiment, and on the resignation of the Lieut.-Col. was appointed to the vacancy. He was killed Sept. 20, 1863, at the battle of Chickamauga, while leading his regiment against the strong position of Gen. Granger. He fell, pierced by five balls, while the words, "Drive them, boys," were on his lips.

[Barclay Lineage:

I. David Barclay of Mathers, Scotland. He was the representative of an old Scoto-Norman family that traced itself, through fifteen intervening generations, to Theobald de Berkeley, who acquired a settlement in Scotland about the middle of the twelfth century. From him was descended Sir Robert Barclay, Knight, of Pierston, Baronet of Nova Scotia, and also Barclay de Tolley, the distinguished Russian general who was opposed to Napoleon during the campaigns of 1812 and 1813.

II. David Barclay of Kincardineshire, son, born about 1610; died Oct. 12, 1686, at Ury, Kincardineshire; married, Jan. 26, 1648, Catherine, daughter of Sir Robert Gordon, premier baronet of Nova Scotia and the historian of the house of Sutherland. His father became so impoverished by his own extravagances that he was compelled to sell the estates that had been in the family for upward of five hundred years. Upon these reverses, David, his son, entered the army of Gustavus Adolphus, and soon rose to the rank of Major. On the outbreak of the civil war in his native land he returned home, and was Colonel of a regiment of horse in the Scotch army. He was engaged in several responsible stations in civil life, and was twice a member of Parliament.

(Sir Robert Gordon, the founder of the family of Gordonstoun in Morayshire, was the fourth son of Alexander Gordon, Earl of Sutherland. He was descended from the first Earl of Huntly, as follows:

- i. Alexander de Seton, Lord of Gordon, was created first Earl of Huntly in 1449. His son:
- ii. George Gordon, second Earl of Huntly, b. —; d. 1502 (?); m., Oct. 10, 1457, Annabella, youngest daughter of James I., King of Scotland, by Queen Joan, dau. of John Beaufort, Earl of Somerset. Their second son:
- iii. Adam Gordon, Lord of Aboyne, m. Elizabeth, Countess of Sutherland, sister of the ninth Earl, and he assumed the title of Earl of Sutherland through the right of his wife. Their son:
- iv. Alexander Gordon, master of Sutherland, m. Jane Stewart, dau. of the second Earl of Atholl. Their son:
- v. John Gordon, b. 1526 (?); d. 1567, became, on the death of his grandfather, the tenth, or, as some reckon, the eleventh Earl of Sutherland. He married (2d wife) Helen Stewart, dau. of John, third Earl of Lennox. Their second son:
- vi. Alexander Gordon, eleventh, or twelfth, Earl of Sutherland, b. 1552; d. 1594; m., Dec. 13, 1573, Jane Gordon, who had married previously James, Earl of Bothwell, but had been divorced by him in order to marry Mary, Queen of Scots. She was his third cousin, being the daughter of George Gordon, fourth Earl of Huntly, who was the son of John and the grandson of Alexander, third Earl of Huntly, who was the son of George Gordon, the second Earl of Huntly. Their fourth son:
- vii. Sir Robert Gordon, b. May 14, 1580, at Dunrobin Castle, Sutherlandshire; d. 1656; m., Feb. 16, 1613, at London, Louisa (or Lucie) Gordon, only child and heiress of John Gordon, D.D. See "Peerage of Scotland," by Sir Robert Douglas, Vol. II., pp. 578-79.)

III. Governor Robert Barclay, son of David Barclay of Kincardineshire by Catherine, daughter of Sir Robert Gordon, born Dec. 23, 1648, at Gordonstoun, Morayshire; died Oct. 3, 1690, at Ury near Aberdeen in Kincardineshire; married, Feb., 1670, Christian, daughter of Gilbert and Margaret Mollison. He was educated at the Scotch college in Paris, of which his uncle was rector. In 1667 he embraced the principles of the Society of Friends, and became one of its ablest expounders. He published several treatises in defence of its doctrines. His most important work, "An Apology for the True Christian Divinity," published in Latin in 1676, and translated into English in 1678, is remarkable as the standard exposition of the principles of his sect, and it is still the most important manifesto of the Friends. He was imprisoned in 1676, but was released in April of the following year, and joined William Penn and George Fox in a visit to Germany. In 1682 a body of twelve Quakers, under the auspices of his friend Penn, acquired the proprietorship of East Jersey in North America, and the following year the Duke of York gave a patent of the province to the proprietors, who had added to the body twelve associates, including Barclay. In July, 1683, he was appointed by the proprietors Governor of East New Jersey, with the right to appoint a deputy. ("History of New Jersey," by Samuel Smith, p. 167.) He was unwilling to leave his native land, and only availed himself of the power with which he was invested of sending a deputy. His brothers John and David afterward went to settle there, but David died on the passage. Governor Barclay left three sons and four daughters, all of whom were living fifty years after his death. His wife died Dec. 14, 1722, in her seventy-sixth year.

IV. David Barclay of London, son, is said to have been born in 1674, and to have died in 1763, when nearly ninety years old. He was a merchant of London, England, and was prominent as a mercer in Cheapside, where he amassed considerable wealth. It is said that he entertained three kings of England in succession, viz., George I., George II., and George III.

V. David Barclay of Ayrshire, son, born 1725; died Dec. 15, 1803; married Mary Knox, a descendant of John Knox, the Scotch reformer. She died Sept. 3, 1804. He acquired considerable property from his father, and lived the quiet life of a landholder upon his estate near Stewarton in Ayrshire, where he died Dec. 15, 1803.

VI. David Barclay of Richmond, Va., son, born May 11, 1782, near Stewarton, Scotland; died Nov. 16, 1858, in Richmond, Va.; married, June 30, 1810, Ann Hoof Gretter, born Sept. 28, 1790, at Alexandria, Va.; died Aug. 23, 1845, in Richmond, Va., daughter of John and Margaret (Goulding) Gretter of Alexandria, Va. At an early age, seized with the spirit of adventure, he ran away from home and enlisted in the British army. After serving for several years in India, Africa, and the West Indies, he was honorably discharged, in 1806, in the island of Jamaica, from whence he came to the United States and settled in Richmond. He was one of the first merchants of that city to engage in the manufacture of tobacco, in which business he amassed a large fortune that was subsequently lost by imprudent endorsements for others. He was the owner of a large number of slaves, and in politics was a Whig. Children born in Richmond:

1. Mary, b. March 21, 1811; m., Dec. 22, 1831, Major Reynold Marvin Kirby.
2. David, b. Nov. 27, 1812; d. June 2, 1848; not married.
3. Margaret Goulding, b. Dec. 9, 1814; m., Aug. 28, 1845, Robert McClellan of New York City.
4. Jane Knox, b. Jan. 14, 1817; m., Nov. 24, 1842, George R. Peake of Virginia.

6. Alexander, b. April 27, 1820; d. Aug. 25, 1821.
7. Helen Kirby, b. Dec. 18, 1832; m., Nov. 4, 1851, Dr. John B. Walthall of Richmond, Va.]

22. Joseph Lee Smith⁷ Kirby (Reynold Marvin⁶, Ephraim⁵, Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born Nov. 2, 1841, at Fort Sullivan, Eastport, Me. During the Civil War he was at first aide to General E. Kirby Smith, and subsequently Captain of Engineers, C. S. Army. After the war he practised law, and was appointed by the Virginia Legislature Judge for Nelson County, Va. On leaving the bench he removed to Staunton, Va., where he is now practising his profession. Judge Joseph L. S. Kirby married, June 27, 1872, at Lynchburg, Va., Sarah Cornelia Wayt Gibbs, born Oct. 2, 1840, in Waynesboro, Augusta County, Va., daughter of William Wayt Gibbs and Mary Jane Lobban. Children:

40. Asahel Jones⁷ Severance (Ebenezer Severance⁶, Mary Kirby⁵, Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹) of Denver, Col., was born Dec. 1, 1828, in Middlebury, Vt. When twenty-one years of age he removed to Oneida, N. Y., where, after serving a short apprenticeship in the carpenters' and joiners' trade, he engaged in the manufacture of building and finishing material. In 1851 he returned to Middlebury, Vt., and, in company with his brothers, entered into the building and lumber business in that city. About 1861 he turned his attention also to the marble business, and opened the North Middlebury Marble Quarry. He built a large mill for sawing marble, and for several years employed a hundred men in supplying marble for buildings, monuments, etc. His last and largest contract was for the marble, cut and ready to put up, for the U. S. Post-office and the Court House at Portland, Me. The contract required two years for its completion. The fluted columns for these buildings were twenty-seven feet long, each of one piece, weighed twenty tons before dressing, and $10,000 was paid for carving the capitals. At the same time he carried on a large lumber business at Mount Holly, Vt. His health becoming impaired by close attention to these large enterprises, he visited California in 1868, and finally removed to that State in 1870. Upon his return to California he took with him eleven car-loads of fine merino sheep in one train, the first, and perhaps the only, through-train of sheep ever shipped to that State. While in California he gave much time to the raising, breeding, and importing from Vermont of Spanish merino sheep, which greatly improved both the quantity and quality of wool raised in the State. During his stay of nine years in California he crossed the continent ten times and once by the Isthmus.

While engaged in the quarry business Mr. Asahel J. Severance invented and patented the "diamond drill," now everywhere used in boring wells and in mining—an invention which gives him honorable rank among the foremost inventors of the age. When in California he introduced the "diamond drill" into the famous Comstock mines, and had the satisfaction of knowing that his invention unlocked the largest deposit of the precious metal ever found on this continent. In thirty-two months these mines produced and paid out $72,000,000 to the stockholders. He also, while in that State, became largely interested in hydraulic mining, and built one ditch for conveying water which cost him some $115,000. In 1879, when the State of California passed a law which prevented the miners from emptying their débris into the rivers, and which entailed great loss to all those engaged in hydraulic mining, Mr. Severance removed from that State, and has since been engaged in mining enterprises in Colorado, with his residence in Denver. He is also President of the Damascus Steel Company, which manufactures a steel of his own invention, and which many believe to be equal to the old Damascus steel of the Middle Ages.

Asahel Jones Severance married, April 6, 1850, in Oneida, N. Y., Martha W. Cady, born Jan., 1832, in Middlebury, Vt., daughter of Clark C. Cady and Naomi Mills, both of Middlebury, Vt.; no children.

10. Anna⁵ Kirby (Abraham⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born July 21, 1775, in Litchfield, Ct.; died Nov. 14, 1866, at Baltimore, Md.; married, May 7, 1795, David Barnum, born Aug., 1770, in Litchfield, Ct.; died May 10, 1844, in Baltimore, Md. David Barnum, widely known as the original proprietor of the hotel in Baltimore which bore his name, early emigrated from his native State and settled in Northern Pennsylvania. From thence he removed to Philadelphia, where he became the proprietor of the "Shakespeare Hotel." He subsequently removed to New York City, where he remained for awhile, and then went to Boston to take charge of the "Exchange Coffee House," which he conducted with success until the burning of that edifice in 1818, by which he lost all. He then went to Baltimore, and soon established himself in public confidence as the proprietor of the "Indian Queen Hotel," which he continued to conduct until 1826, when he built "Barnum's City Hotel," with which his name and fame have been from that time blended. He died within the walls of the hotel which bore his name, May 10, 1844, aged seventy-three years. The "Baltimore Sun," in the notice of his death, pays the following tribute to his memory: "The career of Mr. Barnum has been one of active enterprise in the capacity which has extended his name and reputation to all parts of the United States. The ability with which he has fulfilled his duty as the host of innumerable guests will find ample testimony from the multitude to which it may be referred; while the urbanity of his manners, the courteous dignity of his intercourse, and the unblemished probity of his character combined to elicit the sincere regret of his friends."

The same newspaper, in an article upon the death of Mrs. Ann Kirby Barnum, says: "She was a younger sister of Colonel Ephraim Kirby, who was conspicuous in New England during the struggle for American Independence. In early life she married the late David Barnum, well and favorably known as the original proprietor of the hotel which has since borne his name. Settling here, this estimable lady witnessed the progress of our city from what would be regarded as an inconsiderable town to a great commercial metropolis, and in all that pertained to the advancement of Baltimore she ever took an ardent interest. During the many years since the death of the elder Mr. Barnum, his widow has always made the hotel her home, and perhaps it may not be too much to say that in time past no lady was more extensively known or more universally respected in different parts of the country than was Mrs. Barnum. Of a lively and social disposition, with a heart given to kindness, and with a most remarkable memory, that remained almost unimpaired nearly to the hour of her death, Mrs. Barnum made and retained the acquaintance of many distinguished persons. Only a week or two since, when George Peabody, Esq., visited Baltimore, Mrs. Barnum heard of his arrival, and, although she knew herself to be on her deathbed, insisted on an interview with the philanthropic gentleman—one of her old familiar friends. Mr. Peabody took the earliest moment to pay his respects, and for an hour sat by her bedside, and together they talked of the scenes of the past. Their parting is said to have been of a very affecting nature. Thus has passed from earth one of those interesting links that bind us to the last century, and her honored grave will be bedewed with the tears of children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren."

Children of David Barnum and Anna Kirby:

i. David Strong Barnum, b. —; no children.

- ii. Eliza Barnum, b. April 23, 1798; m. George Stannard of Brooklyn, N. Y., who died some years ago, aged seventy-one, at Tarrytown, N. Y., where he had a country-seat. Mrs. Eliza B. 5. Joseph⁴ Kirby (Roger³, John², Joseph¹), born July 7, 1732, in Woodbury, Ct.; married, March 24, 1757, in Woodbury (now Bethlehem), Ct., Rachel Hand (see Cothren's "History of Woodbury," p. 546), daughter of Stephen Hand (son of Stephen) and Rachel Walston. Joseph Kirby died before July 1, 1766, when administration on his estate was granted to his widow Rachel. She married (2), April 9, 1767, Joseph Guthrie of Kent, Ct., son of John Guthrie. By her second husband she had: Stephen, born Jan. 10, 1768; Elias, born July 19, 1769; Joseph, born Feb. 19, 1773. She died before June 19, 1781, when Joseph Goodrich of Washington, Ct., was appointed administrator of the estate of Joseph Kirby, in place of his "wife Rachel who is now dead," and money was taken from the said estate for the support of Sarah Kirby and Susy (Seula) Kirby, both children and minors of Joseph Kirby.

Children of Joseph and Rachel Kirby:

- i. Rachel Kirby, b. March 4, 1759.
46. ii. Reuben Kirby, b. Nov. 16, 1760; m. (1) Anna Guthrie, (2) Naomi Patterson.

- iv. Sarah Kirby, b. Feb. 18, 1765.

46. Reuben⁵ Kirby (Joseph⁴, Roger³, John², Joseph¹) of Bainbridge, N. Y., born Nov. 16, 1760, in Woodbury, Litchfield County, Ct.; married (1), Oct. 30, 1782, Anna Guthrie, born Oct. 12, 1761, daughter of William Guthrie, Sr., of Litchfield County, Ct. In 1786 Reuben Kirby removed, together with his father-in-law, William Guthrie, to Chenango County, N. Y., and settled upon a tract of land situated about three miles above the present town of Afton which they had purchased from Mr. Robert Harper of Harpersville, Delaware County, N. Y. Here they built cabins, and returned the following autumn to Connecticut for their families, which they brought back with them the next spring. Their title to these lands proving defective, in consequence of the repudiation of Harper's claims by the Government on account of being based upon a purchase made with the Indians, they abandoned their first settlement. Reuben Kirby removed to the east side of the Susquehanna River, and purchased a piece of ground about two miles below the present town of Bainbridge. His first wife died Sept. 14, 1793. The following year he returned to Connecticut and married (2), Jan. 22, 1794, Naomi Patterson, born Aug. 3, 1770, of Washington, Ct. He returned in a sleigh drawn by oxen, and crossed the Hudson on the ice at Catskill. He died Oct. 15, 1827, in Bainbridge, N. Y. Naomi Patterson Kirby died Sept., 1864, aged ninety-four years.

Reuben Kirby was a Revolutionary soldier. At one time he was stationed on, or near, Staten Island. His grandson, William D. Kirby of Bainbridge, N. Y., writes: "I have heard my father relate an anecdote his father Reuben told him of what happened when they were on the island [Staten Island]. When they received the news of General Burgoyne's surrender they were so elated that they failed to obey orders, but shouted, danced, fired the cannon, snatched each other's hats and rammed them down the cannons for wads, and had a general jubilee." Children:

- i. Laura Kirby, b. Oct. 6, 1783; m. Miles Hinman of Upper Lisle, N. Y.
- ii. Lois Kirby, b. March 13, 1788; m. Robert Foster of Otego, N. Y. They afterward removed to the Wyoming Valley, near Wilkesbarre. No children.

AN ACCOUNT OF SOME OF THE DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY OF SANDWICH MASSACHUSETTS

Richard Kirby of Sandwich, Mass., first appears upon the records of New England in 1636 as an inhabitant of Lynn, Mass. In 1637, together with William Wood and others of Lynn, he removed to Cape Cod, and began the settlement of the town of Sandwich. He is mentioned as a neighbor by Thomas Hampton of Sandwich in his will, dated March, 1638, and the same year he, with others, was fined for having swine unringed. He shared in the division of new lands in 1641. His name appears in the list made in Aug., 1643, of the sixty-eight inhabitants of Sandwich who were able to bear arms. He was one of the eleven male members whose names are found on the first recorded list of members of the Puritan Church of Sandwich. In 1651 he was presented, with others, for non-attendance on public worship. There was trouble at this time in the church between the Rev. Mr. Leveridge and his people, and Richard Kirby may have simply stood aloof from the contestants. In the autumn of 1656, Nicholas Upsiall, a puritan of Boston who had been exiled for protesting against the imprisonment of Mary Fisher, the first "Quaker" to appear in Boston, found a temporary refuge in Sandwich. The Plymouth records of this date contain a complaint that, "Nicholas Upsiall, Richard Kirby and the wife of John Newland, and others, did frequently meet together at the house of William Allen in Sandwich on the Lord's day and other times. They used to inveigh against ministers and magistrates to dishonor God and contempt of government." (Plymouth Court Orders, III., p. 105.) So far as we know, the names contained in the above record are those of the first persons in this country to embrace the principles of the Friends. Yet it is not certain that Richard Kirby ever became a member of the Society of Friends. The Sandwich church was "the most bigoted and intolerant in the Colony," and he may have associated with the

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

"Quakers" out of sympathy for the cause of religious liberty. It is known that in 1684 he took the "oath of fidelity," and neither his name nor that of his son Richard appears as a member in the church records of the Friends. Between 1658 and 1660 the Sandwich Quakers suffered in fines to the amount of £679, and of this amount Richard Kirby and his son paid £57 12s. Some time after 1660 he removed to Dartmouth, Mass. In November, 1670, he purchased from Sarah Warren one-half of Thomas Molton's share of land in Dartmouth. ("Original Proprietors of Dartmouth," Vol. I., p. 13.) In 1683 he purchased of Zechariah Jenkins land in Dartmouth, on the east side of Cocksett River, at a place called Nasquamskiesett. The only records concerning him in the town records relate to his taking the freeman's oath, or "oath of fidelity." In the Dartmouth Town Records for 1684 it is recorded that "Richard Kirby, Senior," and fourteen others, who are also named, "took oath of fidelity." In May, 1686, it is also recorded that forty-five names were reported to the town meeting as having taken the oath of fidelity, and among these names is that of "Richard Kirby, Senior."

The name of his wife is unknown. Her first name was probably Jane. There is a Sandwich record that Jane Kirby had twin children, Increase and Abigail, born February, 1650, who died soon after, and that the mother was buried, together with her son Richard, March 23, 1650. The mention of "her son Richard," however, throws some doubt upon the matter, and suggests the suspicion that she may have been the wife of Richard Kirby, Jr. Nevertheless, the circumstance of having two living children of the same name is not unprecedented, and a daughter of Richard Kirby, Sr., was named Jane. Since this daughter was married in Sept., 1651, it is probable that her mother was married before 1635, perhaps in Lynn, Mass., but more probably in England.

Richard Kirby, Sr., died in Dartmouth, Mass., after May, 1686, and before July 21, 1688, as the following agreement shows:

To all people to whom these presents shall come, greeting:—Whereas Richard Kerby, formerly of Dartmouth in the County of Bristol in the Colony of New Plymouth in New England, sometime more than nineteen years since died intestate and left some personal estate undisposed of, he having before his death given and disposed of his lands unto his two sons, viz; to his son Richard Kerby, now of Dartmouth aforesaid, one quarter of a share of lands throughout the said town of Dartmouth, both divided and undivided, and one other quarter of a share unto his other son Recompence Kerby, then of Dartmouth aforesaid, and which was enjoyed and possessed by his said sons sometime before and at the time of his death of the said Richard Kerby their deceased father. Now know ye therefore that we, Richard Kerby the son of said deceased, and Sarah Allen and Ruhamath Smith both of Dartmouth, widows, and both daughters of said deceased, together with the said Recompence Kerby our brother then of said Dartmouth, and Jane Lounders our sister then of Sandwich in the County of Barnstable now deceased, did all mutually agree unto and divided the personal estate of our said deceased father after his death to and amongst ourselves, agreeing and concluding that the said Richard Kerby and Recompence our two brothers aforesaid should have and enjoy the lands aforesaid to them their heirs and assigns forever, which said agreement and settlement of the said estate of our said deceased father, we the said Richard Kerby the son, and Sarah Allen and Ruhamath Smith the daughters now surviving of the said Richard Kerby, do hereby ratify and confirm for us and every of us by these presents and for our heirs and executors and administrators and every of them forever.

In testimony whereof we the said Richard Kerby the son, and Sarah Allen and Ruhamath Smith the daughters, of said deceased, hereunto set our hands and seals this twenty one day of July in the sixth year of His Maj. Reign, Anno Domini 1707.

In presence of

- vii. Matthew Allen, b. June 10, 1677; m., May 2, 1700 (Vital Stat. of R. I.), Phœbe —, b. Sept. 13, 1677. Children (Leonard):
 1. Rosa Allen, b. Sept. 24, 1701.
 2. Caleb Allen, b. Feb. 27, 1703.

3. Ruhamah² Kirby (Richard¹), born —; died after July 21, 1707; married, as second wife, Lieutenant John Smith of Dartand from the monthly meeting records of the Friends. This manuscript was offered to the City of New Bedford for $3,500, and is now kept in the New Bedford City Library.

mouth, Mass., born 1618; died Jan. 15, 1692. He was at Plymouth as early as 1629, for there is a Plymouth court order, dated Jan. 2, 1633-34, relieving him from his bond to Edward Doty at the expiration of five years of apprenticeship, which indicates that he was bound to Edward Doty when ten or eleven years of age. Nothing, however, has been learned of his parentage. He was known at Plymouth as John Smith, Jr., and as "the boattesman." In May, 1653, he accompanied Captain Thomas Willett in an expedition against the "Dutch at Monhatoes" in a barque of which George Watson was the master. He was admitted freeman June 5, 1651, and he took the oath of fidelity May 4, 1657. The same year, June 3, he is recorded as "Deputy that served at this Court." In 1658 he was fined for absenting himself from public worship, and in 1660 was twice fined for "permitting Quaker meetings at his house." He removed about 1665 to Dartmouth, Mass. In the deed of land at Dartmouth which he received from Edward Doty, dated Oct. 16, 1665, he is said to be "now residing in the town of Dartmouth." He was, in 1672, one of the three surveyors of highways in that town, and the same year was appointed by the Plymouth Court to investigate and settle a difference between John Cook and the town of Dartmouth. He was appointed, March 4, 1673-74, "to be the Lieftenant of the Military company of Dartmouth, and Jacob Mitchell to be ensign bearer of the said company." (See Court Orders, Vol. V., p. 96; also Old Colony Printed Records, Vol. V., p. 138. These were the first military officers that were appointed by the Plymouth Court for the town of Dartmouth. A lieutenant was at that time the highest military officer in the town.) In 1677, together with John Cook and John Russell, he was appointed by the Plymouth Court to distribute the £22 fund donated by "divers Christians in Ireland for the relief of such as are impoverished, distressed and in necessitie by the late Indian war," and the following year the same court authorized him, naming him as "Lieftenant John Smith," together with John Russell and John Cook, "in his Majestie's name to call the town together to make such rates as are requisite." He is one of those mentioned in the town records, Dec. 10, 1684, as having taken the oath of fidelity. He died in Dartmouth, Jan. 15, 1692, in the seventy-fourth year of his age.

Lieutenant John Smith married, first, Jan. 4, 1648-49, Deborah Howland, daughter of Arthur Howland, by whom he had five children, viz., Hassadyah, John, Josiah, Eleazer, and Hezekiah. His wife Deborah died after Oct. 16, 1665.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

Children of Lieutenant John Smith and Ruhamah Kirby:

- i. Deliverance Smith, b. —; d. June 30, 1729; m. Mary —. He was one of the selectmen of Dartmouth in 1708, and was imprisoned in that year for refusing to collect the tax for the maintenance of a "hireling minister." His widow, Mary, died Aug. 19, 1776 (?). Their children were:
 1. John Smith, b. May 11, 1693.
 2. Deborah Smith, b. May 13, 1695; m. (2), July 20, 1716, Eliezer Slocum of Dartmouth, b. Jan. 20, 1693-4, son of Eliezer Slocum. They had a son, Humphrey, b. Feb. 18, 1730, whose daughter, Anna (or Amy), married George Kirby. See subsequent page.
 3. Ann Smith, b. Oct. 16, 1696; m., April 30, Beriah Goddard.
 4. Alice Smith, b. Aug. 29, 1698; d. Oct. 22, 1783.
 5. Peleg Smith, b. March 27, 1700; m. Mary Howland, dau. of Nathaniel Howland of Dartmouth.
 6. George Smith, b. June 27, 1701; m., Jan. 31, 1726, Elizabeth Allen.
 7. Hope Smith, b. Nov. 23, 1703; m., Dec. 20, 1729, Thomas Briggs.
 8. Humphrey Smith, b. Feb. 13, 1705; d. Nov. 4, 1777; m., April 1, 1731, Mary Willcox, dau. of Jeremiah Willcox and Mary Mallett. They had a son, Henry, b. July 22, 1738; d. Dec. 9, 1801, who married, May 4, 1763, Cynthia Wood, and was the great-grandfather (Collins^s, Tucker⁷) of H. H. H. Crapo Smith of Detroit, Mich., b. Jan. 9, 1828, from whom has been received this account of the descendants of Ruhamah Kirby.
 9. Mary Smith, b. Nov. 14, 1706-7; m., Feb. 1, 1732, John Goddard.
 10. Abigail Smith, b. Feb. 10, 1709; m. Thomas Briggs.
- ii. Gershom Smith, b. —; d. April 3, 1718; m., June 6, 1695, Rebecca Ripley, dau. of Abraham Ripley, the son of William Ripley of Hingham, Mass.
- iii. Judah Smith, b. —; d. Oct. 9, 1733; m. Mary —. His name appears among those who subscribed, Nov. 6, 1698, toward the building of a Friends' meeting-house in Dartmouth, Mass. Their children were:

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

1. Content Smith, b. March 23, 1697.
2. Susanna Smith, b. Dec. 28, 1699; perhaps married Stephen Colvin, son of John Colvin.
3. Richard Smith, b. March 7, 1702; m., Dec. 24, 1731, Dorothy, dau. of Stokes Potter.
4. William Smith, b. Aug. 10, 1705; d. Aug. 16, 1719.
5. Meribah Smith, b. July 5, 1706.
6. Michael Smith, b. Dec. 26, 1708-9.
- iv. Eliashib Smith, b. —; m., June 24, 1704, Dinah Allen, dau. of Francis Allen (son of George) and Mary Barlow. Their children were:
 1. Francis Smith, b. Oct. 13, 1706.
 2. John Smith, b. June 29, 1708.
 3. Rachel Smith, b. Jan. 2, 1712; m., March 14, 1740, George Allen, son of William Allen.
 4. Joseph Smith, b. Jan. 17, 1714; d. Jan. 9, 1785.
- v. Hannah Smith.
- vi. Sarah Smith.
- vii. Deborah Smith.
- viii. Mehitable Smith, b. —; m., July 17, 16— (record obliterated), John Russell of Dartmouth, son of John and Dorothy Russell. His will, dated March 20, 1695-96, and probated April 16, 1696, mentions "my son John, my brother Jonathan's son Jonathan, and my brother Joseph's son John." Mehitable, his widow, married (2), March 14, 1705, James Burrell. One child by her first marriage:
 1. John Russell, b. June 16, 1686; m., May 21, 1726, Joanna Tucker, dau. of Abraham Tucker. Children: (1) John, b. March 10, 1728; (2) Job, b. July 14, 1731; (3) Hannah, b. June 12, 1732; (4) Mehitable, b. Jan. 13, 1735; (5) Jacob, b. April 2, 1737.

4. Richard² Kirby (Richard¹), born probably before 1638, since he should have been of age in 1658, when he refused to take the oath of fidelity. The same year he was fined twenty shillings for refusing to assist marshal Barlow in the execution of the duties of his office. In 1660 he was fined five pounds for repetition of this offence. His name is found among the twenty-four inhabitants of Sandwich, who, in Oct., 1660, were each fined ten shillings for attending Quaker meetings. Together with his father he sufferred the distraint of fifteen cows to satisfy fines imposed amounting to £57 12s. "He was evidently of the sterner stuff of reformers, ahead of the time in which he lived, and acted fully up to that line, regardless of personal consequences." (G. A. Hinckley of Barnstable, Mass.)

Richard Kirby, Jr., was married, Oct. 9, 1665, to Patience, daughter of William Gifford of Sandwich, Mass. He afterward removed to Dartmouth, Mass. His wife Patience died some time after May 20, 1674, and he married (2), Dec. 2, 1678, Abigail, widow of Zoeth Howland, son of Henry Howland of Duxbury, who had been killed by the Indians at Pocasset, March 26, 1676, leaving nine children. There is no record of any child by this second marriage; yet, inasmuch as he mentions in his will "my granddaughter Remember Potter," it may be that he had one child, a daughter, by his second wife, who married a Potter. His will is dated Jan. 30, 1707-8, and was probated April 4, 1720. It is assumed, therefore, that he died in 1720. Since his wife Abigail is not mentioned in his will, it is probable that she died before 1708.

Will of Richard Kirby, Jun. of Dartmouth, Mass.—

To all people to whom these presents shall come, I Richard Kirby of Dartmouth aforesaid in the County of Bristol, in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, do hereby manifest and declare that I being sound in my understanding, I have considered the infirmities of my body and knowing it is appointed for all men once to dye, do make this my last will and testament for the disposing of my worldly estate, hereby revoking and declaring null and void all and every other will or wills, testament or testaments by me made whether in word or writing and this is to be taken for my last will.

Imprs. I will that after my decease, my daughter Temperance Kirby shall have all my lands, both meadows and uplands, my whole right of lands which I bought of John Wiborn to be and remain unto her my said daughter Temperance Kirby her heirs and assigns forever. And also a bed and bedding and then a full quarter part of all my personal estate or moveables, also ten pounds of money to be paid by my son Robert Kirby and is due to my heirs and survivors by a bond which the said Robert Kirby has given me and will be of force after my decease.

Item, I give and bequeath unto my son John Kirby and my daughter " " Meshior wife of John Meishor and daughter Sarah Merihew wife of Samuel Merihew all the rest of my personal estate or moveables that is not before disposed of to be equally divided amongst them three. Also five pounds a piece in money to be paid by my son Robert Kirby five years after my decease, that is to say, the money and the moveables or personal estate to be " " at my decease, and the money is due to my survivors as I shall order or appoint from my said son Robert Kirby as is mentioned in the aforesaid bond.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

Item, I give to my grand-daughter Remember Potter fifty shillings in money to be payd five years after my decease by my aforesaid son Robert Kirby and is part of the money expressed in the bond aforesaid.

Item, I give and bequeath to all the rest of my grand-children that are living at my decease, five shillings a piece to be payd also five years after my decease by my said son Robert Kirby of the money mentioned in the sd bond. And all the rest and residue of the money contained in said bond, be it more or less, I give and bequeath unto my said son Robert Kirby whom I make my whole and sole executor of this my last will and testament.

In Witness whereof I, the sd. Richard Kirby have hereunto sett my hand and seal the thirtyeth day of January 1707-8.

The children of Richard Kirby and Patience Gifford were:

- i. Sarah Kirby, b. May 1, 1667 ("One Hundred and Sixty Allied Families"); m. Samuel Merihew of Dartmouth, son of Jonathan Merihew. He was constable of Dartmouth in 1719. His will, dated Sept. 29, 1733, makes no mention of wife or children. He names his father Jonathan "Merithew," his sister Mary Merithew, his sister Grace Burlingham, "my sisters Desire, Susanna and Dinah," his brother Roger Merithew, and his brother Jeremiah Merithew. He gives to his father all his real and personal property. It may therefore be assumed that his wife was dead and that he had no children.
- ii. Experience Kirby, b. May 5, 1670 ("One Hundred and Sixty Allied Families"); m., March 5, 1692, John Mosher of Dartmouth, b. 1668, son of Hugh Mosher and Rebecca Harndel.* She died March 5, 1745 ("Gifford Genealogy"), and her husband Aug. 1, 1737 (or 1739). Children:
 1. Robert Mosher, b. Oct. 12, 1693; m., 1743, Sarah Lawton, dau. of George and Mary Lawton. Children: (1) John, b. 1744; (2) Experience; (3) Susanna; (4) Amos; (5) George, b. 1753.
 2. Hannah Mosher, b. Nov. 9, 1696; d. soon.

* Mosson not Harndell. see note in Austin & Savage.

3. Patience Mosher, b. March 30, 1698.
 4. Anna Mosher, b. Sept. 21, 1699.
 5. John Mosher, b. March 12, 1703; m. Hannah —.
 6. Hannah Mosher, b. March 13, 1712.
 7. Sarah Mosher, b. —; m., Aug. 22, 1731, Benjamin Davol, son of Joseph Davol.
- iii. Temperance Kirby, b. May 5, 1670, twin ("One Hundred and Sixty Allied Families"); m., as second wife, March 22, 1721, George Pierce of Little Compton, R. I., b. July 10, 1662; d. Aug. 30, 1752, son of Richard Pierce of Portsmouth, R. I. His first wife was Alice Hart. Temperance Kirby Pierce died Feb. 5, 1761. (Leonard.) No children.
6. iv. John Kirby, b. March 2, 1672 ("One Hundred and Sixty Allied Families"); m. Rebecca Mosher.
7. v. Robert Kirby, b. May 10, 1674; m. Rebecca Potter.

6. John³ Kirby (Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born March 2, 1672, probably in Dartmouth, Mass. He married Rebecca Mosher, born 1668, daughter of Hugh Mosher and Rebecca Harndel. The Dartmouth Town Records of this period are lost, but the proprietary records contain the following confirmation of his marriage: "May 28, 1713;—Hugh Mosher of Dartmouth for love and good will for my daughter Rebecca wife of John Kirby of Dartmouth, and for other good cause, have sold to my dau. Rebecca and her husband John Kirby all of my 40 acres of land on East side of Coakseti River and joining land of my dau. Hannah Cornell, it being a part of the 800 acres to a share conveyed by the purchase of Dartmouth." He lived in that part of the town of Dartmouth known as Ponagansett, for the proprietary records state that, "July 7, 1711, was laid out John Kirby's homestead 167 acres on West side of Paschamansett River in Ponagansett village." Here probably he erected and operated a saw-mill, for the proprietary records also state that, "July 13, 1715, land was set off to John Kirby for a saw-mill." He was constable for Dartmouth in 1707 and 1708. He died about 1730. His daughter Elizabeth deeded land to her brother Richard Kirby, and in the deed, dated July 15, 1731, describes herself as "daughter of John Kirby now deceased." His will, dated July 2, 1724, and approved —, mentions his wife Rebecca, his daughter Sarah Winslow, and each of his other nine children by name. The date of his wife's death is unknown.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

Children of John Kirby and Rebecca Mosher (Dartmouth Town Records):

8. i. Richard Kirby, b. Dec. 27, 1695; m. Mary Merihew.
 ii. John Kirby, b. Feb. 3, 1697; m., Nov. 24, 1733, Mary Kenny. His marriage record speaks of him as "of Rochester," and nothing further is known concerning him.
9. iii. James Kirby, b. Nov. 29, 1699; m. Ann Earl.
 iv. Sarah Kirby, b. Dec. 2, 1701; m., Nov. 25, 1722, Jonathan Winslow of Freetown, Mass., son of Job Winslow. (See "Winslow Memorial.")
 v. Rebecca Kirby, b. Nov. 28, 1703; m., Oct. 5, 1727, Noah Allen.
 vi. Elizabeth Kirby, b. Dec. 21, 1705. Probably not married.
 vii. Mary Kirby, b. Dec. 16, 1707; m., March 16, 1731, Joseph Caswell of Newport, R. I.
 viii. Thomas Kirby, b. March 8, 1710; m., 1737 (published Sept. 24, 1737), Mary Merihew. His name appears on the Dartmouth tax list for 1775, and nothing more is known concerning him.
 ix. Abigail Kirby, b. Nov. 27, 1711; m., Sept. 17, 1733, William Rider of Rhode Island.
10. x. William Kirby, b. Dec. 15, 1711; m. Hannah Reed. (The date of his birth or that of his sister Abigail must be wrong. Both dates, however, are so entered in the Dartmouth Town Records.)

8. Richard⁴ Kirby (John³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born Dec. 27, 1695; married, May 19, 1733, Mary Merihew. The town records of Dartmouth mention Richard Kirby as juryman in 1729, 1731, and 1742; also as surveyor of highways for Ponaganset village in 1753 and 1754. It is presumed that he lived in Ponaganset village. The inventory of his estate was taken May 2, 1756, and he probably died the same year. He left two children, perhaps others:

- i. Mary Kirby, b. —; was living in 1770; unmarried.
- ii. Richard Kirby, b. —; m., Dec. 15, 1757, Rebecca Winslow of Freetown, Mass. He was a man of influence in town affairs. He was one of those appointed, Sept., 1774, to attend a county congress in Taunton; was also selectman in 1779 and 1780, and in the latter year was moderator of the town meeting; yet nothing further has been learned concerning him and his descendants, except that he probably had a son Richard, who appears with him as witness to the will of Ichabod Kirby, dated March 29, 1788, and signs himself "Richard Kirby, Jun."

9. James⁴ Kirby (John³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born Nov. 29, 1699; married, Feb. 11, 1725, Ann Earl, daughter of Joseph Earl of Dartmouth (son of Ralph Earl) and Elizabeth Slocum, daughter of Giles Slocum. Children born in Dartmouth:

- i. Joseph Kirby, b. Jan. 8, 1726 (Dartmouth Town Records); m., Aug. 17, 1746, at Portsmouth, R. I., Mary Crocker.
- ii. Elizabeth Kirby, b. March 2, 1728 (Dartmouth Town Records); m., Aug. 21, 1746, at Portsmouth, R. I., Josiah Lawton, son of Thomas Lawton.
- iii. John Kirby, b. —; m., July 28, 1758, at Portsmouth, R. I., Ruth Perry, dau. of Edward Perry. They had two children born in Middletown, R. I.:
 1. John Kirby, b. June 22, 1759.
 2. Ruth Kirby, b. July 18, 1760. She may have been the Ruth Kirby who married, June 23, 1774, John Badcock, Jr.

10. William⁴ Kirby (John³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born Dec. 15, 1711; married, Feb. 3, 1737, Hannah Reed. Children born in Dartmouth (Dartmouth Town Records, and Leonard):

- i. Robert Kirby, b. Dec. 30, 1737.
- ii. Zilpah Kirby, b. June 3, 1739; m., Oct. 14, 1765, Jonathan Rider of Dartmouth. (Dartmouth records.)
- iii. Rebecca Kirby, b. Feb. 16, 1742; m., Aug. 20, 1761, Anthony Shaw of Newport, R. I. (Dartmouth records.)
- iv. Elizabeth Kirby, b. Aug. 5, 1744; m., 1764 (published Nov. 18, 1764), Isaiah Peckham, Jr. (Dartmouth records; but Leonard gives the name as Josiah.)
- v. William Kirby, b. Dec. 26, 1745; m., March 21, 1769, Alice Butts. They had two children, and perhaps others:
 1. Robert Kirby, b. March 10, 1770.
 2. William Kirby, b. —; m., 1799, Lois Straton.

And probably,

man. (In the Dartmouth record she is called "Hannah Kirby, Jr.")

[The following persons, whose names are found in the Dartmouth Town Records, are believed to be the descendants of John Kirby and Rebecca Mosher:

1. Amos Kirby, whose name is found upon the Dartmouth tax list for 1775.

2. Benjamin Kirby, m., Jan. 8, 1767, Eunice Peckham. (Dartmouth record. His name also appears upon the Dartmouth tax list for 1764.)

3. James Kirby "of Dartmouth," m., April 1, 1774, Zilphia (or Sylvia) Raymond of Rochester. (Dartmouth record.)

4. James Kirby, m., Feb. 28, 1780, Catherine Slocum of Tiverton, R. I. (Dartmouth record.)

5. James Kirby "of Portsmouth, R. I.," m. Lydia Petty, July 19, 1798. (Dartmouth record.) He may have been son of James and Catherine (Slocum) Kirby.

6. Mary (or Marcy) Kirby, m. John Howland, son of John, June 6, 1782. (Dartmouth record.)

7. Nancy Kirby, "dau. of Silvin," b. Sept. 5, 1763; m., May 19, 1782, Benjamin Allen, son of Ralph Allen. (Dartmouth record.)

8. Thomas Kirby of Portsmouth, R. I., m., Aug. 2, 1766, Charity Perkins. (Dartmouth record.) He may have been son of Thomas and Mary (Merihew) Kirby.]

7. Robert³ Kirby (Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born May 10, 1674; married Rebecca Potter, daughter of Nathaniel Potter (born 1637; died Oct. 20, 1704, son of Nathaniel Potter of Portsmouth, R. I.). Little is known concerning him. He was a member of the Society of Friends, and lived in that part of Dartmouth which afterward became the town of Westport, and near the Coaxit, or Noquechuck, River. The Proprietary Records of Dartmouth (Vol. I., p. 92) state that, in 1712, 212 acres of land were laid out for Robert Kirby's homestead on east side of Coaxit River. This land was next to that owned by George Cadman. He died in 1657. Rebecca, his widow, died in 1773, and her will was approved Dec. 21st of that year. Robert Kirby's will, dated March 26, 1755, was allowed March 10, 1757. In his will he makes his wife Rebecca his executrix, and orders his sons Ichabod Kirby and Recompence Kirby to assist their mother in her office. He divides the homestead between his sons Silas Kirby and Robert Kirby. He mentions his daughter Barsheba Kirby; also "my grandsons Weston Kirby and Justus Kirby, sons to my son Nathaniel Kirby deceased"; also his five grandchildren, "the children of my dau. Patience Lawton deceased, namely, Rebecca Milk, Mary Duval, Peace Howland, Lidda Lawton, and George Lawton." Witnesses: Peter Allen, Nathaniel Howland, Restcome Sanford.

Children of Robert and Rebecca Kirby, according to his will, arranged in the order of their several marriages:

- i. Patience Kirby, b. —; d. before March 26, 1755; m., 1722 (1722, 10mo., 13da., Friends records), John Lawton of Portsmouth, R. I., son of George Lawton. Children, according to Robert Kirby's will:
 1. Rebecca Lawton, b. —; m. — Milk.
 2. Mary Lawton, b. —; m. — Duval.
 3. Peace Lawton, b. —; m. — Howland.
 4. Lidda Lawton.
 5. George Lawton.
11. ii. Nathaniel Kirby, b. —; m., March 25, 1731, Abigail Russell.
12. iii. Ichabod Kirby, b. —; m., March 1, 1733, Rachel Allen.
13. iv. Recompence Kirby, b. —; m., Dec. 16, 1736, Rebecca Cornell.
14. v. Silas Kirby, b. —; m., Feb. 8, 1742, Elizabeth Russell.
15. vi. Robert Kirby, b. —; m., Dec. 13, 1744, Abigail Allen.
- vii. Barsheba Kirby, b. —; not married.

11. Nathaniel⁴ Kirby (Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born —; married, March 25, 1731, Abigail Russell, born June 25, 1712, daughter of James and Rebecca (Howland) Russell of Dartmouth. He was a member of the Society of Friends. He probably died early in the year 1748. In his will, dated Nov. 5, 1747, and approved Aug. 21, 1748, he speaks of himself as "being very sick and weak in body"; mentions his wife Abigail, his "two sons," Weston Kirby and Justus Kirby, between whom he divides the homestead farm, and "my three daughters," Rebecca Kirby, Lydda Kirby, and Mary Kirby. Witnesses: Benjamin Tripp, Nathaniel Tripp, Restcome Sanford.

The Dartmouth Town Records state that Nathaniel Kirby and Abigail Russell were published, 2mo, 22, 1730, and were married 2mo. 22, 1731, but the records of the Friends' monthly meetings in Dartmouth contain the original marriage certificate. This states that they were married "the twenty-fifth day of the first month

16. Wesson⁵ Kirby (Nathaniel⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Westport, Mass., was born in Dartmouth 1731, 10 mo. 14 da. (Dartmouth record. In his father's will he is called Weston, but in his own will he designates himself, and also signs, as "Wesson"; hence the latter and peculiar spelling has been retained.) He was married in Dartmouth, Feb. 23, 1750, to Hannah White (Dartmouth record), born 1731, daughter of William White, Jr., of Dartmouth. He resided in that part of Dartmouth which afterward became the town of Westport, and near the small fork of Noquechuck River, and above the bridge. He was surveyor of highways in 1771, 1775, 1776, 1780, and 1781; was also selectman and assessor in 1779. He died in Westport, Oct. 9, 1798, aged sixty-seven years. Hannah, his widow, died in 1819 at Westport, Mass.

The will of Wesson Kirby is dated Jan. 2, 1798. [Cooke Lineage of Hannah White, wife of Wesson Kirby:

I. Francis Cooke, passenger of the Mayflower, 1620, and seventeenth signer of the Mayflower compact, was born about 1577 at Blyth, Co. York, England, a parish adjoining Austerfield, near Scrooby. He fled, with Elder Brewster and the "exiles from Scrooby," to Leyden, where he soon married his wife Hester, of whom nothing is known except that she was called "the Walloon." His son John accompanied him on the Mayflower, and his wife, with the rest of the children, came on the ship Anne in 1623. He was one of the original purchasers of Dartmouth in 1652. He died April 7, 1663. His wife Esther was living at the date of the making of his will, Dec. 7, 1659.

II. John Cooke, called "Elder" and sometimes "Rev. John" Cooke, came, with his father, Francis, in the Mayflower, 1620. He was a deacon of the church at Plymouth; was also deputy, and a man of influence; but, having become a defender of the "Quakers," he became obnoxious to the Plymouth authorities, and removed to Dartmouth, of which he had been an original purchaser. Here he was held in honor, representing the town in the General Court, 1673, 1674, 1675, and 1678. In 1676 he joined the Baptist Church at Newport, and preached at Dartmouth and other places. Backus, in his church history, states that "John Cooke was a Baptist minister in Dartmouth many years." He married, March 28, 1634, Sarah, daughter of Mr. Richard Warren, the twelfth signer of the Mayflower compact. His will is dated Nov. 9, 1694, and was approved April 16, 1696.

III. Sarah Cooke, eldest child of Rev. John Cooke and Sarah Warren, born 1635; died after 1710; married, Nov. 20, 1652, Arthur Hathaway of Marshfield and Dartmouth. ("Ancient Landmarks of Plymouth," W. T. Davis, pp. 69, 130.)

IV. Hannah Hathaway, daughter of Sarah Cooke and Arthur Hathaway, born 1662; died 1749; married George Cadman of Dartmouth, born —; died 1719, son of Hon. William Cadman of Portsmouth, R. I. (Austin's "Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island," p. 268.)

V. Elizabeth Cadman, only child of Hannah Hathaway and George Cadman, born —; died after 1768; married William White of Dartmouth. (Austin's "Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island," p. 268; also will of George Cadman, recorded at Taunton in Book III., p. 500, and the will of Hannah Cadman in Book XI., p. 700.) The parentage of William White has not been established, but it is probable that he was the youngest son of Samuel White of Rochester, Mass. He was petit juror for Dartmouth in 1713, and was elected constable in 1716. His will is dated Jan. 6, 1768, and was approved Oct. 3, 1780.⁴ He was living in 1777, the date of his son's will, and in all probability died in 1780.

VI. William White, Jr., of Dartmouth, eldest son of Elizabeth Cadman and William White (see will of George Cadman; also will of Hannah Cadman, given under Descendants of William White of Dartmouth), born —; died 1780; married, Oct. 2, 1729, Abigail Thurston (Vit. Stat. of R. I., Vol. IV., p. 66). In his will, dated Feb. 17, 1777, and approved Oct. 3, 1780 (Taunton Probate Records, Book XXVI., p. 282), he says: "I, William White, son of William White of Dartmouth"; mentions "my son Jonathan," and gives to him "all that my farm which my honored Grand-father George Cadman gave me after the decease of my honored father and mother"; mentions also "my eldest daughter Hannah Kirby, my second daughter Elizabeth Peckham, my youngest daughter Abigail White." As he makes no mention of his wife, it is probable that she died before his will was made.

VII. Hannah White, eldest daughter of William White, Jr., according to his will, born 1731; died 1819, in Dartmouth; married, Feb. 23, 1750, Wesson Kirby of Dartmouth. (Dartmouth town record.)]

18. Nathaniel⁶ Kirby (Wesson⁵, Nathaniel⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Westport, Mass., born July 4, 1751 (Westport record); married, Sept. 10, 1772 (Westport record), Sylvia Maccomber, born March 4, 1753. He was a farmer in Westport, Mass., where he died Oct. 9, 1818, aged sixty-seven years (gravestone). Sylvia, his widow, died April 10, 1848, aged ninety-five years (gravestone), and was buried beside her husband in Beach Grove cemetery at Westport. At her funeral there were present, by actual count, one hundred and eight of her descendants. Children born in Westport (family Bible):

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

Jonathan and Abigail White of Westport. He purchased, in 1807, a farm on Smith's Neck road in South Dartmouth, and resided upon it until 1851, when he removed to New Bedford, Mass. He was much respected by his fellow townsmen, and held at various times the offices of assessor and selectman, which he filled with ability. He was a man of a grim humor, and was exact in the discharge of the duties of his office. On one occasion, when returning from New Bedford, he met a man who asked for alms. Mr. Kirby took him in, and as he drove past the poor-house turned him over to the keeper. The man was very indignant, but there was no help for it. Among his duties was that of enforcing the observance of the Sabbath. It had been the custom for the people to get their hay in on Sunday if the weather was clear. Mr. Kirby used to joke with the neighbors about this, and to say that if they must get their hay in on the Sabbath to please not let him see them do it, or he would have to take notice of it. He always dressed in the Quaker garb, and attended regularly the meetings of the Society of Friends. He died April 11, 1860, in New Bedford, mourned by a wide circle of acquaintances and friends. Hannah White Kirby died Jan. 10, 1842, "aged 75 yrs. 5 mo. 21 da." (gravestone).

[Jonathan White of Westport, Mass., born —; died Nov. 21, 1804, was the only son of William White, Jr., of Dartmouth and Abigail Thurston. He married, 1756 (published Jan. 1, 1756; Leonard manuscript), Abigail White. See Descendants of William White of Dartmouth, Mass.]

73. William Avery⁸ Kirby (Avery⁷, Luthan⁶, Justus⁵, Nathaniel⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of New Bedford, Mass., born July 3, 1827, in Dartmouth, Mass. He is a well-known citizen of New Bedford and a director in two of the banks in that city. A Kirby of the Kirbys—for his mother also was a Kirby—he has long been interested in the history and genealogy of his branch of the Kirbys of New England, and his knowledge of the same, as well as of the White family and other connected families, is extensive. It is only justice to him to say that most of the matter relating to the descendants of Richard Kirby of Sandwich, Mass., has been obtained from him, and the compiler wishes here to acknowledge the obligation he is under, although he has already done so in the introduction to this work.

William A. Kirby married, Dec. 17, 1848, Eliza Ann Perry, born July 20, 1828, daughter of Phineas Perry of Bourne, Mass., and Eliza Bourne, daughter of Job Bourne of Bourne, Mass. One child:

- i. Amy Ann Kirby, b. May 25, 1853, in New Bedford, Mass.; not married.

76. Abner⁷ Kirby (Abner⁶, Justus⁵, Nathaniel⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Milwaukee, Wis., born April 11, 1818, in Norridgewock, Me. He received a meagre education in his native town, and learned the jewelry trade in Skowhegan and Bangor, Me. In 1844 he removed to Wisconsin, and erected a small store in Milwaukee. His business thrift, industry, and keen appreciation of the possibilities of the Territory of Wisconsin enabled him to rise to prominence and affluence. He was the founder of the Kirby, Carpenter Company, one of the largest lumber manufacturing concerns in the United States. The output of this company in 1894 was 150,000,000 feet of lumber. He built and owned the "Kirby House" in Milwaukee, Wis., and the "Kirby House" in Menominee, Mich. He was the first person to use steam upon the great lakes. His vessel, "The Cream City," so equipped in 1862, was the marvel of the day. He was elected Mayor of Milwaukee in 1864, and served one term, but declined a renomination. At the time of the outbreak of the Civil War, being too old for active service, and his application as a volunteer having been refused, he raised and equipped at his own expense an entire company. He was always noted for his public spirit and generosity. Although a firm Democrat, none mourned the death of President Lincoln more than he. When Richmond surrendered—he then being Mayor of Milwaukee—he issued an order to his chief of police that is still remembered in the city: "William, the war is over. Let us have a celebration, and arrest every able-bodied man who is sober by night."

Abner Kirby died Sept. 21, 1893, in Milwaukee, Wis. He was married three times. He married (1) Rebecca Chase; married (2) Mary Chase; married (3), Oct. 8, 1854, in Amsterdam, N. Y., Letitia R. Chase, born Feb. 3, 1833, who survives him.

Russell Himes, b. 1822. He is a builder and contractor of note in New Bedford, Mass. One child:

1. Clarence R. Sherman.

12. Ichabod⁴ Kirby (Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Westport, Mass., married, Feb. 21, 1732-33 (11 mo. 21 da. 1732; Dartmouth monthly meeting record), Rachel Allen, born May 2, 1782, daughter of Joseph Allen, Jr., of Dartmouth. He lived in that part of Dartmouth which afterward became the town of Westport, where in 1737 he was surveyor of highways, and in 1744 was chosen constable, but declined to serve. He died probably in 1794. His will, dated March 29, 1788, mentions his wife Rachel, his son John Kirby, his son David Kirby, his daughter Ruhamer Wilbor, and his daughter Rachel Kirby; mentions also "my three grandsons Humphrey Kirby and Robert Kirby, sons of my son John Kirby, and Ichabod Wilbor the son of my dau. Ruhamer Wilbor." He also leaves to his five granddaughters (names not mentioned) a small bequest apiece. Witnesses: Elijah Gifford, Richard Kirby, and Richard Kirby, Jr.

What is believed to have been Ichabod Kirby's house in Westport is still standing, although somewhat altered. "The stone fire-place formerly occupied the whole of the north end of the house. There was a door on either side near the fire-place so that they could take a horse and draw a log into the house and put one end in the fire-place, and then, when it was burned off, move the log in again until it was consumed."

Children born in Westport (Dartmouth records):

78. i. John Kirby, b. Jan. 5, 1734; m. Phœbe Wait.
- ii. Ruhamah Kirby, b. May 9, 1737; m., June 31, 1763, Ebenezer Wilbor of Little Compton, R. I. Children:
 1. Ichabod Wilbor.
 2. Temperance Wilbor, b. —; m. George Soule.
 3. Elizabeth Wilbor, b. —; m. David Briggs.
79. iii. David Kirby, b. Aug. 16, 1740; m. Martha Soule.
- iv. Rachel Kirby, b. April 21, 1747; not married. In her will, dated Oct. 5, 1812, and proved Oct. 6, 1818, she mentions her "cousins": Ichabod Wilbor; Elizabeth Briggs, wife of David; Humphrey Kirby; Rebecca Brownell, wife of Jeremiah; Ichabod, son of her brother, David Kirby; and Sibyl White.

78. John⁵ Kirby (Ichabod⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Westport, Mass., born Jan. 5, 1734, in that part of Dartmouth which afterward became Westport; married, in 1754 (published Jan. 11, 1754; Dartmouth record), Phœbe Wait, daughter of Reuben Wait. His will, made in 1809, mentions his son Humphrey Kirby; his daughter Rebecca Brownell, wife of Jeremiah; his grandson Silas Brownell; and his daughter-in-law Hannah Kirby. Children born in Westport:

- i. Humphrey Kirby, b. —; d. 1835, without issue, and probably unmarried. In his will, dated Aug. 26, 1824, and proved May 5, 1835, he mentions his sister Rebecca Brownell; Phœbe Cornell, wife of Giles; Silas, Henry, and Elijah Brownell, sons of Perry Brownell; Elizabeth Russell Brownell, daughter of Perry; Humphrey Kirby Brownell and David Brownell, sons of David; and David Brownell, son of Jeremiah.
- ii. Robert Kirby, b. —; d. 1804; m., Oct. 5, 1786, Anna Anthony. His estate was administered in 1804 by his widow, Anna. They probably had no children.
- iii. Rebecca Kirby, b. —; m., Nov. 19, 1789, Jeremiah Brownell of Dartmouth, Mass. Children:
 1. David Brownell, b. —; m., and had: (1) Humphrey K., (2) David.
 2. Silas Brownell.
 3. Perry Brownell, b. —; m., and had: (1) Elizabeth R., (2) Silas, (3) Henry, (4) Elijah.

79. David⁵ Kirby (Ichabod⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Westport, Mass., born Aug. 16, 1740; married, April 21, 1763 (Dartmouth record), at Tiverton, R. I., Martha Soule, daughter of Benjamin Soule. He inherited the homestead farm of his father, and built an addition to the old house on the north side, against the old stone chimney. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and marched to Roxbury, April 21, 1775, in Captain Pope's company. (See "History of New Bedford," by Ellis, p. 68.) In his will, made in 1832, he mentions his wife, Martha Soule, and his children, Ichabod Kirby and Sibyl White. Children born in Westport (Dartmouth records):

- i. Sibyl Kirby, b. Jan. 8, 1764; m., 1786 (published Feb. 11, 1786; Leonard), Humphrey White, son of Jonathan and

13. Recompence⁴ Kirby (Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born —; married, Dec. 16, 1736 (Leonard), Rebecca Cornell, born March 9, 1718, daughter of William Cornell and Mehitable Fish. He was chosen constable of Dartmouth in 1758, but declined to serve. In his will, dated Sept. 17, 1771, he mentions his wife Rebecca, his son Stephen Kirby, his daughter Patience Wait, and his son-in-law Jeremiah Wait. Children born in Dartmouth:

i. Patience Kirby, b. Oct. 4, 1731; m., Dec. 29, 1754, Jeremiah Wait. (The Dartmouth Town Records state that she was the daughter of Recompence and Rebecca Kirby, and that she was born in 1731. Unless Recompence Kirby had a former wife by name of Rebecca, the year 1731 must be a clerical error for 1737, or the last figure of the original entry has become partially obliterated.)

80. ii. Stephen Kirby, b. Dec. 13, 1742; m. Sarah Lawrence.

iii. Daniel Kirby, b. May 5, 1746; d. probably before 1771.

iv. Rebecca Kirby, b. Oct. 4, 1751; d. probably before 1771.

80. Stephen⁵ Kirby (Recompence⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Westport, Mass., born Dec. 13, 1742; married, Aug. 9, 1781, Sarah Lawrence, daughter of Isaac Lawrence of Portsmouth, R. I. He died about 1807, leaving a good estate. Children born in Westport (Leonard):

i. Ruth Kirby, b. Feb. 21, 1782; m., Feb. 8, 1801, Stephen Cornell of Westport, Mass., b. Feb. 5, 1774, son of Thomas Cornell. Children born in Westport:

1. William Cornell, b. Aug. 13, 1801.

iv. Sarah Kirby, b. March 22, 1790; m., Dec. 13, 1812, (Leonard) Jereh Brownell of Westport.

14. Silas⁴ Kirby (Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born —; married, Feb. 8, 1742 (Friends' monthly meeting, Dartmouth), Elizabeth Russell, daughter of Jonathan and Judith Russell of Dartmouth. He inherited the southern portion of the homestead farm, near Noquechuck River; was constable in 1755, and surveyor in 1772 and 1774. In 1781 he was one of the town committee of Dartmouth to raise money for men called for by the General Court of Massachusetts. He died in 1785, for his will was dated June 27, 1785, and was probated Oct. 4th of the same year. In his will he mentions his wife Elizabeth, his son Nathaniel, his grandson Restcome, and his granddaughters, Barsheba Kirby and Sarah Kirby, sisters of Restcome. He mentions also, "My daughter-in-law Elizabeth Kirby, my son Barnabas' widow; my grandson Berhebas, Nathaniel's son; my granddaughters Barsheba Kirby and Sarah Kirby, sisters of Restcome." Witnesses: Timothy Gifford, Jonathan Russell, Richard Kirby. Children born in Dartmouth:

81. i. Silas Kirby (supposed son of Silas and Elizabeth Kirby), b. —; m. Susanna Rogers.
82. ii. Barnabas Kirby, b. Dec. 2, 1744; m. Elizabeth Allen.
- iii. Elizabeth Kirby, b. Dec. 2, 1744, twin with Barnabas.

83. vi. Nathaniel Kirby, b. March 20, 1750; m. Hannah Allen.

81. Silas⁵ Kirby (Silas⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., supposed eldest son of Silas and Elizabeth Kirby, married, July 13, 1777 (Dartmouth record), Susanna Rogers of Dartmouth. No record of his birth has been found, and he is not mentioned in the will of Silas Kirby, Sr.; nevertheless, it is believed that he was the eldest son of the latter, for his name and designation, "Silas Kirby, Jr.," indicates relationship to Silas Kirby, Sr. Besides, he lived in the fork of Noquechuck River, where Robert Kirby held land, which he bequeathed to his children. There is also a place for him as the eldest child among the children of Robert Kirby's son Silas, but not among the children of any other son of Robert Kirby; and, furthermore, an examination of the table of the children of Silas Kirby, Sr., awakens the suspicion that there was a child born to him before the birth of the twins, Barnabas and Elizabeth. Moreover, if the eldest child of Silas Kirby, Sr., then the fact of his not being mentioned in his father's will is readily accounted for by the supposition that he had already received his portion of inheritance.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

The Dartmouth Town Records state that "Silas Kirby, Jr., and Susanna Rogers, both of Dartmouth, were married July 13, 1777." The land records of Dartmouth show that he bought, in 1778, of Hezekiah and Margaret Davis thirty acres in the forks of Noquechuck River, and that in 1782 he bought twenty acres more in the same locality—said land being sold by "the Proprietors of Dartmouth to Silas Kirby, the second," and is described as bounded by "Allen's land north, Christopher Mason's land east and Kirby's own land south." In 1787 he sold the above land, with dwelling house and barn, to Simeon Chase of Dartmouth, and the same year bought land in Dartmouth of Caleb and Patience Peckham. Nov. 18, 1790, he sold the land last mentioned to James Baker, and after this date all trace of him is lost.

Silas Kirby, Jr., was a Revolutionary soldier. His name appears on the muster-roll of Captain Kempton's company, of Colonel Donelson's regiment, under the date of Aug., 1775. He enlisted May 8, 1775; time of service, three months. (See Massachusetts Revolutionary Rolls, Vol. XV., p. 46.)

[Crapo Lineage:

I. Pierre Crapo of Rochester, Mass., was of French descent. He first appears at Plymouth as a boy with Francis Combs, with whom he was left by his brother, a captain of a French man-of-war that was wrecked somewhere on Cape Cod. He married, at Rochester, Mass., May 31, 1704 (Rochester, Mass., Town Records, p. 50; "New England Genealogical and Historical Register," Vol. IV., p. 88), Penelope White, born March 12, 1687, daughter of Samuel White of Rochester (Rochester, Mass., Town Records), who was the son of Resolved White, and the grandson of William White, the eleventh signer of the Mayflower compact, 1620. Their children were: Francis, b. Oct. 4, 1705; Susanna, b. Nov. 5, 1707; Peter, b. Nov. 20, 1709; John, b. Feb. 22, 1711; Mary, b. Sept. 27, 1713; Ichabod, b. March 22, 1717-18; Hezekiah, b. March 12, 1719-20; Nicholas, b. Dec. 5, 1721; Seth, b. May 11, 1724.

II. John Crapo of Rochester, fourth child of Peter and Penelope (White) Crapo, born Feb. 22, 1711; died after April, 1777, the date of his will (see Plymouth Probate Records, Vol. LXXVI., p. 153); married Sarah Clark (?). Children: Consider; Elnathan; Peter, b. 1744; Joshua; John, b. —; d. Dec. 20, 1784, at Freetown, Mass.; Aresta; Sarah, who married Caleb Spooner; Jane.

III. Peter Crapo of Dartmouth, third child of John and Sarah Crapo, born 1744; died March 3, 1823, aged seventy-nine; m., 1766 (published at Rochester, May 14, 1766), Sarah West, who died May 16, 1789, aged forty-two years. He married (2), 1789 (published at Freetown, Mass., Sept. 7, 1789), Content Hathaway, who died Oct. 27, 1826, aged sixty-eight years. By his first wife he had nine children, and by his second, five children:

1. Richard Crapo, b. 1770; d. Aug. 24, 1848; m. Elizabeth Crossman, b. Aug., 1772; d. July 24, 1861, aged 88 years, 11 mo. and 28 days.

99. Frank Eugene⁹ Kirby (Stephen R.⁸, Silas⁷, Restcome⁶, Barnabas⁵, Silas⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Detroit, Mich., was born July 1, 1849, in Cleveland, O. He is by profession a construction engineer and naval architect, and has become widely known, both at home and abroad, for his professional skill in the construction of vessels. To him, more than to any other, is due the credit for the introduction of metal ships upon the Great Lakes, and for placing lake shipping upon even terms with that of the ocean. The finest ships of the Detroit and Navigation Company and of the Cleveland and Buffalo line have been built from his designs. He has been particularly successful in the construction of vessels for winter service in the ice, and steamers after his designs have lately been introduced into Russia. During the present war with Spain Mr. Kirby has added to his reputation by conspicuous services rendered to the Nation in examining and reporting on the condition and value of ships offered to the Government. The "Buffalo Courier" recently said:

"Frank E. Kirby is the constructing engineer and part owner of the Detroit Dry Dock and Ship Building Company. He is as well known in all the ports along the Great Lakes and seaboard as he is at his own home in Detroit, where he is held in universal esteem. Mr. Kirby has no superior and but few equals in his practical and technical knowledge of ship-building in all its details. Of late, however, he has won for himself a more than national reputation by conspicuous services to the Government in the purchase or chartering of vessels for duty in the recent war with Spain. After the Government had resolved upon its plan of action in the war, the problem of securing, by purchase or charter, a sufficient number of suitable steamers was felt to be a serious one. These vessels were urgently needed for the movement of troops and the forwarding of supplies. The responsibility in the selection of someone thoroughly familiar with the kind of craft needed, and able to secure them without loss of time, was great. It was in this crisis that Secretary Alger chose Frank E. Kirby to perform a task which to the ordinary mind presented insuperable difficulties. Mr. Kirby was summoned to Washington. The gravity of the situation was presented to him. He was urged to temporarily lose sight of his large interests in Detroit, and devote his whole time and energies to meeting the emergency of the hour. Mr. Kirby is as patriotic as they make them. He at once dropped everything else, and with characteristic energy devoted himself to the service of his country.

"How well this Detroit citizen acquitted himself in the performance of the responsible task assigned him is a matter of history. In an incredibly short space of time the vessels needed for transport duty were in the hands of the Government. Mr. Kirby's intimate knowledge of ocean-going vessels enabled him to lay his finger on the sort of craft needed for any particular kind of work, and his knowledge of construction enabled him to make a proper estimate of values, so that the Government's needs were promptly met without subjecting it to the prices usually exacted in like emergencies. Before he was placed in charge, the Government had entered into, and was about to complete, negotiations for the purchase of seven British steamers. To Mr. Kirby's keen eye and shrewd judgment, in this one deal alone, the country is indebted for a saving of $445,000. This is only one of many instances where his skill and sagacity resulted in staving off fancy prices and saving large sums to the Government. One of the most modest and unassuming of men, Mr. Kirby is one of those who quietly conduct large and successful enterprises, and blush to find it fame. His name seldom finds its way into the public prints. But the pen of the veracious historian of the future will record that the splendid services of Mr. Kirby—services which can never be measured in money—were no small factor in determining the ultimate result of America's war with Spain."

He is the inventor of the well-known machine for cutting grain, called the "Kirby Reaper." He resided in Buffalo, N. Y., from 1851 until 1862, when he brought out his reaper; and the same year, becoming associated in business with D. M. Osborne of Auburn, N. Y., he removed to the latter city. Here a large plant was erected for the manufacture of these reaping machines, in which as many as two thousand men at one time found employment. Many thousands of these reapers have been manufactured and sold throughout the United States. After the death of D. M. Osborne, William A. 101. William Maurice⁹ Kirby (William A.⁸, Barnabas⁷, Restcome⁶, Barnabas⁵, Silas⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Auburn, N. Y., born Dec. 2, 1842. He enlisted, Jan. 1, 1862, at the age of nineteen, in the Third N. Y. Volunteer Artillery, and was appointed Second Lieutenant of Battery K, March 10, 1862. This battery was raised in Union Springs, N. Y., and the regiment in Cayuga County, the Nineteenth N. Y. Volunteer Infantry. His battery did duty at, and near, Newbern, N. C. He was promoted to First Lieutenant, Battery K, July 3, 1863, and participated in the engagements of Wise Forks, Kingston, Whitehall, Goldsboro, and Newbern, in North Carolina. At the latter place, Feb. 2, 1864, he was captured, with a command of two guns, and was confined in Libby prison at Richmond, Va., at Macon, Ga., at Charleston, S. C., and at Camp Sorgum, near Columbia, S. C. From the latter prison he escaped, Nov. 29, 1864, together with three other officers, and made his way over the mountains to the Federal lines at Knoxville, Tenn., arriving there Jan. 13, 1865. From the Auburn "Daily Advertiser," of March 27, 1886, the following account of Captain Kirby's escape, as given by himself, is taken:

"I made up my mind to take advantage of the first opportunity to get out, and arranged to run the guard, but the night was too light; at another time to bribe the guard, but while doing so one of the sentries fired on our party, and we all retired to the seclusion of our holes in the ground. But an opportunity came at last. Most every morning a party was paroled to go outside the camp to cut wood for building huts. They would bring the wood down to the dead-line, and then we would take it from there into camp. On the morning of the 29th of Nov., 1864, Captain Sidney Mead of the 111th N. Y. Volunteer Infantry came to me, stating that Colonel Thomas H. Butler, Fifth Indiana Cavalry, and himself intended to try to escape, and desired that I should go with them. We then went down to the dead-line where the paroled party were bringing their wood, and gave the guard to understand that we had been paroled to go out, but the party then out had gone without us. About this time Lieutenant Sill came down with a load of wood and rebuked Mead for being lazy, and this carried out our plan before the guard that we belonged to the paroled party out. Mead told him if he would bring down the parole for the guard to pass him he could yet do his share of work. Sill soon appeared with another load of wood and a paper, which he presented as the parole. The guard, fortunately, could not read and reckoned it was all right, and Mead stepped across the line and was asked to see our squad and have our parole sent down to the line for us. Soon Mead appeared with a load of wood, and presented to the guard a piece of paper with writing on it, and the guard, as in the former case, reckoned it was all right. We stepped across the dead line, and did not look back for fear the guard might change his mind and order us back. About three o'clock we escaped into a swamp west of the camp and waited until after dark. Here we were joined by Lieutenant Oliphant of the Thirty-fifth N. J. Volunteer Infantry, who had also escaped from the guard. Our plan was to reach our lines at Knoxville, Tenn., by taking the roads at night, hiding and resting in the daytime, depending upon the negroes for our food. We had heard that there was a Union man, by the name of Jones, who lived near the line between South and North Carolina, who would find us a guide from there to Knoxville."

Having now escaped from the guards at Camp Sorgum, it was only with the greatest difficulty that they succeeded in eluding bands of Confederates who, assisted by dogs, scoured the whole country for escaped prisoners. The sixth day of their escape they crossed, and then recrossed, a creek, and had hardly done so when a party of armed men, with eight or ten dogs, appeared on the other side. Mead, who had escaped before and had been recaptured by dogs, was sure they were on their trail, but they passed on. They were informed by the negroes that this party captured several officers during that day. It is probable that their recrossing the creek saved them from being taken. During their journey they fell in with more than one party of escaped officers, who, they learned from the negroes, were soon after recaptured. Near Merrittsville they had to cross a bridge that was guarded, and did so successfully, under the cover of the rain and darkness, by crawling across close to the railing. At another time, while lying secreted by a friendly negro near a hotel in the mountains, a party of twenty-five Confederates took possession of the house and remained there more than twenty-four hours. Thus, in great peril of recapture and with great hardships, Lieutenant Kirby and his fellow officers made their way by night, assisted by friendly negroes, who called them "Massa Lincoln's soldiers," through New Berry, Lawrence, Greenville, and Merrittsville, to the house of Mr. Jones, who furnished them with a guide over the Blue Ridge Mountains to Knoxville, which they reached Jan. 13, 1865, having been forty-six days on the road. After a short furlough, Lieutenant Kirby rejoined his battery, and was immediately promoted to Captain and assigned to command Battery I of his old regiment, Feb. 17,

After the war Captain Kirby entered the National Guards State of New York as Adjutant of the Forty-ninth Infantry, and was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel commanding, Feb. 20, 1880. This regiment was disbanded Aug. 28, 1880. He was afterward elected Captain of the Second Separate Company, May 11, 1881. In 1896 he was appointed by Governor Black of New York on the Governor's staff as Brigadier-General and General Inspector of Rifle Practice. During the war with Spain he was commissioned, May 17, 1898, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Third Regiment N. Y. Volunteer Infantry; was Provost Marshal of the Second Army Corps, July 4th to Sept. 10th; was mustered out of the U. S. service Dec. 10, 1898.

General William M. Kirby married, June 27, 1867, at Auburn, N. Y., Sophia E. Miller, daughter of Adam Miller and Asenath Tibbles, both of Auburn, N. Y. They have one child:

i. Ethel Kirby, b. Sept. 4, 1882.

102. Edwin⁹ Kirby (William A.⁸, Barnabas⁷, Restcome⁶, Barnabas⁵, Silas⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Fruitland, Fla., born Dec. 25, 1844. In the summer of 1861 he joined Company B, Spalding Guards, Seventy-fourth Regiment N. Y. Militia, and was appointed Second Lieutenant of Company F, 160th N. Y. Volunteer Infantry, Sept. 26, 1862—he then being only seventeen years of age. This company was enlisted in Cayuga County, N. Y. He was in the engagement of the gunboat "Cotton" in Louisiana, Jan. 13 and 14, 1863. He was on the gunboat "Diana" March 28, 1863, and under fire for several hours, until seven of the fourteen officers had been killed, and the surviving officers and men were compelled to surrender. The officers who were alive were retained as prisoners for sixteen months, by orders of Jefferson Davis, at Alexandria and Shreveport, La., and Camp Ford, Tex. He had been promoted to First Lieutenant, March 26, 1863, and to Captain, July 1, 1863. After his exchange Captain Kirby joined his regiment, which, during his imprisonment, had been transferred from Louisiana to Virginia, at Harper's Ferry. This was on Aug. 22, 1864. He was in command of Company A and Company F in the engagement of Opequan, Sept. 19, 1864, where, out of ten officers of the regiment, two were killed and three wounded. He was one of the wounded officers. The same bullet which wounded him in the leg cut also the haversack he carried. After his recovery he continued in command of his old Company F of the 160th N. Y. Infantry, and participated in the great review at Washington after the close of the war. He remained with his company and regiment, guarding Federal property, until Nov. 1, 1865, when the regiment was discharged at Savannah, Ga., and was mustered out at Elmira, N. Y., Nov. 14, 1865.

Captain Edwin Kirby married (1), July 6, 1871, Kittie Bowers, born May 8, 1846, daughter of James Bowers and Maria Adams, both of Auburn, N. Y. She died June 8, 1881, and he married (2), Sept. 29, 1892, Mary Brown, daughter of Henry A. and Nancy Brown of Brooklyn, N. Y. They are now living in Fruitland, Fla. Children:

 - vi. Sarah E. Kirby, b. July 12, 1837.

104. Restcome Rogers⁸ Kirby (Isaac⁷, Restcome⁶, Barnabas⁵, Silas⁴, Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Petersburg, Mich., was born July 24, 1829, in Cayuga, N. Y. He removed in 1836, with his parents, to Jackson County, Mich., and in 1841 to Monroe County in the same State. After an academic course at Aurora, N. Y., he studied medicine at the University of Michigan and at the Buffalo Medical College, and graduated from the latter in 1854 with the degree of M.D. The same year he began to practice medicine at Newport, Monroe County, Mich., and continued in the practice of his profession at this place, except during the Civil War, until 1874, when he removed to Petersburg, in the same county, where he now resides. We copy from his letter the following interesting account of his military services during the Rebellion:

"In the spring of 1861 I received the appointment of Assistant Surgeon, but, preferring to go into the cavalry, was commissioned First Lieutenant of Company C, First Ohio Cavalry. We were sent to West Virginia, and took part in the battle of Green River. In February, 1862, the First Ohio squadron was assigned to General Landor to act as his body-guard. General Landor died in March, 1862, and the body-guard took charge of his remains, and delivered them to his family. My command was then assigned to General James Shields as his special escort, and remained with him as long as he was in command. On the 23d of March, 1862, companies A and C, numbering one hundred and forty men, commanded by Captains Robinson and Kirby, made a charge on the enemy, capturing two hundred and sixty-four prisoners. Captain Robinson died a few days afterward, leaving Captain Kirby in full command, also as acting surgeon. On June 8, 1862, we engaged in the battle of Port Republic, where I was wounded and sent to Washington in an ambulance. We were next assigned to General Pope to act as his body-guard. We were engaged in the battles of Bull Run and Cedar Mountain; was also in the battle of Antietam, under General McClellan, and was afterward sent to Washington. Being unfit for further service, I soon after resigned and went home.

"Having recovered sufficiently from wounds and injuries, I accepted, on the 1st of August, 1863, a commission as Captain of Company E, Eleventh Michigan Cavalry, and was sent to Lexington, Ky., to report to General Hobson; from whence we were sent, with fourteen hundred head of cattle, to Knoxville, Tenn., to relieve General Burnside's army. We returned to Lexington April 5th, 1864, when General Burbridge requested us to proceed to western Kentucky in search of train robbers. We were successful and returned in time to give check to John Morgan, then making his last raid through Kentucky. After a fight of four hours he was completely routed—the stand being made at Cynthiana. General Morgan's portfolio, order-book, and saddle-bags fell into my hands, and are still in my possession. On the 25th of June, by order of Major-General McClain, I was detailed as provost marshal at Lexington, Ky., and acted in this capacity until January, 1865, when, finding myself prostrated with nervous fever, caused by wounds, and having contracted rheumatism from previous exposure, I resigned and came home, reduced from my former weight of 205 to 146 pounds."

Dr. Restcome R. Kirby married, July 6, 1854, Melissa M. Tucker, only daughter of Dr. J. L. Tucker of Erie, Mich. Children:

- i. Canfield T. Kirby, b. Feb. 26, 1859, in New Haven, Ind.; d. Aug. 12, 1860.

- vii. Nicholas Underwood Kirby, b. Sept. 4, 1801; m., 1830 (published April 15, 1830), Judith Brightman of Westport, Mass.

15. Robert⁴ Kirby (Robert³, Richard², Richard¹) of Dartmouth, Mass., born —; married, Dec. 13, 1744, Abigail Allen, born Feb. 23, 1726-27, daughter of Seth and Elizabeth Allen. He was elected constable for Dartmouth in 1767, but was excused from serving as such. His will, made in 1802, mentions the names of nine grandchildren: "John, Isaac, Freeman and Robert, children of my daughter Elizabeth Lawrence; Charles and Robert, children of my daughter Sarah Almy; William Henry, Robert and John, children of my daughter Phœbe Allen." Children born in Dartmouth (Dartmouth records):

- i. Elizabeth Kirby, b. July 26, 1747; m., July 1, 1770, Isaac Lawrence of Portsmouth, R. I. Children:

1. John Lawrence.
2. Isaac Lawrence.
3. Freeman Lawrence.
4. Robert Lawrence.

- ii. Abigail Kirby, b. July 26, 1747, twin with Elizabeth; not married.

- iii. Sarah Kirby, b. Jan. 11, 1750; m., Aug. 1, 1769, John Almy of Dartmouth. Children:

1. William Henry Allen.
2. Robert Allen.
3. John Allen.

5. Recompence² Kirby (Richard¹), born probably in Sandwich, Mass.; died 1720 in Newton, Burlington County, N. J. He removed, with his brother Richard, to Dartmouth, Mass. His name appears upon the Dartmouth Town Records as surveyor of roads, 1684; grand juryman, 1686; and selectman, 1695. He received one-fourth part of his father's lands in Dartmouth before the latter's decease in 1688. These lands he sold in 1698 to his brother Richard and removed to Newton, Burlington County, N. J., where he died in 1720. His wife's name was Rebecca. There is a deed recorded at Taunton, given in 1708 by Recompencc Kirby to James Tripp, which is signed by Recompencc Kirby and "Rebecca A. Kirby." The letter "A." in the signature of his wife is not a clerical error for a cross, since a cross is recorded between the word "Rebecca" and the initial letter "A." It is conjectured, therefore, that the maiden name of his wife was Rebecca Allen, and, if so, then she was in all probability the daughter of Francis Allen (son of George) and Mary Barlow.

The will of Recompencc Kirby, recorded at Trenton, N. J. (Book II. of Wills, p. 143), is dated July 4, 1712, and was approved Nov. 21, 1720. In his will he gives "to my son William Kirby fifty acres of land adjoining to his plantation;" to "my son Benjamin Kirby two hundred acres of land adjoining the land of William Wood and Clayton;" and the remaining portion of his land, "two hundred and fifty acres with the houses, barns, orchards, meadows and other improvements, I give to my son Richard Kirby." He gives to "my daughter Rebecca thirty pounds," and all of his personal estate to "Rebecca my wife." His son Richard Kirby is made executor. Witnesses: William Wills, Joseph Laycock, Joseph Reckless.

Children, according to his will:

- i. William Kirby, b. ——. In 1737 he owned 150 acres in New Hanover Township, Burlington County, N. J.
- ii. Benjamin Kirby, b. ——. In 1724 he owned 290 acres in New Hanover Township, Burlington County, N. J.
106. iii. Richard Kirby, b. —; d. 1740; m. Anne —.
- iv. Rebecca Kirby.

106. Richard³ Kirby (Recompencc², Richard¹), born probably in Dartmouth, Mass., and accompanied his father to Burlington County, N. J. He lived in New Hanover Township, where, in 1724, he owned 450 acres of land, and where he died in 1740. His wife's name was Anne. His will, recorded at Trenton (Book of Wills, IV., p. 269), is dated Oct. 14, 1733, and was proved March 5, 1740. In his will he orders his estate to be divided into two portions; one portion to be sold immediately after his death, and the money put out at interest for his children until they attain respectively the age of twenty-one; the other portion he gives to "my well beloved wife Anne Kirby to be enjoyed by her for the space and term of twelve years next ensuing after my decease in consideration that on and with the profits and produce of the same she shall maintain all my children, viz.: Mary Kirby, Recompence Kirby, Richard Kirby, John Kirby, Jonathan Kirby, and Joseph Kirby and one which she shall be delivered of and it do live." He orders the land to be sold at the end of twelve years, and, after the payment of $200 to his wife Anne, the rest is to be divided among his children, and their respective shares put out at interest until they attain respectively the age of twenty-one years. He appoints his wife Anne Kirby and his brother William Kirby joint executors. Witnesses: John Steward, Thomas Wright, David Starkey.

DESCENDANTS OF RICHARD KIRBY

Children, according to his will:

- i. Mary Kirby.
- ii. Recompence Kirby.
- iii. Richard Kirby.
- iv. John Kirby.
- v. Jonathan Kirby.
107. vi. Joseph Kirby, b. Oct., 1731; m. Anne —.

THE DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS BURGIS OF GUILFORD, CONNECTICUT.

1. Thomas Burgis, the ancestor of those by the name of Burgis in New England, was born in Yorkshire, England. The circumstances under which he came to Guilford, Ct., are given in the "History of Guilford, Ct.," by B. C. Steiner, page 135: "Thomas Burgis, Sr., a shoemaker and tanner, came to Guilford about 1707. He was a native of Yorkshire, England, and was pressed on board a British man-of-war, where he was detained several years. After some time the vessel was cruising in the neighborhood of New York, when Mr. Burgis escaped, with one or two others, and fled into the country. It is said he was retaken near Newtown, Ct., and received a grievous sabre-cut on his face, which left a scar ever after. Subsequently he escaped again, when in the neighborhood of Boston, and coming along the shore, stopped at Guilford, and married Mercy, daughter of Thomas Wright." His descendant, Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton of Middletown, Ct., gives a more detailed account of his adventures: "He was pressed into the English navy, and twice made his escape. The first time he was recaptured, and received a deep sabre-cut in one cheek, the scar of which he carried to his grave. The second time he escaped from New York and succeeded in making his way as far as Fairfield, Ct. Being traced to this place, he secreted himself in a field of corn. He heard the footsteps of his pursuers, but was not discovered. He first located temporarily in Fairfield, and afterward removed to Guilford, where he was befriended by Mr. Thomas Wright of that place, whose daughter he afterward married."

Thomas Burgis, Sr., married, Aug. 19, 1707, in Guilford, Ct., Mercy Wright, born 1680, daughter of Thomas Wright and Sarah Benton (married 1673), both of Guilford, Ct. He died Oct. 23, 1736, and his widow, Sarah, June 29, 1747, both in Guilford, Ct. Children born in Guilford, Ct.:

Mrs. Harriet Whedon Noyes of New Haven, Ct., the granddaughter of his brother Thomas, writes from personal recollection: "She was rather tall; had a bright, cheerful face and sparkling black eyes, and her presence generally made a lasting and happy impression on me. I have heard much of the loveliness and energy of her character. She became a widow when her children were young and their farm in Middletown not entirely free from incumbrances. By her energy and careful management she kept up the farm, cleared it of debt, and brought up her children. When her son became old enough to make choice of his life-work, he told his mother that a man could not make a living on that

[Deshon Lineage:

I. Daniel Deshon of New London, Ct. He is supposed to have been the son of one of those thirty Huguenots who emigrated from France with their families in 1686, the year after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, and settled in Oxford, Mass. The settlement at Oxford was broken up by an invasion of the Indians, and the emigrants dispersed into other parts of New England. Rene Grignon, a man of some note among them, fixed his residence in Norwich, Ct., and there died in 1715. Daniel Deshon at that time was a youth in the family of Rene Grignon and one of the legatees mentioned in his will. At a later period Daniel Deshon settled in New London, Ct., where he married, Oct. 4, 1724, Ruth Christophers, daughter of Richard Christophers of New London, Ct., and Grace Turner, a descendant of Elder William Brewster of the Mayflower. They had six sons and one daughter.
